STANLEY'S SET-TO.

Reading of His Deposition About the Garcelon Trust.

HOW THE PAPERS WERE DRAWN

Begging Letter Writers Made Her Existence Almost a Misery.

DISPOSITION OF THE MONEY

The Method She Adopted to Apportion Off the Property.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Attorney Philbrook opened the case of the Bowdoin College vs. Harry P. Merritt in the United States Circuit Court today by continuing the reading of the deposition of trustee John A. Stanley, which the attorney had partially read at the last day of the proceedings.

The instrument was long. It related the giving of the $15,000 check to W. W. Foote for his client, Jas. P. Merritt, to settle any contest. He the deponent, told how he and Mrs. Garcelon had conversed on the best manner of disposing of her property, and said that nearly all of these conversations were held in private, as Mrs. Garcelon was studiously particular that no one should know what she intended to do.

At this time she had made a will, but he advised that she make the disposition by trust. He told her to have Judge Hamilton draw up the necessary papers. She had objected to Judge Hamilton as he and Stephen Purrington had fallen out and wanted Stanley to do her legal work. The deponent asked her what she wanted to do with her estate, and she said she wanted to give her realty to endow a hospital and her personal property to Bowdoin College. Stanley advised her of the law, and told her she would have to sell the real estate and give the money instead.

It was his suggestion that six-tenths of her estate, which represented the portion of the real estate to the whole property, be given to endow the hospital and four tenths to Bowdoin.

At that time she produced a paper with the names of several people to whom she wished to give small sums; in all it amounted to $60,000; $2,000 to each was about the average amount given. She figured her estate as worth $1,200,000, and she wanted $600,000 to go to the hospital $400,000 to Bowdoin and the rest she wanted to give away. The $60,000 to be given to friends and relatives grew until it reached about $220,000. He wanted her to give something to Miss McClellan, but she flew up and said Miss McClellan had got enough from Dr. Merritt.

Originally Harry P. Merritt was to get $2,000, but Mr. Purrington had suggested that he be given enough to buy a home, and she raised the amount to $10,000. The list was finished about the end of March. She wanted Mr. Purrington to act as one of the trustees, and asked Stanley to act as the other, but he refused. She then decided upon Frank Purrington.

"One day," so the deponent testified, "Mrs. Garcelon sent for me and asked if I thought W. W. Foote an honest man. I said I would believe what he said as readily as if I had seen the thing myself. Well, she said if that was the case Frank would not do as a trustee, because Mr. Foote had told her that he had seen Frank taking a drink with Jim. The deponent said that he had suggested Captain Knowles as a trustee. The original intention was that the block at Twelfth and Madison be used as a site for the hospital, but Stephen Purrington thought that the land was worth too much and spoke of a lot on Lake street.

The will, which was probated, was drawn about the 10th or Twelfth or November. Deponent said Mrs. Garcelon was worried to death by charity mongers, and when the trust deed was drawn she had asked that a notice of it be put in the paper so that their persecutions would cease. Letters that were sent to her she would throw unopened in the waste paper basket and the servants would sort out those that came from Maine and she would read them.

Mr. Purrington came to Stanley and told him that Mrs. Garcelon wanted to pay him (the deponent) $25,000 to act as trustee, and he upon certain provisions had accepted the trust. The deponent said that he and Judge Hamilton discussed the law of 1891 and thought that it was introduced by some enemy of Mrs. Garcelon. He said that he had written in the trust deeds the names of the trustees, that Mr. Purrington had brought the papers to his office in San Francisco, and that he filled in the names and sent them back to Mrs. Garcelon. That night she signed the documents and he and Mr. Purrington took them to the Oakland Bank of Savings. At the time of the signing of the papers there was no one present except Mrs. Garcelon, Mr. Purrington, a notary public and the deponent. After the papers were signed the notary public took the acknowledgments and affixed his seal. The last page only was shown to the notary.

SHE WAS SECRETIVE.

"Had you suggested that Mrs. Garcelon invite anyone else to be present when the papers were executed?" had been asked of Mr. Stanley at the time of the taking of the deposition.

"If you can imagine a woman with a perfect passion for secrecy you have an idea of Mrs. Garcelon," he had answered. "That good woman Miss McClellan had attended some of her spiritualistic meetings and had there found out that Mrs Garcelon had not left her anything. Well, Mrs Garcelon thought some of us had told, and after the row she raised on this occasion and on other occasions, too, I thought it better by far not to mention to her that A, B or C be consulted in regard to any matter of business of hers."

The deponent said that Mrs. Garcelon had always thought the house was infested with spies.

The selection of trustees for the Merritt hospital was made exclusively by Mrs. Garcelon, said the defendant. No one had suggested the names of Dr. Pinkerton or Dr. Agard. She thought that the directors of the hospital should receive $5 for each meeting which they attended, as she thought they would be more apt to be present, and at her request the document was changed so as to include this.

At the time of the execution of these papers Stephen W. Purrington was the agent and manager for Mrs. Garcelon. Henry Rogers never was her agent. They were unfriendly and he never was employed to look after any of the property of Mrs. Garcelon. About August, 1891, Mrs. Garcelon said she thought that she had misunderstood Mr. Rogers, and when the will of August 11th was drawn he was called in as a witness.

At half past twelve the court adjourned until 2 o'clock. The deposition was not finished and was taken up the first thing after the lunch hour.

HE IS AN EASY GAME.

The Mayor Is Pestered by an Army of Callers.

Heavy Demands on His Check Book Are Leaving Him Poor.

The week opened at the scene of municipal battle with a new sensation. All sorts of things, commendable and reprehensible, mostly the latter, have been charged to the Mayor by his political enemies and vice versa, but the latest move to render the office of "His Honor" unpleasant is the most far-reaching and damaging yet concocted. It is a plot which has disturbed Mayor Davie's peace of mind more than anything else since the time that his first vetoed ordinance was passed over his ban. It is a concerted movement to top the mayoral tip for every conceivable thing for which subscriptions are solicited.

"As it is at present," said the Mayor this morning, "there is nothing at all from a financial point of view in being Mayor, and all this talk about my being willing, to reduce my salary is the veriest nonsense. No one who has not been Mayor of Oakland is aware of the amount of charity expected from him and of the number of visits he receives from the impecunious horde. My salary barely leaves me enough for doughnuts and coffee after my hard day's work. I gave formal notice that I would be found in my office during business hours every day of the year, but I made a mistake in not stating just what kind of business I intended to transact.

"In the first place, there are those worthy people who are imbued with philanthropic ideas. They read in the papers that the salary of Mayor is $3000 per year and that I am here all day. What surer work could they want? They call on an average of two or three times a day and none of them understand the meaning of a negative monosylable. And how do I get off? Just look at that check book—all stubs. I suppose I've got to do it, but I can't help thinking that some of them are encouraged to come by those who think that my salary is too great.

"Then, again, there are the courtesies that must be extended to visiting officials. Saturday a councilman from Baltimore and another from Los Angeles called on me with letters of introduction from Mayors of their respective cities. What does it all mean? Carriages, suppers, incidentals, and no entertainment fund at the disposal of the Mayor. I feel almost inclined to recall my veto on the ordinance taking the power of signing requisitions from the Mayor and placing it with the chairman of the finance committee, as it takes me a big part of my time to sign requisitions on myself."

The location of the Mayor's office is such that he can not readily escape from the numerous friends of the friendless that call upon him daily. His office opens into the office of the Board of Works and also into the "Walk in" room. If his relations with the new secretary of the Board of Works were a little less strained Mr. Spaulding might occasionally call the Mayor out "on important business," just as he was reaching out for his check book, and by this means save His Honor many dollars daily. But Mr. Spaulding and the Mayor are only passing acquaintances and so there is no relief for Mr. Davie in that quarter. The only people likely to be in the "Walk in" room are people bent on the same errand as those from whom he would escape and to attempt a flight that way would be to jump from the frying pan into the fire. The only other avenue of escape is through one of the two windows and the Mayor says that the prospects of seeing the dollar tax limit passed are too inviting for him to create a desire for suicide, even in the face of the latest cloud that overshadows the Mayoral chair.

"I can't say," said the Mayor, "that my political enemies are directing all these people to me for charity, but the increase in the number is positively alarming."

Save Your Babies

The health authorities in San Francisco say impure milk causes most infantile diseases. Now, mothers, is it advisable to buy bad or indifferent milk to save 25 cents a month, when your economy may cost you your child's health? The Jersey Milk, Cream and Butter Company of 1259 Broadway (telephone 2647) sells the purest and best. Our prices are by the month as follows: Pure rich milk, one quart, $2.25; two quarts, $4.50; three quarts, $6.50; four quarts, $8. Our butter is fresh made daily. Hadn't you better give this matter some thought?

LIBRARY COOPERATION.

Sensible Ideas Advocated by Secretary Henry F. Peterson.

The Coast Institutions Should Work Together for Mutual Benefit.

The following able article on library cooperation and specialization was prepared by Henry F. Peterson, secretary of the Oakland Free Library, and read by him at the recent meeting in San Francisco of the Library Association:

"That there should be a more friendly and fraternal relation existing between the libraries of our coast, to my mind, there is no question. We should co-operate not only in the loan and exchange of books and interchange of courtesies, but for our mutual benefit, in the purchase of books, that is in the addition of costly works. In the higher grades of literature care should be taken not to duplicate or purchase to any great extent such works as are already upon the shelves of a co-operating library.

"It would be advantageous to know what other libraries are doing, duplicating in some instances, of course, is necessary, and there are books which should be upon the shelves of all libraries, but this great duplication seems an unnecessary outlay of money when the same expenditure (should we have a co-operating system) would produce greater results. Paul Leicester Ford says: 'Few libraries in any town or city contain one two or more libraries have failed to realize that a certain percentage of the financial force of their institutions was each year wasted, in the buying of the same books.' In few cities, however, has this duplication been carried farther than in New York. Owing to the great number of libraries, and especially in the very different relations in which they stand towards the reading public, this system of indiscriminate purchasing and gathering, without regard to what other libraries are doing, has been most thoroughly in vogue. The result is that though our city expenditure for books will bear comparison with any other in America, the results bring greater satisfaction to the book sellers than to the readers and scholars.

"Of course we all recognize that a certain amount of this duplicating will always and should always exist. There are books which a single library will duplicate many times over, and so there are books which should be practically in all our libraries. As long, also, as we continue to support both circulating and reference libraries based on the different systems know as 'public,' 'free,' 'proprietary' and 'subscription,' we must expect to find all of them buying books which are demanded by public taste, and so of course, placing the same works upon their shelves. But this duplication is carried far beyond any such point as these conditions necessitate and both libraries and readers suffer accordingly.

"But the evil does not end with the first excessive waste of money. If there is one great truth which the modern librarian has failed to realize it is that an unused or useless book is an actual encumbrance and injury to his library. These books have to be catalogued classified, kept in order, and kept in place, four processes which, if they could but appear in the library ledger, would prove to librarians and trustees that the expense of the books already purchased and long since fallen into disuse was seriously impairing their power to purchase new works.

"In every city there should be one library which should preserve everything, without the slightest regard to its apparent value or the current demand, and so also of course, the special libraries, such as legal, medical, and historical, must do the same within their limits. But I speak now of the libraries which are intended to supply readers rather than scholars, and so must emphasize the absolute necessity of their directing all their force and energy to seeing that the public shall have every book they want and not two copies of one book and none of another.

"Every librarian's ambition is to supply the public with books and to make them use them as far as possible. Trustees and librarians must join in eliminating what is unused or misused on the shelves, and use it by exchange or sale to strengthen both their own and other institutions. They will learn that the number of books in a library is no criterion of its value. We shall no longer have rival libraries struggling for public patronage, but a large number of small libraries, each as far as possible with a distinct mission, well filled and well catalogued, with the librarian thoroughly familiar with his own collection.

"It will be interesting to hear what J. M. Stanley of Lake Forest University has to say on this important subject: 'In this age every institution which expects to be successful must specialize. Specialization implies co-operation for every special activity must have its complement in other activities in order to accomplish a whole. It is gravely to be doubted whether the libraries of this country are really abreast of the age in the matter. It is as useless in this day for a library to attempt to be complete at every point as for any single man to try to master the whole range of knowledge. No matter how wealthy the library may be, it cannot be great in all departments; it must select some one department, or even some portion of one. Competent authorities have assured me that the complete literature of zoology would cost from $100,000 to $150,000, although "a good start" could be made for $25,000. In my opinion a library does not fully serve its function and does not in the highest sense of the term deserve the name of library, until it adopts some specialty, and however small the field may be, cover it with comparative thoroughness. By specialization in this way the libraries in a limited region might supplement each other so as to present to any student in any field the fullest facilities for investigation. As it is, the specialist finds the literature of his subject scattered, and often far distant from his residence. Might it not be one office of the Library Association to determine special fields for libraries which are willing to co-operate and to encourage a mutually beneficial specialization? The libraries of the Northwest, for instance, might form some alliance looking toward a complete library for the Northwest by fostering special departments for individual libraries and by encouraging exchanges. The objection which at once arises to this scheme is that most libraries cannot afford to specialize, it requiring all the available money to secure a good general collection; and in the case of public libraries it is hardly to be expected that tax payers would allow funds to go towards books which can be of little direct service to the general public. This objection is a very serious one, and perhaps, for the present, we can only hope to gain approval for the idea of co-operating specialization as the true theory, the highest ideal for library workers. In the case, however, of university libraries privately endowed, there may be hope of gradually securing some practical application of this great principle of concentration and co-operation which gives such marked success to all forms of modern activity.'

HOW TO DO IT.

"Mr. Chairman, I think that all libraries should make special effort to have printed catalogues for exchange, in order that it may be known what the shelves contain, but those who on account of limited means cannot afford a printed catalogue should have a complete card catalogue, which should comprise important special collections on the shelves of a co-operating library—works not in the library but which can be found elsewhere, and showing where they can be found. It has been suggested to distinguish these cards from the main catalogue, a different colored card should be used; this would be of great value to students and visitors to libraries.

"A system of loan should be inaugurated—this of course can only be arranged by the co-operation of the boards of trustees, and I would suggest, Mr. Chairman, that should it be the sense of this association that co-operation is worthy of a trial, that the different boards of trustees be made acquainted at an early date, with the action of our association tonight. The matter of specialization and taking up of special departments should also be brought to their attention, and we must receive from them a favorable reply before we can proceed. After, I think there should be a meeting to determine what departments are to be taken up by the several co-operating libraries.

"It should be the desire of every library to reach the height of its usefulness, and in order to take another step in advance in the libraries of our coast, co-operation should prevail."

NOW FOR A BIRD BATTLE

Local Sportsmen All Ready for the Opening of the Season.

Tomorrow Morning Will Witness a Lively Scene on the Marshes.

The face of President Bob Boyer of the Mallard Shooting Club shone with unusual excitement this morning. He looked a little weary, it is true, but the first man that said "duck" to him chased away all evidence of a night's rest spoiled hunting phantom teal across the Suisun marshes.

A. A. Moore was up bright and early finishing up a little law business so that he could desert his office for a day or two; Emil Nusbaumer did much the same. So did W. W. Foote, Victor H. Metcalf, Thomas Bradley and Colonel Garrity.

Senator Denison will not be found by would-be employes of the Alameda electric road for the balance of the week, for along with Dr. W. H. Blood, James Landregan, Will Prather and others he will levant for the district near Mare Island tonight.

Edson F. Adams, P. E. Bowles will also go out of town so as to be in the marsh land when tomorrow's sun rises.

R. S. Leckie, with William Heitmann, Louis Gieschen, Will Slattery and George Adams are already in the San Joaquin valley, and there are others who will be missing from their usual haunts for a day or two, while there are others still who would go if they could. Among the latter is Supreme Justice Fred W. Henshaw, who was booked for somewhere near Napa, but who, at the last moment, was engaged by Chief Justice Beatty for Los Angeles, where the Supreme Court will open soon.

And all this cleaning of guns and patching up of hunting suits, and "press of business," and numerous other means of evading duty are due to the fact that th law of California says that after sunrise of October 15th all the duck, teal, mallard, quail, partridge, rail and robin and whatever can be called game, can be legitimately slaughtered by all who care to blaze away at them.

Tomorrow morning the marshes around Suisun Bay will sound, resound and reverberate with a discharge of artillery, and the air will be filled with bullets, feathers and bad words. The latter will be the direct result of the hostile spirit existing between the Teal and Cordelia and the Mallard clubs regarding the right to shoot over certain preserves. Although it is not supposed that any blood will be shed, that is, human blood, still Mr. Boyer said this morning that the Mallards would be "well fortified," whatever that means.

HE'S A GOLD-BUG.

Attorney De Golia Is Off to Look After His Mine.

George de Golia leaves tonight for Montana. He goes to Bald Mountain mine, near Norriss, to look after the setting up of a complete crushing plant and will be absent two weeks.

"The mine is owned exclusively by Oaklanders," said Mr. de Golia, "and it is a bonanza, sure. It is located 11,000 feet above sea level and has turned out some of the richest ore I ever saw. I am not talking for the purpose of selling stock, for there is none to be had, but I am talking turkey. We had an offer to bond the mine for two millions, but we did not entertain the proposition. I shall be gone two weeks and shall witness the putting up of an expensive plant. That mine at Bald Mountain is the only thing that could take me away from going duck hunting, but gold goes, old boy."

SUCCESS WITH SALMON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The fall work of the fish commission will soon begin.

The commission has been unusually sucessful with the salmon catch on the Pacific coast this year.

In the early run over 7,750,000 eggs were collected at Beard Station, Cal., more than double the entire number taken last year.

The fall run will begin next week.

Experiments are being made looking to the introduction of the steelhead trout of the Pacific coast, a very game and edible fish, into Lakes Champlain, Huron and Superior.

JUNIOR SALVATIONISTS.

A Minority Branch of the Army Is in Operation.

Next Tuesday evening there will be a novel demonstration at the old People's Theater now occupied by the Salvation Army. The junior soldiers, little tots ranging in age from 6 to 14, will conduct the meeting and open their new hall. A large portion of the large hall has been partitioned off and will hereafter be used for the little soldiers' meetings. Many of the young warriors wear the full dress uniforms of the day and when on parade look like a pocket edition of what is seen on the streets every night. Several little officers will receive their commissions and the occasion will be taken advantage of to give the junior work a big boom.

ACME ACORNS AHEAD.

McDougall Cleverly Captures the Great Road Race.

Exciting Sport and Lots of Bloomer Wearers on the Scene.

The California Associate Cycling Club's annual road race yesterday was one of the events of the year. The honors were won by the Acme Club of this city, one of whose members, A. S. McDougall, of Pleasanton, captured the first prize. The time prize was won by J. E. Winy, of the San Jose Road Club, who went the ten miles in 26.59 2-5. The coast record is 25:15.

The Acme Club captured five of the fifteen prizes offered. The race was a remarkable one and will go down in cycling history as one of the famous events of the season of 1895. There were more than 90 entries, and the men were sent away from the High street starting line with clock work precision. The course was over the San Leandro-Haywards run, and the road throughout the race was the scene of great excitement and enthusiasm. The start was made promptly at 10:56, when the first handicap rider was sent away. From that time until 11 o'clock the men were given the signal until the scratch wheelmen were the last to depart. There was an enormous crowd about the finish opposite Haywards Villa, and McDougall, the winner, received a great ovation as he sped down the long lane on the other side of which was a dense mass of enthusiastic wheelmen.

The bloomer girl was everywhere. She wore all sorts of fantastic garb. Two or three minor accidents occurred among the wheelmen. The killing of Henry Harvey was not an incident of the race itself.

The fifteen winners of the prizes, with the position, name, club, handicap and net time of each at the finish are as follows:

1—McDougall Acme, 2:50, 26:59 1-5.
2—Charles Birdsall, C. C. C., 3.15, 27 25 1-5.
3—R. A. Coulter, C. C. C., 3:30, 27:42.
4—H. C. Kastens, C. A. C., 2.50, 27:03.
5—Otto Reech, C. C. C., 3:15, 27:29.
6—G. H. Crafts, Acme, 1:50, 26:05 4-5.
7—R. P. Aylward Acme, 2.05, 26.25.
8—R. H. Hammond, S. J. R. C., 2 30, 27:00.
9—P. M. Lefevre, Acme, 1:50, 26 21.
10—F. L. Day, 14, C. W., 1:40, 26:16.
11—Thomas Boyd, C. C. C., 3:25 28 02.
12—E. D. Mendel, Acme, 3.00, 27.46 2-5.
13—William Reid, C. C. C., 3:00, 27.55.
14—G. Kroetz, O. C. W., 2 15, 27:11½.
15—B. J. Sears, Acme, 3.00, 27:57.

RUN DOWN AND KILLED.

Wheelman H.W. Harvey's Life Ends in a Shocking Manner.

He Fell and a Haywards Electric Car Ground Him to a Jelly.

The race of the California Associated Cycling Club yesterday was attended by an unfortunate accident which deprived Henry W. Harvey, a well-known cyclist, of his life.

The catastrophe took place about three-quarters of a mile east of San Leandro. At that point, it seems, a number of riders started to cross the track of the Oakland, San Leandro & Haywards Electric Company. Several of them did so in safety, but as soon as Harvey's wheel struck the track the young man was thrown off his wheel on to the road between both rails. At that time car No. 24 of the road was moving towards Haywards, and the motor man, S. F. Endicott, was sounding the gong as a warning to the bicyclists who thronged the road. The conductor of the car was L. F. Hilt.

Suddenly the form of young Harvey on the track caught the attention of the motor man, who immediately reversed the current and applied the brakes. The momentum of the car, however, was too great to be overcome, and before Harvey could regain his feet he was run down and crushed in a horrible manner, death resulting almost immediately.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. M. King, in front of whose home it took place. She occupied a position on the porch of her residence and was watching the wheelmen as they sped along in the direction of Haywards. She saw Harvey attempt to cross the track in front of the approaching car. She also saw his wheel slip as it struck the track and pitch him down just as the car ran down upon him.

The body was placed beneath the shade of adjacent trees and then James W. Harvey, the brother of the deceased, who was one of the officers of the club race yesterday, was notified of the affair. The coroner was notified and the remains were borne to the morgue in this city.

The deceased was 24 years of age. He was in the employ of his brother, James W. Harvey, who is foreman of the Pope Manufacturing Company. The deceased had, for several years, been engaged as a trainer of wheelmen. He had handled the Columbia racing team and enjoyed the patronage of many pupils. He was a member of the California Cycling Club and resided at the Columbia hotel, No. 18 First street, San Francisco. The funeral will take place tomorrow. The inquest will be held tonight at the morgue.

A Good Man Gone.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 12.—James J. Cook, ex-chief of the United States secret service department, but of late in charge of a local detective agency, died yesterday of heart disease, aged 76 years. Cook made a wonderful record hunting down offenders against the United States laws and took an active part in suppressing the famous whiskey insurrection.

READY TO VETO IT.

The Mayor Determined About the New Tax Levy Ordinance.

He Says the City Would Be Left for Three Months in Darkness.

"It only means a few dollars more for printing," said Mayor Davie, in speaking of the tax ordinance passed Thursday night, "for when it comes back to me I shall put my veto on it."

As an earnest of what he intends to do the Mayor has sent a communication telling them plainly that he will veto any ordinance that does not comply in every respect with the apportionments as provided for by the Heitmann ordinance.

"Do you know that this business of changing five cents from the street light fund to the school fund is all a scheme?" continued the Mayor.

"Of course there is nothing so mean as walking home on a dark night without street lamps, and that is just what the majority of the Council want. They will lay it on to the $1 limit. They will hold it up before the people, telling them how they tried to have a sufficient levy to keep the city up and ran it properly, but that that fellow Davie, with his niggardly ideas and a $1 tax rate, would not sign the ordinance and forced them to comply with his wishes, and how, if they had had their way no one would step into mud puddles on their way home on winter nights.

"City Attorney Percival has looked into the contracts entered into by the city with the gas company for street lighting and finds it obligatory on the city to use as many lights as they used last year. 'If the rate is cut down five cents,' he said, 'the company will continue to light the lamps now used until the street light fund is exhausted. The Mayor is mistaken if he thinks there will be a suit. The company will never go to law, for while they would undoubtedly get a judgment there would be nothing to execute on and they could never satisfy it. What they would do would be to shut off all the lights when there is no more money. Using the same number of lamps that were used last year at the price contracted for this year would amount to $63,000, or 14 cents on each dollar tax collected. Taking off five cents would leave the city for three months in total darkness."

THE STREET SERVICE.

"This business of the street superintendent kicking is all bosh," said the Mayor as he looked over the estimate. "He talks now of having spent in the vicinity of $7,000 on street sweeping. Why last year the total cost of cleaning every street in the city was only $6,310.75, and our new superintendent has used $7,000, so he claims, and there are several miles yet to clean. He practically admits that he made a mistake starting so early. He should have waited until after the first rain, when the streets would have been softer and hardly any picking would have been necessary. Heretofore the department has done with one foreman. Now they have to have four. I have allowed for street purposes about $10,000. If they can't do the work with this amount they ought to throw up their job."

"The Mayor does not know what he is talking about," said Street Superintendent Miller. "He has taken figures and says the work ought to be done for this. If he would do any scientific calculating he would find out what it costs to run this department. The streets were never half cleaned before. No wonder they did it for the amount the Mayor says they did. Roughly estimated we have spent $7,578.50 this year on street cleaning. What he is going to do with the amount over his $6,000 is more than I know, but let him go on; he will find a sudden turn in his lane."

ELKS INCORPORATE.

They Will Care for a Burial Plot and Build a Hall.

The Elks' Rest Association has filed articles of incorporation. The association will care for the burial plot in Mountain View cemetery known as "Elks' Rest." The plot with its massive monument will be dedicated on Thanksgiving Day.

The association proposes eventually to build a hall. The capital stock is $50,000. The incorporators are O. Bemis, H. N. Sloper, C. H. Butler, C. L. Ingler and Ed. H. Benjamin.

BIDDING FOR OUR MEN.

The Olympic Club Trying to Tempt the Reliance Footballers.

The managers of the Olympic Football Club have been recently negotiating for some time to secure Capt. McMillan, Harry Walton and others of the Reliance eleven. These negotiations were brought to light last night at a meeting of the board of directors of the Reliance Club. President Fitzgerald, hearing that McMillan had been tempted to leave the Oakland club and play with the Olympics, came down from Sacramento to straighten affairs out. It seems that McMillan was offered a handsome salaried position to turn traitor.

At the meeting Messrs. Ames and Morrow were present, besides Robert Fitzgerald. McMillan was sent for. The directors stated to him that though he might be financially benefited by the change he would lose the good will of Oaklanders and thus suffer in the long run.

McMillan agreed with them and said that he would refuse all offers in the future as he had done in the past. This will be a hard blow to the Olympics, who published last night that they had secured the Oakland player.

Hot Water

In a rubber bag with a thick wool protector will keep warm for several hours. Good for no end of things—neuralgic pains, colic, toothache—most any pain is helped by heat. A hot water bag, partly filled, without the woolen bag, will keep a poultice warm—you know how desirable that is. We have a lot of bags from 2 quarts up to 4 quarts, not the best, though fair, that we will sell for 50 cents each. We have better ones. Other rubber things too.

The Fighters Still Think They Can Pull Off the Contest.

GOVERNOR CLARKE'S ACTION.

He Is not Personally Opposed to Permitting the Encounter.

PRESSURE BROUGHT TO BEAR.

New Laredo Wants the Event to Be Held in the Bull Ring.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

LITTLE ROCK Ark Oct 12—Governor Clarke's letters to Judge Duffie, Sheriff Houpt and Dan Stuart together with the telegrams to Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons given the public by the Associated Press exclusively last night are the subject of much discussion here today

The sentiment here and at Hot Springs is overwhelmingly in favor of the contest

It is well known that personally Governor Clarke is not violently opposed to the proposed contest

He is quoted as having said recently that seven tenths of the people of Arkansas want it that two tenths were indifferent and all the clamor against it came from the other tenth of the population

When Judge Duffie brought the matter to the governor's attention officially however he was obliged to act and at once begin a close investigation of his authority

He discovered that the act of 1891 making prize fighting a felony never passed

The two houses could not agree and the bill was sent to the conference committee

When the report was presented to the House it was adopted simply by viva voce vote the ayes and nays not having been called

As the law of 1893 sought to amend this act it would seem there is no law on the subject of prize fighting in this State

The law relating to riots unlawful assemblages etc passed in 1893, could perhaps be brought into requisition to cover the case should the governor deem it necessary to go to extreme measures

By this law the governor is authorized to call out the militia without waiting for a request for assistance from the local authorities, and is empowered to expel with force all disturbers of the peace

In this connection it is an interesting fact that since the legislature refused to appropriate money for the maintenance of the State militia nearly every company of citizen soldiers in the State has disbanded

The more enthusiastic advocates of the prize fight have not lost confidence in the Hot Springs committee and believe the match will be brought off

Governor Clarke's pronunciamento against the fight seems to have had little effect on matters at Hot Springs

The indications are that the fight will be brought off October 31st

It is estimated 10 000 people will come to the State to attend the fight including many men of wealth

LAREDO WANTS IT

AUSTIN Tex, Oct 12—A well known sporting man in this city says there is but one place on the American continent where the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight can be pulled off, and that is New Laredo, Mexico

He adds that some three weeks ago the Florida Athletic Club signed papers to have the fight in the bull ring at New Laredo and up to this hour have not asked for a release from the contract

Cited for Contempt

PLUMBERS FALL OUT.

John Bohan Gives Some Corbett Punches to W. H. Penny.

"A bill of $7" said W H Penny a Berkeley plumber, to John Bohan an Oaklander in the same business with a store at Ninth and Washington streets Penney explained Bohan objected Penney insisted Bohan resisted Biff and Penney's nose got between Bohan's right fist and daylight Boom and his eye stopped the Oaklander's left

"I fell then" said the Berkeleyan as he explained to Prosecuting Attorney Moore how it happened, "and he rolled me out of the shop"

Penney wore a nose that was large and red and a pair of discolored eyes which he referred to to corroborate his tale and Mr Moore issued a complaint against Bohan on a charge of battery.

A MAMMOTH SCHEME.

The Mayor Said to Be in Favors of Two Million Dollars City Bonds.

Private Secretary to the Mayor and City Expert Kaufman hints that the Mayor has an ultimate object in view in fixing the rate at $1 It is to show the people how cheaply the city can be run and then after he has clearly demonstrated that a dollar rate is amply sufficient to spring on them gently the proposition to bond the city for $2 000 000 to build a city hall improve parks and make new ones and to otherwise improve the city throughout

The Mayor when asked about it said, "Too far to look ahead altogether to far Let us try the dollar rate first and see how it works"

HIT THE WRONG MAN.

Four Fellows Attack Al. Lean Greatly to Their Sorrow.

Professor Al Lean of the Acme Athletic Club had an experience last night which maintained the reputation he has achieved not alone as an athlete but as one skilled to defend himself against people with malevolent and misguided purposes

Last night while passing along San Pablo avenue in company with his wife and a lady friend of hers he was insulted and assaulted by a quartet of young men who stood near the Juanita hotel He held his ground however pitched one of the assailants into the street stove in the rib of a second laid a third one out with a blow on the face and then the fourth beat a retreat to a place of safety The names of two of the assailants are said to be F Cavozia and Young Ainsworth.

RUMOR OF A MURDER.

An Authenticated Sensation Reaches the Police Station.

Chief Lloyd said today that he had received an intimation that a murder had been committed some place on San Pablo avenue either last night or early this morning He did not, however attach much importance to the story

Detectives were sent out to run down the story, but without success The Tribune made inquiries at all available news centers between this city and San Pablo and beyond to Martinez without however being able to discover any clew to a muderous affray, much less to a case of murder

It is believed that the rumor of the murder grew out of the assault made on Al Lean on San Pablo avenue last night

SHE IS A FOOLISH FLIRT.

So Judge Ellsworth Decides in the Case of Mrs. Mamie Steele.

She Secures Her Divorce but Gets a Good Scathing From the Court.

Judge Ellsworth gave Mrs Mamie Steele a divorce this morning from her husband John G Steele but Mrs Steele passed a few unpleasant moments while the judge was giving his decision in the case

Mrs Steele may fairly be called a flirt according to Judge Ellsworth's view of the situation as expressed in his decision He said he had no doubt that she was a very indiscreet woman She had a jealous husband but her actions were such that he was jealous not without some reason

Judge Ellsworth remarked that the testimony had been as conflicting as it usually was in divorce cases and it was a hard matter to determine the truth After noting that Mrs Steele's conduct was sufficient to give grounds for jealousy, he continued "The evidence here has been sufficient to establish that the plaintiff has been a very indiscreet woman She certainly was indiscreet when she visited the living apartments of Hoffman the Sixteenth Street cobbler She stayed there a long while and while I believe that no actions of a criminal nature have been proven yet the affair was decidedly calculated with her other conduct to annoy harass and render her husband jealous

He was not justified in treating his wife as she and her mother testify The testimony seems corroborated that he did use some violence on each of them and there are circumstances to show that he threatened the plaintiff with a razor

I think the plaintiff may fairly be called a foolish flirt The testimony of Winkler who said he saw her wave her handkerchief at a Twelfth and Union street to a Twelfth street car conductor I believe is true She did this behind her husband's back The testimony is sufficient I believe to warrant a decree for the plaintiff on the ground of cruelty

The boy in the case was awarded to the mother temporarily and Judge Ellsworth admonished her not to poison the child's mind against its father He will be permitted to see it on Sundays from 2 to 4 P M He will pay $10 a month toward its support Judge Ellsworth warned Mrs Steele that he would not tolerate any trifling with the order of the court

Before the case was concluded this morning A G Briggs, formerly superintendent of the East Oakland Electric Railway Company, denied that he had ever eaten dinner at Barnum's with Mrs Steele or that he had more than a passing business acquaintance with her fostered to some extent by occasional calls at the store two years ago while superintendent of the road

OF INTEREST TO SUFFERERS

Case of Mr. Henry Schrag, Proprietor Club Stables Fourteenth and Webster Streets.

OAKLAND Sept 14th, 1895.

Six years ago I was taken suddenly ill with a lame back and consulted Dr. Mayer, Dr Simond Dr. Williams, Dr Leo Newmark and Dr J W. Robertson all of San Francisco, but their treatment did not benefit me any

I then went to the Byron Hot Springs, remained there six weeks and still no relief

After thus having doctored for six long years I tried as a last resort an electric chain invented by Dr J M Wulff and now after having used the same since August 8th I feel that I finally found a remedy that has so far done me that much good that I can walk straight again and attend to my business which I have not been able to do for the last two years and I have not the slightest doubt that by conscientiously following the doctor's instructions I will ultimately get entirely cured The relief I have had so far is far beyond what I ever expected

I know and feel that the doctor has done wonders for me

Very truly

Upon the wish of Mr Henry Schrag we the undersigned testify that the above statement is in every respect the true facts

DIXEY'S CLEVER SHOW.

An Enjoyable Entertainment Assured Tonight at the Macdonough.

The Oakland Will Give a Choice Production of "The White Slave."

Henry E. Dixey, in his inimitable impersonations of eminent lights of the theatrical world and his selected specialties from some of his famous plays will be the attraction this evening at the Macdonough theater. The entertainment throughout is replete with novelties and will prove a rare and interesting performance. Dixey will present two of his sketches, the barber shop scene and the country girl from "Adonis," while the finale of the "Seven Ages" will be another feature of the programme. Dixey on his tour has with him a very excellent company, which will add to the attractions of the bill. There will be a big house, for the programme is first-class and prices have been fixed at popular rates.

TRILBY.

"Trilby," the reigning theatrical sensation, will be seen at the Macdonough Theater, Oakland, next Monday and Tuesday nights with Tuesday matinee, being presented by A. M. Palmer's stock company and a magnificent outfit of scenery and costumes. The production and company will be in every respect the same as now at the Baldwin Theater, San Francisco, which achieved such phenomenal success in the way of artistic triumphs and immense patronage. Everybody has heard of "Trilby," and everybody hereabouts at all interested in the drama or literature will want to see the play when produced under favorable conditions as those of Manager A. M. Palmer's company.

THE WHITE SLAVE.

Last night's house at the Oakland was a packed one. There was "standing room only" when the curtain arose on the first act of "The Fire Patrol," which will be succeeded this evening by "The White Slave," Bartley Campbell's magnificent masterpiece. This will be the first production of the great drama for a number of years. The play is founded upon incidents that occurred during the dark slavery days and portrays the cruelty of that form of life, especially to those whose blood was even slightly intermingled with that of the black man. The drama is a strong picture. The scenic effects will be in harmony with the other attractions ample to form a satisfactory whole. The Acme quartette will render musical numbers. May Nannary is cast for "Lisa." The strong company is well distributed and will form a good support.

A MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Next Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium will be held the first rehearsal of the Oakland chorus for the great festival concerts next month in aid of the Children's Hospital of San Francisco. Invitation is extended to singers to attend these rehearsals, since it is desired that the contingent from this city be representative. The production of notable choral works by a chorus of twelve hundred, supported by an orchestra of sixty professional musicians, will mark an epoch in the musical history of this coast.

PURE MILK.

The New York Condensed Company Is a Splendid Concern.

The employes of the New York Milk Company, to the number of 450, recently held their annual outing at the company's works at Walden, New York. To make this possible, the 50,000 patrons of the company in New York City were obliged to take a two-days' supply of milk on Wednesday.

The outing included an inspection of the company's plant at Walden, which consists of five buildings, where the milk is received, bottled for the city trade or condensed. The plant contains marvels of machinery, but the absolute cleanliness of the place is the most noticeable characteristic. Both the grounds and the factories are scrupulously clean. The company manufactures its own cans, one machine turning out 75,000 in ten hours. The monstrous vacuum pans and the bottling machines are objects of great interest to visitors, and the whole process of preparing the milk for consumption is highly interesting. The reading room was yesterday converted into a dining room, where some 400 of the party sat down to dinner.

GREAT FIGHTERS.

Tom King, Tom Hyer and Tom Sayers, John C. Heenan, John Morrissey and John L. Sullivan.

The three Toms fought under British colors, while the three Johns fought under the Stars and Stripes. The history of pugilism does not record greater fighters than the above named.

Scores of other fighters, some of them good ones, have sprung up since the days of Heenan and Sayers, but most of them, with the exception of Sullivan, were glove hitters.

Corbett, no doubt, would make a good record with his bare fists but he never has had a chance. Peter Jackson and Corbett should be pitted against each other in regular fisticuffs but they never will.

It is doubtful whether Corbett and Fitzsimmons ever come together but when it comes to knocking out high prices in fine dress suits made to order, Z. C. Angevine is conceded the champion of the world. His record for fine dress suits made from the best cloth known to the trade is only twenty-two dollars. For seventeen dollars and a half he will make you a splendid cutaway or sack suit and his twelve dollar and a half suits are already the talk of the town. These twelve dollar and half suits are made to order and cannot be duplicated for less than eighteen or twenty dollars at any other house. Angevine, Gridman & Company are located at nine hundred and sixty Broadway and if you will call and examine their goods you can't help but buy them, for their good qualities and low price has resulted in eighty-seven suits being made to order within the past twelve days.

Family Skeletons.

They are always ready to pop out of the closet. In today's Town Talk a whole procession of these gaunt witnesses file past the reader and they are graphically described by the Saunterer. Variety is the spice of Town Talk's life. Between its covers this week is a most entertaining pot-pourri of events in the social, musical, political, dramatic and other worlds. All the latest society news is reviewed, the editorials are solidly comprehensive, the departments are up to date, and, in short, you can get more good, lively reading for the money than in any other weekly on the news stands. The Holbrook-Knight wedding is described and announcements of other weddings made, including that of Oakland's two popular young people, Miss Priest and Mr. Fine. The Saunterer this week finds considerable to censure, but also something to praise. He claims to be at least reliable and impartial in his comments upon people about town. He does not expect to please wrong-doers when he holds the mirror up to them. There is a war-love poem in today's issue, also verse by local poets, a fin-de-siecle sketch by Ella M. Sexton, "The Lady and the Latch Key," and a host of other things that will interest the reader. The Santa Barbara letter, a Portland letter, letters from divers places, in fact, are in evidence in Town Talk of today—the brightest journal on sale in California.

Above all others, SPERRY'S FAMILY FLOUR.

MONDAY.....OCTOBER 14, 1895

Of course the Turks lay all the blame of the recent massacres on the Armenians. If they would only submit peaceably to be killed all would be well. The vexation of the Turks is that just now there are complications growing out of the Armenian disturbances that are assuming international importance. That is what displeases the Sultan and the more so that there are powerful fleets anchored near enough to enforce any demand the allied powers might make.

This little incident is good enough to be redeemed from the waste basket. Tid Bits is responsible for it: "For some time past Queen Marguerite has been very much concerned at the extraordinary rapidity with which the hair of King Humbert has been whitening. What could she do? Womanlike, she saw only one remedy—hair dye—and she suggested the idea to the King. But his majesty objected to being rejuvenated by any such process. One of her relatives, a young prince, suggested strategy. He knew, he said of a splendid colorless dye which she could place on the dressing table of the King, and he would use it without thinking as an ordinary hair wash. But his majesty got wind of the affair and laid a counterplot. The Queen had a little white dog with long hair. He inveigled it into his dressing room, applied the famous hair dye and turned the dog into her majesty's apartments in a coat of splendid jet black."

Three great religious convocations have been held during the last ten days in this country. There was the great Eucharistic convocation at Washington where the notable men of the Catholic church deliberated on many weighty matters. There was the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church at Minneapolis, where nearly all the bishops of that church assembled and many other notable divines, as well as laymen. That convention created the diocese of Southern California, a matter of special interest to churchmen in this State. Then there was the triennial convention of the Congregational churches at Syracuse, where a large number of notable men of that denomination dealt with many important interests. Aside from purely religious questions, it is to be noted that all these great assemblies brought under review some of the great educational interests of the country. The influence exerted by these distinguished bodies was beyond ordinary measurement. It was great enough to be of national importance.

Secretary Herbert on Free Silver.

There is new cause for worry in the free silver ring of the Democratic party on account of the recent speech of Secretary Herbert, made in Alabama and presumably at other points in the Southern States on the free silver issue. The Southern States at one time seemed to take kindly to the Populist side of the question. But they are swinging into line with the Cleveland administration.

That part of Secretary Herbert's speech which was pressed home with the most effect was the following: "I know of no more effective way of crippling the South and its industries than for our people to clamor for the payment of debts already contracted, and hereafter to be contracted, in depreciated silver dollars. Fortunately for this country the effects of the panic of 1893 are rapidly passing away; money has begun to flow again in its accustomed channels; wheat has risen in price; cotton has risen in price; iron has risen in price; industries are reopening everywhere; wages are increasing; and all this comes from the fact that the capitalists of this country, who are shrewd, farseeing, and who watch with keen eye the doings of every political convention, have come to the conclusion that the free silver sentiment in the United States is not strong enough and not powerful enough to force this country to a silver basis."

The Secretary pointed out that there was no free silver sentiment in New England, none in New York or in the Middle States, and very little in Ohio. It was well to recognize the controlling sentiment of the country. All this was by way of warning that if the administration was not supported in the stand it had taken the Republicans would again come into power, because they would represent the dominating sentiment of the country.

An Old Question Revived.

The offer of a company in Detroit to build two gunboats for the United States has revived an old question about the treaty between the United States and Great Britain made in 1817. The Detroit firm made the lowest bid for a government contract, but could not obtain it because under the treaty prohibiting the maintenance of armed vessels on the lakes, armed ships could not be built there.

The treaty stipulations are as follows:

"The naval force to be maintained upon the American lakes by his Majesty and the government of the United States shall thenceforth be confined to the following vessels on each side, that is

"On Lake Ontario, to one vessel, not exceeding 100 tons burden and armed with one 18-pound cannon.

"On the upper lakes, to two vessels, not exceeding like burden each, and armed with like force.

"All other armed vessels on these lakes shall be forthwith dismantled, and no other vessel of war shall then be built or armed. If either party should hereafter be desirous of annulling this stipulation, and should give notice to that effect to the other party, it shall cease to be binding after the expiration of six months from the date of such notice."

The intent of the treaty was to prevent a fleet of war vessels of either nation from patrolling these inland waters. In 1864 the first steps were taken by the Federal government to abrogate the treaty by giving the required six months notice. Great Britain had given great offense to this country by allowing Confederate cruisers to prey upon American commerce. But in March, 1865, notice of the abrogation of the treaty was withdrawn before the full term of six months had expired. The treaty being now in force, the shipbuilders on the lakes cannot build war vessels for the government. The Detroit firm offered to ship the material to the Pacific coast and there construct the war vessel.

The lake ship builders are constructing metal ships with a capacity for 6000 tons of freight, and are building some very large passenger ships. Many of these could be converted into war ships for lake service at very short notice. The country has outgrown the treaty of 1817, which is now effective in smothering the enterprise of American shipbuilders.

Ex-President, With a Difference.

When President Cleveland retired from office he entered upon the practice of law, and with so much success that he put some very good fees into his capacious pockets. It was not against the dignity of the high office he had held that he should practice law. A majority of Presidents have been lawyers.

The first to take up the practice of law after retiring from office was ex-President John Q. Adams, who conducted the defense in the famous Amistead case. He had no need to follow the profession for a livelihood. Martin Van Buren probably did some office business after his retirement from office. But he was a comparatively rich man for those days, and had little need of professional emoluments.

It is reported that ex-President Harrison earns from his profession as a lawyer a much larger income than he received while in office. He is a good lawyer, and not rich according to the present standard of wealth. It goes well with his reputation that he should earn large fees. There is a class of important cases where all the influence which a man can have, even as an ex-President, is needed to gain a successful verdict. The precedents are now fairly established that no man who has once held the highest office in the gift of the country need go into such absolute retirement that the country shall never more hear from him.

In the Stanford Case.

There was not much doubt that the decision of this case by the Court of Appeals would sustain Judge Ross' decision in the District Court. But the result is of none the less moment on that account. It involved a property interest of more than fifteen million dollars and contingently the existence of a great institution of learning.

The case would never have been appealed had it not been for the zeal of the attorney employed by the government. The case was brought by the latter in part to meet a certain amount of popular clamor. It is evident that the Attorney General had little confidence that any case could be made out by which fifteen millions or more could be turned over to the government. There is now the recorded opinion of Judges Ross, Gilbert, Morrow and Hawley in favor of the Stanford estate. It is not likely that the case will go to the Supreme Court. In fact, there is nothing to take to that tribunal. It may be assumed that the case is closed beyond all ordinary contingencies.

Three Cities as One.

Alameda is now claiming a population of 15,000, which may be a little above the mark. It is certain, however, that the city across the estuary is making a more rapid growth than any other in the county. It is now entitled to rank as a city of the fourth class, with all the honors and emoluments that belong to a city of that degree. Alameda has room enough for a large city. There would be no crowding if a hundred thousand people were to choose Alameda for their homes.

Berkeley also is only a little way behind Alameda in population, and seems to be at present on the line of rapid growth. There is more building going on in Berkeley in proportion to the population than in any other city on this side of the Bay. It is not clear yet as to which of these cities—one on the north and the other on the south of Oakland—will yet be the largest. The great University with its throng of students draws a great many families to Berkeley. A great many more are drawn there by the beauty of the situation. These two cities are every year coming closer to Oakland. No act of consolidation would ever bring them geographically any nearer. In these three cities within speaking distance of each other there is now a total population of about 87,000, taking the estimates as they have recently been made. This aggregate population is just about as large as that of Los Angeles. In the matter of educational facilities the advantage is greatly on the side of these cities. Much is written and said now about the growth and prosperity of Los Angeles. Conceding all that is claimed, these three cities of Alameda county have been growing into each other until they begin to touch, with the commercial advantages of a water front such as can never be counted in favor of Los Angeles. There is no city of the second class on this coast that has such a harbor as is in front of Oakland. These are permanent advantages. They are to count for vastly more in the future than they have in the past.

Occasionally the Chicago Tribune gets hold of railroad news ahead of other papers. But it sometimes goes wide of the mark, as it did in its report that the Central Pacific would not connect with the Union Pacific after a certain date. That statement was wholly misleading. Now the Chicago Tribune reports that the Union Pacific is about to come under the control of the Vanderbilt system in connection with the Northwestern, which is under that control.

The next item is to be taken with many grains of allowance. It is that the Vanderbilts are seeking to control the Central Pacific Railroad, thus making a through competing road to the Pacific; and that negotiations are now going on with Huntington for that purpose. When the latter sells out a road for the purpose of making it a formidable competitor with his other roads we shall all know it.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

The Egyptians believed that the soul lived only as long as the body endured, hence their reason for embalming the body to make it last as long as possible. It is estimated that altogether there are 400,000,000 mummies in Egypt.

The Queen of the Netherlands entered upon her sixteenth year a few days ago, and in honor of the occasion, but to the great regret of her subjects, introduced a momentous change — she began to wear her hair in the fashion of young women. Queen Victoria describes the Queen as "the most charming girl in the world."

The late Mr. Houghton was wont to tell a characteristic story of Noah Webster. Houghton was a boy in a printer's shop when an odd-looking old gentleman came in one day to make him promise that he would always set up the word "center," not "centre." The lexicographer man is said to have harassed New England on this errand to printers.

An interesting addition to the stories of things people see when they haven't their guns is offered by Messrs. McNamer and Everett, two hunters of Wishkah, Wash. They went out recently without their guns, and met, first, a large covey of grouse so close that they killed one with a stick; then they stumbled across a bear, shortly afterward sighted a band of elk grazing not twenty yards away, and as they turned homeward in disgust and chagrin, three timber wolves trotted into and along the path ahead of them.

Five tracts of land aggregating 120,000 acres, in Southern California, have just been bought by a syndicate for colonization purposes. The lands consist mostly of big ranches.

Mr Watts, the artist, shakes his head when he talks of Mr. Gladstone as a sitter, and says: "He was about the worst sitter I ever had. Not that he could not keep still, but no sooner did he come in than he began to talk, and after a couple of hours, when he had to leave, I found that I had not done any work at all."

Cars in which aluminum will be used for all metal work, save the wheels and axles, are to be put on the State railroads of France. The saving of weight for an ordinary train will be thirty tons.

King Leopold was never so popular in Paris as at present. During his recent visit to the French capital the populace showed unmistakable evidence of their respect and esteem, and wherever they caught sight of him on the boulevards, in theaters and railway stations they saluted him with cries of "Long live the King of the Belgians." Leopold is not a handsome man. One morning, while he was returning to his hotel from a walk, he asked two loiterers at the doors what they were waiting for. "To see the King," was the reply. "That is not a very interesting spectacle," said the monarch as he entered the hotel.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt will have a Duke for a son-in-law, and will be an honored guest at Blenheim, but she can never be presented at court, which gives the entree to English society, for no divorcee enters there.

The proprietor of a factory on the South Side has a son who has had about everything which was going; a college education with a degree, all the fun to be had on a liberal allowance and a European tour. When he got back he told his father he wanted to settle down and get "& Son" on the signboard. The next morning the proprietor brought him to the foreman, saying: "Got anything for this young man to do?" "Sorting scrap iron—$1 a day." "All right, put him at that. I want to give him a chance for the sake of his mother. If he's any good he'll work up." In two years the young man had worked up to be manager and junior partner and the proprietor began to have his turn at a good time.—Chicago Tribune.

Brides who wish to be real English, you know, must forbid the throwing of rice when they depart on the honeymoon trip. There is to be no more rice throwing at English weddings in high society. The substitute will be paper confetti. There have been several accidents during the last season caused by grains of rice striking the eyes of the bride or groom. Hence the prejudice against the practice. The confetti is about half the size of a letter wafer and stamped in gold, silver and all colors.

A voice to order will soon be one of the possibilities. It is reported that Professor Stuart of the University of Sydney has invented an artificial larynx and that it has been tried with success upon a man who had lost his voice. The mechanism can be regulated so as to make the voice soprano, tenor, contralto or bass at will. It is sincerely to be hoped that the managers of certain companies on the road will lay in a liberal supply of these articles for "artists" who have no voice but endeavor to sing for the public.

Holland disfranchises a citizen if he is absent from the country ten years, and during that time does not formally notify the proper authority that he wishes to be continued to be regarded as a citizen. Great Britain does not so easily give up her claim to the loyalty of her subjects. A man may count upon her protection on the ground that his grandfather was by birth and allegiance an Englishman, even though he and his father were both born and have always lived on foreign soil, but without being naturalized.

AN ABLE OFFICIAL.

Sheriff White Did Excellent Work in the Dog Fighting Raid.

Sheriff White is to be congratulated on the outcome of his raid on the dog-fighters at Bottomley's barn. Of the many captured on that occasion two have been convicted—Kennedy and Bottomley—and there is little doubt that similar results will be in order as regards the rest who do not forfeit bail.

The sheriff in this particular case shows he is keenly alive to the duties of his office. He is determined that neither lawlessness nor disorder shall prevail within the limits of his authority, and that he knows how to go about his work is shown in the great success that attended the conducting of the recent raid. Mr. White is making a splendid record in his office and those who at first opposed his administration have through appreciation of his fidelity and level-headedness become his friends.

One of the finest accommodations which people on this side of the bay experience is the communication which they enjoy with the rest of the world by means of the transportation companies, the leading one of which is the People's Express and Transfer Co., the office of which is at 112-118 Ninth street, between Broadway and Franklin street. This company gives not only perfect services between this city, Berkeley, Alameda and San Francisco, but saves people who go traveling the necessity of personally attending to the checking of their baggage. It checks the baggage at one's house and delivers it there after arrival without extra expense.

A CHALLENGE

To the Contra Costa Water Company, Oakland:

Some time ago I had occasion to make a microscopical analysis of the water furnished to the city of Oakland by your company, coming from Lakes Temescal and Chabot.

At your instance I am informed this analysis has been questioned and my reputation placed in a doubtful position.

In order that I may prove to your satisfaction and to that of the general public of the city of Oakland, tho absolute correctness of my conclusions that the water supplied by your compauy IS UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION, I now make the following proposition:

I will meet any expert appointed by you and proceed to Lakes Temescal and Chabot, where we will procure samples of water from each lake, under the usual precautions taken relative to any analysis under dispute. Having obtained the samples, we will proceed to some proper place in the city of Oakland, fitted up as a laboratory, to be selected by your expert and myself—your expert to provide the necessary material for his investigation, and I will do likewise; both investigations to be conducted simulataneously and in the presence of each other. And daily upon leaving the operating room we will seal it up with the dual seals of the experts and place a watchman in charge, that there may be no opportunity for fraud or chicanery by anybody.

The expense of these investigations to be mutual, each side to pay their own expert, and any extra expenses to be divided. I will undertake to establish without cavil the absolute correctness of my previous analysis of the waters from Lakes Temescal and Chabot, whereby it was proven without the reason of any doubt to unbiased people that SAID WATERS FROM LAKES TEMESCAL AND CHABOT ARE ABSOLUTELY UNWHOLESOME, UNHEALTHY AND UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION.

In event of your refusing to accept or consider this challenge I shall make a proposition to the authorities of Oakland to name a committee, that I may establish to it the correctness of my previous conclusions regarding the unfitness for human consumption of the water which comes from either Lake Temescal or Chabot.

Respectfully,

THOMAS BOWHILL,

He Will at Once Commence His Mission in San Francisco.

Rev. Dr. Rader preached his farewell sermon at the First Congregational church yesterday. Sunday next he will occupy the pulpit at his new mission, the Third Congregational church of San Francisco, and thus will pass away from Oakland one of the brightest and most popular young pastors the city has ever harbored.

His discourse yesterday had as its text Acts [illegible] "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come they were all with one accord in one place." In part he said:

Pentecost comes at the close of one dispensation and [illegible] the dawn of the new. On one side we have the life of Christ. On the other the history of the church. It forms a climax to the earthly life of our Lord and marks the birth of the church [illegible] forces which have been organized into the Christian church. [illegible] in this incident which we have chosen for our text we have:

First, an expression of unity. In this company of apostles and believers there was perfect harmony. There was no divisive thought or purpose. There was no race question, though all races were represented. There was no sex question, for there were both women and men. There was no State issue, though all governments were there. These good people were neither Methodist, Baptist, Episcopalian or Presbyterian. It is quite probable they were all Congregationalists. This is an example of what a church ought to be, a unity, having one Lord, one faith, one baptism.

Second, [illegible] almost meant inspiration. Inspiration, which means breathed into, has never been defined because it is impossible to give a definition of life. Revelation precedes inspiration. The latter is a doctrine of the former. Pentacost thus gives a clue to the origin of all great visions and of all the great poetry of the world. It explains Milton and Isaiah and other receptive spirits in inspired and [illegible] history. When we know how the mighty sun enshrines itself in a drop of dew or enfolds its beauty in the petals of a flower we learn how God breathes into the human soul as He did upon the day of Pentecost.

Third, Pentacost explains the gift of tongues. The world has not only seen its tongues of fire but also its brush and this hand pencil of flame as in the genius of a Rubens, an Angelo or a Raphael. It has had its pen of fire as wielded by a Browning or a Whittier. And all this is religion, that is, it is the gift of the Spirit of God finding expression in great art and thought. [illegible]

Fourth, power. Pentecost means power. [illegible]

[illegible] kept in our country not by keeping our [illegible] [illegible] Stonewall Jackson's army. She raised her flag and said, "Shoot if you must this old gray head, but spare your country's flag." She halted the dust brown ranks by the power of testimony. During the great strike on the Southern Pacific [illegible] taken out of their cabs one after another by the mob, who seemed to have complete control of the situation. In the [illegible] overland train [illegible] for some days pulled up at the Sixteenth street station. The mob as usual surrounded the [illegible] of the engine, but suddenly [illegible]. There was not a hand raised or a shot fired, for in the cab stood a United States regular soldier with a rifle in his hand and with the determination backed by the United States government to maintain law and order. It was the power of testimony. That is the kind of religion we need in California, the Christianity that dare witness for the gospel.

Fifth, Pentacost is the pledge of the perpetual presence of Christ. In the Antwerp cathedral is a portrait of our Lord. Visitors tell me that the eyes of the Christ follow them to all parts of the room. It is an illustration of what was manifested on the day of Pentacost. Upon that day by the gift of the spirit the pledge was given to the world that Christ was to continue with the church always. Beautiful is the thought that we never get beyond the penetrating gaze of the Master. If we fall in the battle over [illegible] with blood [illegible] with our armor on His eyes are upon us. They follow us through the years of old age. There is no night so dark but that they pierce it. No sorrow so great but they gaze through it. We are never alone. We have lonely hours but the eternal presence is always with us. You thought you were alone when your companion left you, the one was not a friend apparently in all the world, but you were mistaken. "Lo I am with you alway." The Hebrew children in the furnace of fire were not alone for there was a fourth form like unto the Son of Man. Elijah was not alone when he most thought he was, for the black raven was wheeling over his head and God was with him. God is everywhere. May this church have the unity, the inspiration, the sacred eloquence and the spiritual power of Pentacost. And may you all be conscious in all your experiences of the everlasting presence of the eternal God.

Mr Rader severs his connection with the First Congregational church with the reverence and good will of all its members. He deserves all that he has received from his people because, while he has been among them he has labored sedulously both day and night and performed his duty in a conscientious manner which has characterized him in all his work.

Mr Rader accepts the pastoral charge of the Third Congregational church in San Francisco, to which he has received the unanimous call of the members.

He will assume his new charge Wednesday next.

FAREWELL REMARKS

In a certain sense, Rev Mr Rader took farewell from the First Congregational church last week when he was tendered a reception by members of the congregation. On that occasion he delivered an interesting address from which a few excerpts are here with given.

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER.

Councilman Bassett Makes a Personal Inspection of the Dam.

He Also Sizes Up the Situation as Regards the Eighth Street Bridge.

There is much diversity of opinion in the matter of the safety of the culvert in the Twelfth street dam, and if unsafe what amount of money is necessary to place it in a safe condition. The superintendent of streets estimated that to repair the dam some $7,000 would be required, and the majority of the Council provided that sum in the tax levy to create. The minority in the Council and the Mayor did not think so much money need be used in repairing the culvert. Councilman Bassett, who has given this matter much consideration, says:

"Last Saturday afternoon I went down to the Twelfth street dam and gave it a pretty thorough examination. The planking under the sidewalk adjoining the floodgates, together with some of the timbers underneath, are somewhat decayed. This has been placed in a sound condition at a cost of about $50.

"Accompanied by one of the carpenters I took a small float and worked my way from the lower or south side of the dam through one of the waterways under the street about three-fourths of the distance to the south side of the bulkheads on the north side. To do this we were compelled to be flat upon the float and pull ourselves along by the timbers overhead. We tested the planking and cross beams the entire distance and found no evidence of decay or sign of giving way. The examination convinced me that we had made an equally thorough examination of the other waterways and found them all equally sound.

"In making my personal examination, yet the majority of the Council proposes to pull out this work and replace it with a concrete contrivance that will shoot out of sight within a year after completion. As a matter of fact, the Twelfth street culvert is as sound and safe now as it was two years ago and it will be as sound and safe two years hence as it is now. The proposal to spend $7,000 on the Twelfth street dam is simply a proposal to use the people's money for the payment of political debts and the marketing of political capital.

"As to the Eighth street bridge. The non-partisan majority of the Council proposed to appropriate $13,000 for the rebuilding of the bridge. We have positive evidence that this is a criminal job. A few evenings since City Engineer Gray and Mr. Vandercook of the street railroad that crosses the bridge were before the Finance Committee. Mr. Gray stated that he had carefully examined the bridge and gave it as his opinion that $3,500 would replace the decayed stringers and rotten piles and entirely replank the bridge.

"Mr. Vandercook said to the committee that he had had the bridge examined in the interest of his railroad and found it safe, particularly so beneath his track. Yet the superintendent of streets, at the instance of the city engineer, has warned the public that this bridge is unsafe and dangerous, and the non-partisan Council wants to spend $13,000 in patchwork.

"Both the Twelfth street dam and the Eighth street bridge should be replaced with steel bridges raised to the level of the street grade. A small expenditure on these cheap and temporary structures will keep them in service until, with the practice of proper economy, the city is able to build solid and permanent steel bridges.

"Besides saving and losses, and they cost one-third more than they would have cost if built for a private individual, Oakland has no permanent improvements. Good streets constructed at the expense of property holders have been greatly damaged by street railroad building. Peralta hall is an old shed, the engine houses are temporary affairs, the streets are poor work at extravagant cost. The money of the taxpayers has been expended in piecemeal jobbery. It is time the habit of shoveling money into cheap jobs was discontinued and the building of something solid and permanent commenced."

"SADDEST OF THE YEAR."

But Fall Days Need Not Be Sad If People Will Not Make Them So.

The fall days are rapidly passing, and before long winter will be upon us. Now is the time to consider whether we are prepared to withstand the dangers to which we must be exposed during the coming season. Even perfectly healthy people must feel the change from summer heat to the coolness of fall and early winter. There is malaria in the atmosphere and few people can escape its enervating effects. Under these circumstances something is needed to quicken the pulse, drive out the germs of disease, restore the jaded faculties and promote the general health. For this purpose nothing has ever equalled Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey which is endorsed and recommended by the best physicians in the land. Thousands of men and women who owe their health and strength to this splendid preparation have testified to its remarkable effects. Among the number is Mrs. Mary West, 850 Elmond avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., who says: "I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for a long time. It has done me much good, giving me increased appetite which I lost through severe sickness."

Such outspoken testimony as this speaks for itself. It proves that Duffy's Pure Malt answers in every way the description of a perfectly reliable, health-giving stimulant. This is why it is so universally popular and has made friends wherever it has been introduced. For this reason insist on getting Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey when you ask for it and do not let your grocer or druggist persuade you to take an inferior imitation, which is claimed to be "very much like it" or "something just as good." There is nothing that can take its place.

WHERE SENTIMENT COMES IN.

He Explodes the Theory That Graveyards Breed Disease.

Cremation was the subject chosen by the Rev. Dr. Marsh [illegible] for his sermon [illegible] giving his [illegible] result.

Just now [illegible] the claims of cremation are knocking [illegible] of civilized races claiming [illegible] recognition by reason of the [illegible] convincing sci[illegible] is [illegible] human beings let [illegible] its claims as impartially as possible.

We shall not [illegible] give the history of cremation for it will serve no good purpose while its antiquity would only incline [illegible] prejudice us against it. We have [illegible] body burning, extending back to 187[illegible]. During that year it [illegible] must have been revived in this country and [illegible] almost simultaneously. Many of us recall the [illegible] Lemoyne crematory built at Washington Pa. some twenty years ago. [illegible] remember how Dr. Lemoyne was regarded a humanitarian [illegible] to build a place for burning dead human bodies. Within a couple of years two bodies were burned in the Lemoyne crematory and two were in[illegible] in Italy. From these insignificant beginnings the practice has rapidly [illegible] to the present. During the last nine[illegible] years about 10,000 bodies were cremated in this country and Europe. Of these 670 were burned in the United States, 2,402 in Italy, 1,067 in Germany, 6[illegible] in France, 4[illegible] in England, 9[illegible] in Sweden, 17[illegible] in Switzerland and in Denmark. In addition to the figures given for France there were [illegible] bodies [illegible] but these are not fairly figures [illegible] from the standpoint of our present considera[illegible]. There are twenty-seven crematories and cremation societies in the United States, of which three are in California, one at Los Angeles and two in San Francisco. In the number of cremations the United States is in the lead by something over 1,200 bodies.

"The indications are that cremation has now come to stay for it [illegible] all its claims on science and say what we will about it and feel as we may, science has a way of commanding respectful audience. So let us be good natured and listen to what she has to say.

For the purpose of better fitting myself to talk to you upon this gruesome subject I took occasion last Wednesday to see the entire process of cremating a body at the Odd Fellows crematory, located at their cemetery in San Francisco, this being the newest and probably the most complete institution of the kind in the world. And I wish here to record my appreciation of the kindness of a member of this congregation who is a director of that cemetery, the Hon. Charles A. Sumner, known to you in a literary way, who gave me a letter of introduction to Capt. Fletcher, the superintendent of the cemetery, through whose courtesy I was permitted to witness the process of incineration from the time the body was brought into the building until it was drawn from the furnace in the form of ash. The hearse drove up at [illegible] and it was dark when I left the building and wandered among the beautifully kept graves to the Geary street entrance. I mention this in order that you may know that I had unimproved every opportunity for the minutest observation, and in consequence know much better than the average observer whereof I speak.

"The Odd Fellows crematorium is a handsome structure of brick and granite costing some $30,000 and was completed about two months ago, since which time forty-four bodies have been burned, one-third of whom were women and two of the number children about 2 years of age. The fee charged for incineration is $30. In the East it is $[illegible]. Higher figures indicate that there is no particular advantage of this method over earth burial in matter of expense, for all the usual cost of a funeral obtains in either case, including the casket which is usually burned separately. The cremation fee simply offsets the cost of cemetery lot and head stone.

"Considered from a sanitary standpoint there is less to be said to the advantage of cremation than one would at first suppose. It has been claimed that cemeteries adjoining large cities with their thousands of decaying bodies are a menace to the living by reason of the escaping gases of decomposition and the drainage which may get into the adjoining wells of drinking water. Those who push this claim so persistently know very little about chemistry or they would discover that the purifying action of the soil by reason of the free oxygen contained in all water or damp earth oxidizes and burns up these obnoxious elements of decay as fast as they form. Were it not so there would not be a gill of water fit for drinking on earth today. Were it not true we could not produce the wholesome grains, fruits and vegetables grown upon lands heavily fertilized with all sorts of obnoxious and decaying substances, including decayed fish.

The earth is a great laboratory where the most wonderful chemical processes take place in silence and continuously, as a half hour's thought apart from this subject of burial will convince any one. We will grant that it is possible for an improperly buried body to endanger the lives of the living. But the general charge I most emphatically challenge. Those who advance this as an argument in favor of cremation should remember that cremation is not always done properly. It would be very easy with improper [illegible] to drive dense volumes of smoke from a body dead from contagious disease like small pox all over the city to the very great danger of the living. When a body is burned in a furnace constructed with a view to smokeless combustion in which perfect combustion [illegible] danger obtains. In the [illegible] the burial or cremation [illegible] is to [illegible] our argument [illegible] [illegible] things not [illegible]. When a [illegible] is an axiom from which [illegible] that matter cannot be annihilated [illegible] its form or [illegible] changed but [illegible] destroyed so that it does not exist. [illegible]

The question [illegible] is: What becomes of the body weighing [illegible] pounds which was put into the furnace? [illegible] pounds [illegible] is all that [illegible] [illegible]. But the fact is that this [illegible] of the body [illegible] burned [illegible] of any heat but the electric. When cremation process is complete [illegible] the electric [illegible] this [illegible] every particle of the body will be resolved back into its primary [illegible] elements and [illegible] will be old fashioned [illegible]. Seeing the [illegible] step and shall [illegible] cremation.

"But what became of the 1[illegible] pounds which had [illegible] in the furnace? [illegible] but [illegible] that [illegible] not destroyed for matter is indestructible. What then has become of the great bulk of the body, the 1[illegible] pounds which have disappeared? It has formed a chemical combination with oxygen, in short, it has been oxidized or burned as we say, which is converting it into a tremendous volume of carbonic acid gas and watery vapor which rises up through the smoke stack and last Wednesday the winds [illegible] and from the sea [illegible] pounds of that body, if it weighed [illegible], over San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda, mingling with and being absorbed by the [illegible] settled in our door yards, possibly some of it rested in a [illegible] upon the trees in the home from which that body was carried six hours before, and one of the sorrowing family might have [illegible] the terrible fact a sorrowing family and a [illegible] which will be one [illegible]. It matter not that little or no smoke was seen coming from the cemetery chimney. [illegible] pounds of that body tangible to the chemist passed out of that chimney in the shape of carbonic acid gas, and this gas is so real that the amount issuing from a pot of burning charcoal in a sleeping room will kill the sleeper. It cannot be seen, but it is here in sufficient potency to kill the strongest man. These gases are the food of plants. They are readily absorbed in water also. With these two facts in view it becomes apparent that one might not only be able to look at a flower containing atoms of his own father's body, but it would be possible for those atoms to get into food and drink, and this too whether the body was buried or cremated, although cremation would furnish greater [illegible] of this than earth burial. In either case whether the body was burned slowly in the ground by decomposition or rapidly in the furnace by cremation, all particles of that body, are harmless to the living under all ordinary circumstances, so we may tally them even from this standpoint. That odors are given off during the process of burning a body is amply attested by witnesses sitting at this time in this congregation who not long since lived a few blocks from the Los Angeles crematory.

ROOM FOR THE DEAD.

In this connection I would say a word about the claim that there is not room enough for burying the world's dead without infringing the rights and necessity of the living. The peoples of the past far outnumbered those living to day, and yet mother earth has taken them all kindly into her bosom without converting unnumbered millions of square miles of this earth into cemeteries. The real difficulty about insufficient cemetery room has its root in the method of conducting funerals. We have become fixed in the idea that to show proper respect for our dead we must engage a procession of black slow moving carriages drawn by horses to carry us and our dead to the cemetery. As a natural consequence cemeteries must be close to cities or the time and expense become too great to be endured. No one pretends to say that there is not room enough in the country to bury all the dead of the earth for the next 1,000 years. Such being the case the cemetery problem solves itself in this electrical age if people would but open their eyes and see. Let a cemetery be established twenty-five miles from Oakland and connected without [illegible] electric lines of cars. Let us then be bold pioneers and abandon the forbidding funeral coach drawn by horses; build a suitable funeral car for such purposes, take the precious remains right into the car with us and bear them on the wings of God's lightning way from the noise and turmoil of the city to a resting place where no steam whistles ever annoy and where the [illegible] of milk wagons do not disturb the sleep of living or dead. This funeral car should be fitted with shutters to protect those within from rude curiosity along the way, and be decorated with the symbols of Christianity such as the cross, the resurrection and [illegible] But I will not do without [illegible] material [illegible] pleasures of the world of hard [illegible]. As a matter of [illegible] should be [illegible] to [illegible] friends as to the manner and [illegible] and place of disposing of his own dead body. It matters nothing to the dead what it means, much [illegible] to the living. Then [illegible] mourning friends to take [illegible] course for themselves, the one which will [illegible] the heart the least, for to the living [illegible] all comes the same thing in the end.

It was dark in the [illegible] The hissing [illegible] in the [illegible] open as I stumbled through the dark [illegible] brightly kept. The lights [illegible] in the city. The west was still touched with a golden glory but it was almost gone. Lone mountain [illegible] and cross which crowns its summit had vanished in darkness. The winds had ceased, and a sweet [illegible] upon me as I looked first at the towering crematory chimney and then at the white [illegible] all about me. The thought came to me if I were compelled to decide tonight which road I would travel [illegible] the furnace or through the grave. The alternative was hard but at last I had almost reached a decision when the thought came to me I will make no decision but leave it to my children.

[illegible] cremation furnace. What you can imagine takes place [illegible] last Wednesday saw in part and the dreams of that troubled sleep of that night were mingled with pictures of screaming [illegible] writhing in the sulphurous flames of hell. This is the worst that I know of cremation, and to me more than offsets the picture of the cold grave worm and the carrion tooth of slow decay. Then the ashes. They are not ashes at all but brown spicules of calcined bone which often times have to be crushed and broken to get them into the conventional urn, which in the columbarium is a common copper canister. The human heart naturally recoils at any unpleasant picture of the bodies of the beloved dead, and my soul has been exceedingly tried at the glib fashion some cremationists have of parading all that is repulsive and horrible about burial. Cremation will always have its advocates and let the process stand on its merits without trying to whip us into line by wringing our heart. I have told you that two children were cremated at the Odd Fellows crematory which I visited. Commenting upon this I said to Captain Fletcher, "I care not what becomes of my clay after the spirit has taken its flight, but I recoil from the thought of a child of mine being cast into that roaring furnace." Then the man inured to open graves and others' grief, to viewing cremation furnaces agape to receive their victims, disclosed the gentle heart within him, for glancing toward his living [illegible] when [illegible] peeped a little face from the door slightly ajar, he said, "Do you know I feel just that way myself. I have never felt a tremor as I put the grown people into the furnace, but two babes! that broke me up." And there were swimming eyes and broken voice to attest the feeling in his statement. Burning the bodies of our precious dead seems so contrary to nature, so violent, so sudden. Nature's processes are slow, silent, quiet and peaceful. That mountain in Southern California was hurled down the other day with one blast of man's dynamite. With a sound of thunder it was crushed and violently destroyed. Had it been left a few thousand years God would have taken it down so gently that had you asked the waves if ever a mountain was there the lapping tide would have answered in whispers so silently sweet. I can scarce remember. So the bodies of our friends may be returned to dust in a few hours if we can bring ourselves to endure the thought of this terrible furnace, but Mother Earth would have taken the same body to her close embrace and set her little silent chemical agents carefully to work to take it down ever so tender—that form we loved that little face we kissed—gently, always gently, while time poured his healing balm upon our lacerated hearts, gently but surely bringing them round to health again and in running a parallel course in gentleness nature would at last have taken down and stored away the little material body of our loved one, that precious little temple of the Holy Ghost—and all in a way that the millions of the world's mourning ones declare satisfies the heart better. Then in the cemetery there is a sacred spot where we can go during our heart's convalescence and dream of the little form under the flowers snugly sleeping while the soul is waiting in paradise. Yes, it satisfies the average human heart better.

Sentiment! Yes, this is sentiment! But what would this world be without sentiment? Better far that a man should never have been born than to smother all sentiment and become a cold calculating bread and butter consumer who runs up figures day in and day out, eternally watching the main money chance! Everything in this world worth living for is grounded and deeply rooted in sentiment. The capacity for both happiness and sorrow

the ascension [illegible]

[illegible]

From the [illegible] of Christianity there is no [illegible] burial and [illegible]

[illegible]

The God who gathers that body in the first place from [illegible] with through food stuffs [illegible]

[illegible] are so much [illegible] shall be glad [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr. William [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the atoms of his body may have completely changed [illegible] the atoms [illegible] essential for identification here and [illegible] the resurrection [illegible] is the [illegible] consideration [illegible]. He has managed the matter thus [illegible] gently, and with [illegible] on our part [illegible] so to do.

As regards the burial service of the church which is used [illegible] this service cannot now [illegible] mode of interment in burial on land or on the sea as you will readily discover by reading the rubric [illegible] on the [illegible] page 200 of the prayer book, together with the words of commitment following, "earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." On page [illegible] there is provision for modification in case of a burial at sea. This was the church's idea of Christian burial, or has been up to this time. Jesus was so buried. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were buried in the cave of the field of Machpelah. And [illegible] Christian martyrs burned at the stake [illegible] did not forfeit their hopes of the resurrection. Christianity can assimilate cremation, but our burial service in this church cannot, and it cannot be legally used by a minister of this church acting in accordance with his ordination vows, as he will find by consulting the chancellor of his diocese. But a minister of this church can use another service as easily as any other minister can. There is no supreme canon to restrain him in this, unless he is commanded under certain circumstances not to use the prayer book service. The bishop is powerless to change this service to suit cremation as some of my ministerial brethren suppose, for he is bound by the same vows we are. The Episcopal burial service was set forth by the whole church acting in council assembled and the whole church in council assembled must change it or unmake it if it is changed or unmade. The bishop, however, can, if he choose, set forth a service of his own for use at funerals where cremation is to follow. If called upon to attend a funeral to be followed by cremation I should go and use a service of my own not unlike that used by the ministers of other churches, but not this burial service of the prayer book until the proper authorities have changed it and permit me to do so. It is my belief that it will be changed in a few years and made suitable for cremation funerals.

A certain medico-legal phase of this subject needs the immediate attention of our lawmakers. Provision should be made for an autopsy of all bodies to be cremated in order that possible evidence of poisoning or violence may not be hopelessly destroyed. The murderer Parsons, recently electrocuted in New York, when confronted with the evidence of his crime in the shape of a certificate of chemical analysis, is reported to have cursed himself that he did not have the body cremated so it could not have been disinterred and examined as it was.

THE SENTIMENT OF IT.

"Say what we will, the greatest objection to cremation in this our own generation is sentiment. While we recoil from the slow action of decay in the grave and the hard clods as they strike the coffin case bout like sledge hammers against our hearts, there is yet something worse to the average mortal in the idea of committing those we have loved—aye, do love as never in life—and who have loved us with many a fond caress—into the fire's flames of a man-made fire. In combatting this sentiment of repugnance the advocate of cremation draws gruesome pictures of the cold grave worm at work and the process of putrifaction, often spelling the latter with three letters, and in doing this he is not quite fair. To offset this harsh unkindness of the cremationist his opponent may (but seldom does) retaliate with a merciless description of body burning such as we could not decently repeat here today. Think of a piece of leather on a hot stove. How it curls up and writhes like a thing of life in pitiless torture. Then recall that the human body is encased in a leather bag, the skin, and placed on a red hot gridiron in a [illegible]

STANLEY'S SET-TO.

Reading of His Deposition About the Garcelon Trust.

HOW THE PAPERS WERE DRAWN

Begging Letter Writers Made Her Existence Almost a Misery.

DISPOSITION OF THE MONEY

The Method She Adopted to Apportion Off the Property.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Attorney Philbrook opened the case of the Bowdoin College vs. Harry P. Merritt in the United States Circuit Court today by continuing the reading of the deposition of trustee John A. Stanley, which the attorney had partially read at the last day of the proceedings.

The instrument was long. It related the giving of the $115,000 check to W. W. Foote for his client, Jas. P. Merritt, to settle any contest. He, the deponent, told how he and Mrs. Garcelon had conversed on the best manner of disposing of her property, and said that nearly all of these conversations were held in private, as Mrs. Garcelon was studiously particular that no one should know what she intended to do.

At this time she had made a will, but he advised that she make the disposition by trust. He told her to have Judge Hamilton draw up the necessary papers. She had objected to Judge Hamilton as he and Stephen Purrington had fallen out and wanted Stanley to do her legal work. The deponent asked her what she wanted to do with her estate, and she said she wanted to give her realty to endow a hospital and her personal property to Bowdoin College. Stanley advised her of the law, and told her she would have to sell the real estate and give the money instead.

It was his suggestion that six-tenths of her estate, which represented the portion of the real estate to the whole property, be given to endow the hospital and four tenths to Bowdoin.

At that time she produced a paper with the names of several people to whom she wished to give small sums; in all it amounted to $60,000. $2,000 to each was about the average amount given. She figured her estate as worth $1,200,000, and she wanted $600,000 to go to the hospital, $400,000 to Bowdoin and the rest she wanted to give away. The $60,000 to be given to friends and relatives grew until it reached about $220,000. He wanted her to give something to Miss McClellan, but she flew up and said Miss McClellan had got enough from Dr. Merritt.

Originally Harry P. Merritt was to get $2,000, but Mr. Purrington had suggested that he be given enough to buy a home, and she raised the amount to $10,000. The list was finished about the end of March. She wanted Mr. Purrington to act as one of the trustees, and asked Stanley to act as the other, but he refused. She then decided upon Frank Purrington.

"One day," so the deponent testified, "Mrs Garcelon sent for me and asked if I thought W. W. Foote an honest man. I said I would believe what he said as readily as if I had seen the thing myself. Well, she said if that was the case Frank would not do as a trustee, because Mr. Foote had told her that he had seen Frank taking a drink with Jim. The deponent said that he had suggested Captain Knowles as a trustee. The original intention was that the block at Twelfth and Madison be used as a site for the hospital, but Stephen Purrington thought that the land was worth too much and spoke of a lot on Lake street.

The will, which was probated, was drawn about the 10th or Twelfth or November. Deponent said Mrs. Garcelon was worried to death by charity mongers, and when the trust deed was drawn she had asked that a notice of it be put in the paper so that their persecutions would cease. Letters that were sent to her she would throw unopened in the waste paper basket and the servants would sort out those that came from Maine and she would read them.

Mr. Purrington came to Stanley and told him that Mrs. Garcelon wanted to pay him (the deponent) $25,000 to act as trustee, and he upon certain provisions had accepted the trust. The deponent said that he and Judge Hamilton discussed the law of 1891 and thought that it was introduced by some enemy of Mrs. Garcelon. He said that he had written in the trust deeds the names of the trustees, that Mr. Purrington had brought the papers to his office in San Francisco, and that he filled in the names and sent them back to Mrs. Garcelon. That night she signed the documents and he and Mr. Purrington took them to the Oakland Bank of Savings. At the time of the signing of the papers there was no one present except Mrs. Garcelon, Mr. Purrington, a notary public and the deponent. After the papers were signed the notary public took the acknowledgments and affixed his seal. The last page only was shown to the notary.

SHE WAS SECRETIVE.

"Had you suggested that Mrs. Garcelon invite anyone else to be present when the papers were executed?" had been asked of Mr. Stanley at the time of the taking of the deposition.

"If you can imagine a woman with a perfect passion for secrecy you have an idea of Mrs. Garcelon," he had answered. "That good woman Miss McClellan had attended some of her spiritualistic meetings and had there found out that Mrs. Garcelon had not left her anything. Well, Mrs. Garcelon thought some of us had told, and after the row she raised on this occasion and on other occasions, too, I thought it better by far not to mention to her that A, B or C be consulted in regard to any matter of business of hers."

The deponent said that Mrs. Garcelon had always thought the house was infested with spies.

The selection of trustees for the Merritt hospital was made exclusively by Mrs. Garcelon, said the defendant. No one had suggested the names of Dr. Pinkerton or Dr. Agard. She thought that the directors of the hospital should receive $5 for each meeting which they attended, as she thought they would be more apt to be present, and at her request the document was changed so as to include this.

At the time of the execution of these papers Stephen W. Purrington was the agent and manager for Mrs. Garcelon. Henry Rogers never was her agent. They were unfriendly and he never was employed to look after any of the property of Mrs. Garcelon. About August, 1891, Mrs. Garcelon said she thought that she had misunderstood Mr. Rogers, and when the will of August 11th was drawn he was called in as a witness.

At half past twelve the court adjourned until 2 o'clock. The deposition was not finished and was taken up the first thing after the lunch hour.

HE IS AN EASY GAME.

The Mayor Is Pestered by an Army of Callers.

Heavy Demands on His Check Book Are Leaving Him Poor.

The week opened at the scene of municipal battle with a new sensation. All sorts of things, commendable and reprehensible mostly the latter, have been charged to the Mayor by his political enemies and vice versa, but the latest move to render the office of "His Honor" unpleasant is the most far-reaching and damaging yet concocted. It is a plot which has disturbed Mayor Davie's peace of mind more than anything else since the time that his first vetoed ordinance was passed over his ban. It's a concerted movement to top the mayoral tip for every conceivable thing for which subscriptions are solicited.

"As it is at present," said the Mayor this morning, "there is nothing at all from a financial point of view in being Mayor and all this talk about my being willing to reduce my salary is the veriest nonsense. No one who has not been Mayor of Oakland is aware of the amount of charity expected from him and of the number of visits he receives from the impecunious horde. My salary barely leaves me enough for doughnuts and coffee after my hard day's work. I gave formal notice that I would be found in my office during business hours every day of the year, but I made a mistake in not stating just what kind of business I intended to transact.

"In the first place, there are those worthy people who are imbued with philanthropic ideas. They read in the papers that the salary of Mayor is $3000 per year and that I am here all day. What surer work could they want? They call on an average of two or three times a day and none of them understand the meaning of a negative monosylable. And how do I get off? Just look at that check book—all stubs. I suppose I've got to do it, but I can't help thinking that some of them are encouraged to come by those who think that my salary is too great.

"Then, again, there are the courtesies that must be extended to visiting officials. Saturday a councilman from Baltimore and another from Los Angeles called on me with letters of introduction from Mayors of their respective cities. What does it all mean? Carriages, suppers, incidentals, and no entertainment fund at the disposal of the Mayor. I feel almost inclined to recall my veto on the ordinance taking the power of signing requisitions from the Mayor and placing it with the chairman of the finance committee, as it takes me a big part of my time to sign requisitions on myself."

The location of the Mayor's office is such that he can not readily escape from the numerous friends of the friendless that call upon him daily. His office opens into the office of the Board of Works and also into the "Walk In" room. If his relations with the new secretary of the Board of Works were a little less strained Mr. Spaulding might occasionally call the Mayor out "on important business," just as he was reaching out for his check book, and by this means save His Honor many dollars daily. But Mr. Spaulding and the Mayor are only passing acquaintances and so there is no relief for Mr. Davie in that quarter. The only people likely to be in the "Walk in" room are people bent on the same errand as those from whom he would escape and to attempt a flight that way would be to jump from the frying pan into the fire. The only other avenue of escape is through one of the two windows and the Mayor says that the prospects of seeing the dollar tax limit passed are too inviting for him to create a desire for suicide, even in the face of the latest cloud that overshadows the Mayoral chair.

"I can't say," said the Mayor, "that my political enemies are directing all these people to me for charity, but the increase in the number is positively alarming."

Save Your Babies.

The health authorities in San Francisco say impure milk causes most infantile diseases. Now, mothers, is it advisable to buy bad or indifferent milk to save 25 cents a month, when your economy may cost you your child's health? The Jersey Milk, Cream and Butter Company of 1259 Broadway (telephone 2647) sells the purest and best. Our prices are by the month as follows: Pure rich milk, one quart, $2.25; two quarts, $4.50; three quarts, $6.50; four quarts, $8. Our butter is fresh made daily. Hadn't you better give this matter some thought?

LIBRARY COOPERATION.

Sensible Ideas Advocated by Secretary Henry F. Peterson.

The Coast Institutions Should Work Together for Mutual Benefit.

The following able article on library co-operation and specialization was prepared by Henry F. Peterson, secretary of the Oakland Free Library, and read by him at the recent meeting in San Francisco of the Library Association:

"That there should be a more friendly and fraternal relation existing between the libraries of our coast, to my mind, there is no question. We should co-operate not only in the loan and exchange of books and interchange of courtesies, but for our mutual benefit, in the purchase of books, that is in the addition of costly works. In the higher grades of literature care should be taken not to duplicate or purchase to any great extent such works as are already upon the shelves of a co-operating library.

"It would be advantageous to know what other libraries are doing, duplicating in some instances, of course, is necessary, and there are books which should be upon the shelves of all libraries but this great duplication seems an unnecessary outlay of money when the same expenditure (should we have a co-operating system) would produce greater results. Paul Leicester Ford says: "Few libraries in any town or city containing two or more libraries have failed to realize that a certain percentage of the financial force of their institutions was each year wasted, in the buying of the same books." In few cities, however, has this duplication been carried farther than in New York. Owing to the great number of libraries, and especially in the very different relations in which they stand towards the reading public, this system of indiscriminate purchasing and gathering, without regard to what other libraries are doing, has been most thoroughly in vogue. The result is that though our city expenditure for books will bear comparison with any other in America, the results bring greater satisfaction to the book sellers than to the readers and scholars.

"Of course we all recognize that a certain amount of this duplicating will always and should always exist. There are books which a single library will duplicate many times over, and so there are books which should be practically in all our libraries. As long, also, as we continue to support both circulating and reference libraries based on the different systems know as 'public,' 'free,' 'proprietary' and 'subscription,' we must expect to find all of them buying books which are demanded by public taste and so of course, placing the same works upon their shelves. But this duplication is carried far beyond any such point as these conditions necessitate and both libraries and readers suffer accordingly.

"But the evil does not end with the first excessive waste of money. If there is one great truth which the modern librarian has failed to realize it is that an unused or useless book is an actual incumbrance and injury to his library. These books have to be catalogued, classified, kept in order and kept in place, four processes which, if they could but appear in the library ledger, would prove to librarians and trustees that the expense of the books already purchased and long since fallen into disuse was seriously impairing their power to purchase new works.

"In every city there should be one library which should preserve everything, without the slightest regard to its apparent value or the current demand, and so also of course, the special libraries, such as legal, medical, and historical, must do the same within their limits. But I speak now of the libraries which are intended to supply readers rather than scholars, and so must emphasize the absolute necessity of their directing all their force and energy to seeing that the public shall have every book they want and not two copies of one book and none of another.

"Every librarian's ambition is to supply the public with books and to make them use them as far as possible. Trustees and librarians must join in eliminating what is unused or misused on the shelves, and use it by exchange or sale to strengthen both their own and other institutions. They will learn that the number of books in a library is no criterion of its value. We shall no longer have rival libraries struggling for public patronage, but a large number of small libraries, each as far as possible with a distinct mission, well filled and well catalogued, with the librarian thoroughly familiar with his own collection.

"It will be interesting to hear what J. M. Stanley of Lake Forest University has to say on this important subject: 'In this age every institution which expects to be successful must specialize. Specialization implies co-operation, for every special activity must have its compliment in other activities in order to accomplish a whole. It is gravely to be doubted whether the libraries of this country are really abreast of the age in the matter. It is as useless in this day for a library to attempt to be complete at every point as for any single man to try to master the whole range of knowledge. No matter how wealthy the library may be, it cannot be great in all departments. It must select some one department, or even some portion of one. Competent authorities have assured me that the complete literature of zoology would cost from $100,000 to $150,000, although "a good start" could be made for $25,000. In my opinion a library does not fully serve its function and does not in the highest sense of the term deserve the name of library, until it adopts some specialty, and however small the field may be, cover it with comparative thoroughness. By specialization in this way the libraries in a limited region might supplement each other so as to present to any student in any field the fullest facilities for investigation. As it is, the specialist finds the literature of his subject scattered, and often far distant from his residence. Might it not be one office of the Library Association to determine special fields for libraries which are willing to co-operate and to encourage a mutually beneficial specialization? The libraries of the Northwest, for instance, might form some alliance looking toward a complete library for the Northwest by fostering special departments for individual libraries and by encouraging exchanges. The objection which at once arises to this scheme is that most libraries cannot afford to specialize, it requiring all the available money to secure a good general collection; and in the case of public libraries it is hardly to be expected that tax payers would allow funds to go towards books which can be of little direct service to the general public. This objection is a very serious one, and perhaps, for the present, we can only hope to gain approval for the idea of co-operating specialization as the true theory, the high ideal for library workers. In the case, however, of university libraries privately endowed, there may be hope of gradually securing some practical application of this great principle of concentration and co-operation which gives such marked success to all forms of modern activity."

HOW TO DO IT.

"Mr. Chairman, I think that all libraries should make special effort to have printed catalogues for exchange, in order that it may be known what the shelves contain, but those who on account of limited means cannot afford a printed catalogue should have a complete card catalogue, which should comprise important special collections on the shelves of a co-operating library—works not in the library but which can be found elsewhere, and showing where they can be found. It has been suggested to distinguish these cards from the main catalogue, a different colored card should be used; this would be of great value to students and visitors to libraries.

"A system of loan should be inaugurated—this of course can only be arranged by the co-operation of the boards of trustees, and I would suggest, Mr. Chairman, that should it be the sense of this association that co-operation is worthy of a trial, that the different boards of trustees be made acquainted at an early date, with the action of our association tonight. The matter of specialization and taking up of special departments should also be brought to their attention, and we must receive from them a favorable reply before we can proceed. After, I think there should be a meeting to determine what departments are to be taken up by the several co-operating libraries.

"It should be the desire of every library to reach the height of its usefulness, and in order to take another step in advance in the libraries of our coast, co-operation should prevail."

NOW FOR A BIRD BATTLE

Local Sportsmen All Ready for the Opening of the Season.

Tomorrow Morning Will Witness a Lively Scene on the Marshes.

The face of President Bob Boyer of the Mallard Shooting Club shone with unusual excitement this morning. He looked a little weary, it is true, but the first man that said "duck" to him chased away all evidence of a night's rest spoiled hunting phantom teal across the Suisun marshes.

A. A. Moore was up bright and early finishing up a little law business so that he could desert his office for a day or two; Emil Nushaumer did much the same. So did W. W. Foote, Victor H. Metcalf, Thomas Bradley and Colonel Garrity.

Senator Denison will not be found by would-be employes of the Alameda electric road for the balance of the week, for along with Dr. W. H. Blood, James Landregan, Will Prather and others he will levant for the district near Mare Island tonight.

Edson F. Adams, P. E. Bowles will also go out of town so as to be in the marsh land when tomorrow's sun rises.

R. S. Leckie, with William Heltmann, Louis Gieschen, Will Slattery and George Adams are already in the San Joaquin valley, and there are others who will be missing from their usual haunts for a day or two, while there are others still who would go if they could. Among the latter is Supreme Justice Fred W. Henshaw, who was booked for somewhere near Napa, but who, at the last moment, was engaged by Chief Justice Beatty for Los Angeles, where the Supreme Court will open soon.

And all this cleaning of guns and patching up of hunting suits, and "press of business," and numerous other means of evading duty are due to the fact that th law of California says that after sunrise of October 15th all the duck, teal, mallard quail, partridge, rail and robin and whatever can be called game, can be legitimately slaughtered by all who care to blaze away at them.

Tomorrow morning the marshes around Suisun Bay will sound, resound and reverberate with a discharge of artillery, and the air will be filled with bullets, feathers and bad words. The latter will be the direct result of the hostile spirit existing between the Teal and Cordelia and the Mallard clubs regarding the right to shoot over certain preserves. Although it is not supposed that any blood will be shed, that is, human blood, still Mr. Boyer said this morning that the Mallards would be "well fortified," whatever that means.

HE'S A GOLD-BUG.

Attorney De Golia Is Off to Look After His Mine.

George de Golia leaves tonight for Montana. He goes to Bald Mountain mine, near Norriss, to look after the setting up of a complete crushing plant and will be absent two weeks.

"The mine is owned exclusively by Oaklanders," said Mr. de Golia, "and it is a bonanza, sure. It is located 12,000 feet above sea level and has turned out some of the richest ore I ever saw. I am not talking for the purpose of selling stock, for there is none to be had, but I am talking turkey. We had an offer to bond the mine for two millions, but we did not entertain the proposition. I shall be gone two weeks and shall witness the putting up of an expensive plant. That mine at Bald Mountain is the only thing that could take me away from going duck hunting, but gold goes, old boy."

SUCCESS WITH SALMON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The fall work of the fish commission will soon begin.

The commission has been unusually successful with the salmon catch on the Pacific coast this year.

In the early run over 7,750,000 eggs were collected at Beard Station, Cal., more than double the entire number taken last year.

The fall run will begin next week.

Experiments are being made looking to the introduction of the steelhead trout of the Pacific coast, a very game and edible fish, into Lakes Champlain, Huron and Superior.

JUNIOR SALVATIONISTS.

A Minority Branch of the Army Is in Operation.

Next Tuesday evening there will be a novel demonstration at the old People's Theater now occupied by the Salvation Army. The junior soldiers, little tots ranging in age from 6 to 14, will conduct the meeting and open their new hall. A large portion of the large hall has been partitioned off and will hereafter be used for the little soldiers' meetings. Many of the young warriors wear the full dress uniforms of the day and when on parade look like a pocket edition of what is seen on the streets every night. Several little officers will receive their commissions and the occasion will be taken advantage of to give the junior work a big boom.

ACME ACORNS AHEAD.

McDougall Cleverly Captures the Great Road Race.

Exciting Sport and Lots of Bloomer Wearers on the Scene.

The California Associate Cycling Club's annual road race yesterday was one of the events of the year. The honors were won by the Acme Club of this city, one of whose members, A. S. McDougall, of Pleasanton, captured the first prize. The time prize was won by J. E. Winy, of the San Jose Road Club, who went the ten miles in 26:59 2-5. The coast record is 25:15.

The Acme Club captured five of the fifteen prizes offered. The race was a remarkable one and will go down in cycling history as one of the famous events of the season of 1895. There were more than 90 entries, and the men were sent away from the High street starting line with clock work precision. The course was over the San Leandro-Haywards run, and the road throughout the race was the scene of great excitement and enthusiasm. The start was made promptly at 10.56, when the first handicap rider was sent away. From that time until 11 o'clock the men were given the signal until the scratch wheelmen were the last to depart. There was an enormous crowd about the finish opposite Haywards Villa, and McDougall, the winner, received a great ovation as he sped down the long lane on the other side of which was a dense mass of enthusiastic wheelmen.

The bloomer girl was everywhere. She wore all sorts of fantastic garb. Two or three minor accidents occurred among the wheelmen. The killing of Henry Harvey was not an incident of the race itself.

The fifteen winners of the prizes, with the position, name, club, handicap and net time of each at the finish are as follows:

1—McDougall, Acme, 2:50, 26:59 1-5.
2—Charles Birdsall, C. C. C., 3:15, 27 25 1-5.
3—R. A. Coulter, C. C. C., 3:30, 27:42.
4—H. C. Kastens, C. A. C., 2:50, 27:03.
5—Otto Reech, C. C. C., 3:15, 27:29.
6—G. H. Crafts, Acme, 1:50, 26:05 4-5.
7—R. P. Aylward, Acme, 2:05, 26:25.
8—R. H. Hammond, S. J. R. C., 2:30, 27:00
9—P. M. Lefevre, Acme, 1:50, 26 21.
10—F. L. Day, B. C. W., 1:40, 26 16.
11—Thomas Boyd, C. C. C., 3 25, 28:02.
12—E. D. Mendel, Acme, 3:00, 27.16 2-5.
13—William Reid, C. C. C., 3:00, 27.55.
14—G. Kroetz, O. C. W., 2:15, 27:11½.
15—H. J. Sears, Acme, 3:00, 27:57.

RUN DOWN AND KILLED.

Wheelman H.W. Harvey's Life Ends in a Shocking Manner.

He Fell and a Haywards Electric Car Ground Him to a Jelly.

The race of the California Associated Cycling Club yesterday was attended by an unfortunate accident which deprived Henry W. Harvey, a well-known cyclist, of his life.

The catastrophe took place about three-quarters of a mile east of San Leandro. At that point, it seems, a number of riders started to cross the track of the Oakland, San Leandro & Haywards Electric Company. Several of them did so in safety, but as soon as Harvey's wheel struck the track the young man was thrown off his wheel on to the road between both rails. At that time car No. 21 of the road was moving towards Haywards, and the motor man, S. F. Endicott, was sounding the gong as a warning to the bicyclists who thronged the road. The conductor of the car was L. F. Hill.

Suddenly the form of young Harvey on the track caught the attention of the motor man, who immediately reversed the current and applied the brakes. The momentum of the car, however, was too great to be overcome, and before Harvey could regain his feet he was run down and crushed in a horrible manner, death resulting almost immediately.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. M. King, in front of whose home it took place. She occupied a position on the porch of her residence and was watching the wheelmen as they sped along in the direction of Haywards. She saw Harvey attempt to cross the track in front of the approaching car. She also saw his wheel slip as it struck the track and pitch him down just as the car ran down upon him.

The body was placed beneath the shade of adjacent trees and then James W. Harvey, the brother of the deceased, who was one of the officers of the club race yesterday, was notified of the affair. The coroner was notified and the remains were borne to the morgue in this city.

The deceased was 21 years of age. He was in the employ of his brother, James W. Harvey, who is foreman of the Pope Manufacturing Company. The deceased had, for several years, been engaged as a trainer of wheelmen. He had handled the Columbia racing team and enjoyed the patronage of many pupils. He was a member of the California Cycling Club and resided at the Columbia hotel, No. 18 First street, San Francisco. The funeral will take place tomorrow. The inquest will be held tonight at the morgue.

A Good Man Gone.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 12.—James J. Cook, ex-chief of the United States secret service department, but of late in charge of a local detective agency, died yesterday of heart disease, aged 76 years. Cook made a wonderful record hunting down offenders against the United States laws and took an active part in suppressing the famous whiskey insurrection.

READY TO VETO IT.

The Mayor Determined About the New Tax Levy Ordinance.

He Says the City Would Be Left for Three Months in Darkness.

"It only means a few dollars more for printing," said Mayor Davie, in speaking of the tax ordinance passed Thursday night, "for when it comes back to me I shall put my veto on it."

As an earnest of what he intends to do the Mayor has sent a communication telling them plainly that he will veto any ordinance that does not comply in every respect with the apportionments as provided for by the Heitmann ordinance.

"Do You know that this business of changing five cents from the street light fund to the school fund is all a scheme?" continued the Mayor.

"Of course there is nothing so mean as walking home on a dark night without street lamps, and that is just what the majority of the Council want. They will lay it onto the $1 limit. They will hold it up before the people, telling them how they tried to have a sufficient levy to keep the city up and run it properly, but that that fellow Davie, with his niggardly ideas and a $1 tax rate, would not sign the ordinance and forced them to comply with his wishes, and how, if they had had their way no one would step into mud puddles on their way home on winter nights.

"City Attorney Pelrsol has looked into the contracts entered into by the city with the gas company for street lighting and finds it obligatory on the city to use as many lights as they used last year. "If the rate is cut down five cents," he said, "the company will continue to light the lamps now used until the street light fund is exhausted. The Mayor is mistaken if he thinks there will be a suit. The company will never go to law, for while they would undoubtedly get a judgment there would be nothing to execute on and they could never satisfy it. What they would do would be to shut off all the lights when there is no more money. Using the same number of lamps that were used last year at the price contracted for this year would amount to $64,000, or 11 cents on each dollar tax collected. Taking off five cents would leave the city for three months in total darkness."

THE STREET SERVICE.

"This business of the street superintendent kicking is all bosh," said the Mayor as he looked over the estimate. "He talks now of having spent in the vicinity of $7,000 on street sweeping. Why last year the total cost of cleaning every street in the city was only $6,310.75, and our new superintendent has used $7,000, so he claims, and there are several miles yet to clean. He practically admits that he made a mistake starting so early. He should have waited until after the first rain, when the streets would have been softer and hardly any picking would have been necessary. Heretofore the department has done with one foreman. Now they have to have four. I have allowed for street purposes about $10,000. If they can't do the work with this amount they ought to throw up their job."

"The Mayor does not know what he is talking about," said Street Superintendent Miller. "He has taken figures and says the work ought to be done for this. If he would do any scientific calculating he would find out what it costs to run this department. The streets were never half cleaned before. No wonder they did it for the amount the Mayor says they did. Roughly estimated we have spent $7,578.50 thi year on street cleaning. What he is going to do with the amount over his $6,000 is more than I know, but let him go on; he will find a sudden turn in his lane."

ELKS INCORPORATE.

They Will Care for a Burial Plot and Build a Hall.

The Elks' Rest Association has filed articles of incorporation. The association will care for the burial plot in Mountain View cemetery known as "Elks' Rest." The plot with its massive monument will be dedicated on Thanksgiving Day.

The association proposes eventually to build a hall. The capital stock is $50,000. The incorporators are O. Bemis, H. N. Sloper, C. H. Butler, C. L. Ingler and Ed. H. Benjamin.

BIDDING FOR OUR MEN.

The Olympic Club Trying to Tempt the Reliance Footballers.

The managers of the Olympic Football Club have been recently negotiating for some time to secure Capt. McMillan, Harry Walton and others of the Reliance eleven. These negotiations were brought to light last night at a meeting of the board of directors of the Reliance Club. President Fitzgerald, hearing that McMillan had been tempted to leave the Oakland club and play with the Olympics, came down from Sacramento to straighten affairs out. It seems that McMillan was offered a handsome salaried position to turn traitor.

At the meeting Messrs. Ames and Morrow were present, besides Robert Fitzgerald. McMillan was sent for. The directors stated to him that though he might be financially benefited by the change he would lose the good will of Oaklanders and thus suffer in the long run.

McMillan agreed with them and said that he would refuse all offers in the future as he had done in the past. This will be a hard blow to the Olympics, who published last night that they had secured the Oakland player.

Hot Water

In a rubber bag with a thick wool protector will keep warm for several hours. Good for no end of things—neuralgic pains, colic, toothache—most any pain is helped by heat. A hot water bag, partly filled, without the woolen bag, will keep a poultice warm—you know how desirable that is. We have a lot of bags from 2 quarts up to 4 quarts, not the best, though fair, that we will sell for 50 cents each. We have better ones. Other rubber things too.

STANLEY'S SET-TO.

Reading of His Deposition About the Carcelon Trust.

HOW THE PAPERS WERE DRAWN

Begging Letter Writers Made Her Existence Almost a Misery.

DISPOSITION OF THE MONEY

The Method She Adopted to Apportion Off the Property.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Attorney Philbrook opened the case of the Bowdoin College vs. Harry P. Merritt in the United States Circuit Court today by continuing the reading of the deposition of trustee John A. Stanley, which the attorney had partially read at the last day of the proceedings.

The instrument was long. It related the giving of the $115,000 check to W. W. Foote for his client, Jas. P. Merritt, to settle any contest. He, the deponent, told how he and Mrs. Garcelon had conversed on the best manner of disposing of her property, and said that nearly all of these conversations were held in private, as Mrs. Garcelon was studiously particular that no one should know what she intended to do.

At this time she had made a will, but he advised that she make the disposition by trust. He told her to have Judge Hamilton draw up the necessary papers. She had objected to Judge Hamilton as he and Stephen Purrington had fallen out and wanted Stanley to do her legal work. The deponent asked her what she wanted to do with her estate, and she said she wanted to give her realty to endow a hospital and her personal property to Bowdoin College. Stanley advised her of the law, and told her she would have to sell the real estate and give the money instead.

It was his suggestion that six-tenths of her estate, which represented the portion of the real estate to the whole property, be given to endow the hospital and four tenths to Bowdoin.

At that time she produced a paper with the names of several people to whom she wished to give small sums; in all it amounted to $60,000; $2,000 to each was about the average amount given. She figured her estate as worth $1,200,000, and she wanted $600,000 to go to the hospital, $400,000 to Bowdoin and the rest she wanted to give away. The $60,000 to be given to friends and relatives grew until it reached about $220,000. He wanted her to give something to Miss McClellan, but she flew up and said Miss McClellan had got enough from Dr. Merritt.

Originally Harry P. Merritt was to get $2,000, but Mr. Purrington had suggested that he be given enough to buy a home, and she raised the amount to $10,000. The list was finished about the end of March. She wanted Mr. Purrington to act as one of the trustees, and asked Stanley to act as the other, but he refused. She then decided upon Frank Purrington.

"One day," so the deponent testified, "Mrs. Garcelon sent for me and asked if I thought W. W. Foote an honest man. I said I would believe what he said as readily as if I had seen the thing myself. Well, she said if that was the case Frank would not do as a trustee, because Mr. Foote had told her that he had seen Frank taking a drink with Jim. The deponent said that he had suggested Captain Knowles as a trustee. The original intention was that the block at Twelfth and Madison be used as a site for the hospital, but Stephen Purrington thought that the land was worth too much and spoke of a lot on Lake street.

The will, which was probated, was drawn about the 10th or Twelfth or November. Deponent said Mrs. Garcelon was worried to death by charity mongers, and when the trust deed was drawn she had asked that a notice of it be put in the paper so that their persecutions would cease. Letters that were sent to her she would throw unopened in the waste paper basket and the servants would sort out those that came from Maine and she would read them.

Mr. Purrington came to Stanley and told him that Mrs. Garcelon wanted to pay him (the deponent) $25,000 to act as trustee, and he upon certain provisions had accepted the trust. The deponent said that he and Judge Hamilton discussed the law of 1891 and thought that it was introduced by some enemy of Mrs. Garcelon. He said that he had written in the trust deeds the names of the trustees, that Mr. Purrington had brought the papers to his office in San Francisco, and that he filled in the names and sent them back to Mrs. Garcelon. That night she signed the documents and he and Mr. Purrington took them to the Oakland Bank of Savings. At the time of the signing of the papers there was no one present except Mrs. Garcelon, Mr. Purrington, a notary public and the deponent. After the papers were signed the notary public took the acknowledgments and affixed his seal. The last page only was shown to the notary.

SHE WAS SECRETIVE.

"Had you suggested that Mrs. Garcelon invite anyone else to be present when the papers were executed?" had been asked of Mr. Stanley at the time of the taking of the deposition.

"If you can imagine a woman with a perfect passion for secrecy you have an idea of Mrs. Garcelon," he had answered. "That good woman Miss McClellan had attended some of her spiritualistic meetings and had there found out that Mrs. Garcelon had not left her anything. Well, Mrs. Garcelon thought some of us had told, and after the row she raised on this occasion and on other occasions, too, I thought it better by far not to mention to her that A, B or C be consulted in regard to any matter of business of hers."

The deponent said that Mrs. Garcelon had always thought the house was infested with spies.

The selection of trustees for the Meritt hospital was made exclusively by Mrs. Garcelon, said the defendant. No one had suggested the names of Dr. Pinkerton or Dr. Agard. She thought that the directors of the hospital should receive $5 for each meeting which they attended, as she thought they would be more apt to be present, and at her request the document was changed so as to include this.

At the time of the execution of these papers Stephen W. Purrington was the agent and manager for Mrs. Garcelon. Henry Rogers never was her agent. They were unfriendly and he never was employed to look after any of the property of Mrs. Garcelon. About August, 1891, Mrs. Garcelon said she thought that she had misunderstood Mr. Rogers, and when the will of August 11th was drawn he was called in as a witness.

At half past twelve the court adjourned until 2 o'clock. The deposition was not finished and was taken up the first thing after the lunch hour.

HE IS AN EASY GAME.

The Mayor Is Pestered by an Army of Callers.

Heavy Demands on His Check Book Are Leaving Him Poor.

The week opened at the scene of municipal battle with a new sensation. All sorts of things, commendable and reprehensible, mostly the latter, have been charged to the Mayor by his political enemies and vice versa, but the latest move to render the office of "His Honor" unpleasant is the most far-reaching and damaging yet concocted. It is a plot which has disturbed Mayor Davie's peace of mind more than anything else since the time that his first vetoed ordinance was passed over his ban. It is a concerted movement to top the mayoral tip for every conceivable thing for which subscriptions are solicited.

"As it is at present," said the Mayor this morning, "there is nothing at all from a financial point of view in being Mayor, and all this talk about my being willing to reduce my salary is the veriest nonsense. No one who has not been Mayor of Oakland is aware of the amount of charity expected from him and of the number of visits he receives from the impecunious horde. My salary barely leaves me enough for doughnuts and coffee after my hard day's work. I gave formal notice that I would be found in my office during business hours every day of the year, but I made a mistake in not stating just what kind of business I intended to transact.

"In the first place, there are those worthy people who are imbued with philanthropic ideas. They read in the papers that the salary of Mayor is $3000 per year and that I am here all day. What surer work could they want? They call on an average of two or three times a day and none of them understand the meaning of a negative monosylable. And how do I get off? Just look at that check book—all stubs. I suppose I've got to do it, but I can't help thinking that some of them are encouraged to come by those who think that my salary is too great.

"Then, again, there are the courtesies that must be extended to visiting officials. Saturday a councilman from Baltimore and another from Los Angeles called on me with letters of introduction from Mayors of their respective cities. What does it all mean? Carriages, suppers, incidentals, and no entertainment fund at the disposal of the Mayor. I feel almost inclined to recall my veto on the ordinance taking the power of signing requisitions from the Mayor and placing it with the chairman of the finance committee, as it takes me a big part of my time to sign requisitions on myself."

The location of the Mayor's office is such that he can not readily escape from the numerous friends of the friendless that call upon him daily. His office opens into the office of the Board of Works and also into the "Walk in" room. If his relations with the new secretary of the Board of Works were a little less strained Mr. Spaulding might occasionally call the Mayor out "on important business," just as he was reaching out for his check book, and by this means save His Honor many dollars daily. But Mr. Spaulding and the Mayor are only passing acquaintances and so there is no relief for Mr. Davie in that quarter. The only people likely to be in the "Walk in" room are people bent on the same errand as those from whom he would escape and to attempt a flight that way would be to jump from the frying pan into the fire. The only other avenue of escape is through one of the two windows and the Mayor says that the prospects of seeing the dollar tax limit passed are too inviting for him to create a desire for suicide, even in the face of the latest cloud that overshadows the Mayoral chair.

"I can't say," said the Mayor, "that my political enemies are directing all these people to me for charity, but the increase in the number is positively alarming."

Save Your Babies.

The health authorities in San Francisco say impure milk causes most infantile diseases. Now, mothers, is it advisable to buy bad or indifferent milk to save 25 cents a month, when your economy may cost you your child's health? The Jersey Milk, Cream and Butter Company of 1259 Broadway (telephone 2617) sells the purest and best. Our prices are by the month as follows: Pure rich milk, one quart, $2.25; two quarts, $4.50; three quarts, $6.50; four quarts, $8. Our butter is fresh made daily. Hadn't you better give this matter some thought?

LIBRARY COOPERATION.

Sensible Ideas Advocated by Secretary Henry F. Peterson.

The Coast Institutions Should Work Together for Mutual Benefit.

The following able article on library co-operation and specialization was prepared by Henry F. Peterson, secretary of the Oakland Free Library, and read by him at the recent meeting in San Francisco of the Library Association:

"That there should be a more friendly and fraternal relation existing between the libraries of our coast, to my mind, there is no question. We should co-operate not only in the loan and exchange of books and interchange of courtesies, but for our mutual benefit, in the purchase of books, that is in the addition of costly works. In the higher grades of literature care should be taken not to duplicate or purchase to any great extent such works as are already upon the shelves of a co-operating library.

"It would be advantageous to know what other libraries are doing, duplicating in some instances, of course, is necessary, and there are books which should be upon the shelves of all libraries, but this great duplication seems an unnecessary outlay of money when the same expenditure (should we have a co-operating system) would produce greater results. Paul Leicester Ford says: "Few libraries in any town or city containing two or more libraries have failed to realize that a certain percentage of the financial force of their institutions was each year wasted, in the buying of the same books." In few cities, however, has this duplication been carried farther than in New York. Owing to the great number of libraries, and especially in the very different relations in which they stand towards the reading public, this system of indiscriminate purchasing and gathering, without regard to what other libraries are doing, has been most thoroughly in vogue. The result is that though our city expenditure for books will bear comparison with any other in America, the results bring greater satisfaction to the book sellers than to the readers and scholars.

"Of course we all recognize that a certain amount of this duplicating will always and should always exist. There are books which a single library will duplicate many times over, and so there are books which should be practically in all our libraries. As long, also, as we continue to support both circulating and reference libraries based on the different systems know as 'public,' 'free,' proprietary' and 'subscription,' we must expect to find all of them buying books which are demanded by public taste, and so of course, placing the same works upon their shelves. But this duplication is carried far beyond any such point as these conditions necessitate and both libraries and readers suffer accordingly.

"But the evil does not end with the first excessive waste of money. If there is one great truth which the modern librarian has failed to realize it is that an unused or useless book is an actual incumbrance and injury to his library. These books have to be catalogued, classified, kept in order and kept in place, four processes which, if they could but appear in the library ledger, would prove to librarians and trustees that the expense of the books already purchased and long since fallen into disuse was seriously impairing their power to purchase new works.

"In every city there should be one library which should preserve everything, without the slightest regard to its apparent value or the current demand, and so also of course, the special libraries, such as legal, medical, and historical, must do the same within their limits. But I speak now of the libraries which are intended to supply readers rather than scholars, and so must emphasize the absolute necessity of their directing all their force and energy to seeing that the public shall have every book they want and not two copies of one book and none of another.

"Every librarian's ambition is to supply the public with books and to make them use them as far as possible. Trustees and librarians must join in eliminating what is unused or misused on the shelves, and use it by exchange or sale to strengthen both their own and other institutions. They will learn that the number of books in a library is no criterion of its value. We shall no longer have rival libraries struggling for public patronage, but a large number of small libraries, each as far as possible with a distinct mission, well filled and well catalogued, with the librarian thoroughly familiar with his own collection.

"It will be interesting to hear what H. M. Stanley of Lake Forest University has to say on this important subject: 'In this age every institution which expects to be successful must specialize. Specialization implies co-operation, for every special activity must have its compliment in other activities in order to accomplish a whole. It is gravely to be doubted whether the libraries of this country are really abreast of the age in the matter. It is as useless in this day for a library to attempt to be complete at every point as for any single man to try to master the whole range of knowledge. No matter how wealthy the library may be, it cannot be great in all departments; it must select some one department, or even some portion of one. Competent authorities have assured me that the complete literature of zoology would cost from $100,000 to $150,000, although "a good start" could be made for $25,000. In my opinion a library does not fully serve its function and does not in the highest sense of the term deserve the name of library, until it adopts some specialty, and however small the field may be, cover it with comparative thoroughness. By specialization in this way the libraries in a limited region might supplement each other so as to present to any student in any field the fullest facilities for investigation. As it is, the specialist finds the literature of his subject scattered, and often far distant from his residence. Might it not be one office of the Library Association to determine special fields for libraries which are willing to co-operate and to encourage a mutually beneficial specialization? The libraries of the Northwest, for instance, might form some alliance looking toward a complete library for the Northwest by fostering special departments for individual libraries and by encouraging exchanges. The objection which at once arises to this scheme is that most libraries cannot afford to specialize, it requiring all the available money to secure a good general collection; and in the case of public libraries it is hardly to be expected that tax payers would allow funds to go towards books which can be of little direct service to the general public. This objection is a very serious one, and perhaps, for the present, we can only hope to gain approval for the idea of co-operating specialization as the true theory, the high ideal for library workers. In the case, however, of university libraries privately endowed, there may be hope of gradually securing some practical application of this great principle of concentration and co-operation which gives such marked success to all forms of modern activity."

HOW TO DO IT.

"Mr. Chairman, I think that all libraries should make special effort to have printed catalogues for exchange, in order that it may be known what the shelves contain, but those who on account of limited means cannot afford a printed catalogue should have a complete card catalogue, which should comprise important special collections on the shelves of a co-operating library—works not in the library but which can be found elsewhere, and showing where they can be found. It has been suggested to distinguish these cards from the main catalogue, a different colored card should be used; this would be of great value to students and visitors to libraries.

"A system of loan should be inaugurated—this of course can only be arranged by the co-operation of the boards of trustees, and I would suggest, Mr. Chairman, that should it be the sense of this association that co-operation is worthy of a trial, that the different boards of trustees be made acquainted at an early date, with the action of our association tonight. The matter of specialization and taking up of special departments should also be brought to their attention, and we must receive from them a favorable reply before we can proceed. After, I think there should be a meeting to determine what departments are to be taken up by the several co-operating libraries.

"It should be the desire of every library to reach the height of its usefulness, and in order to take another step in advance in the libraries of our coast, co-operation should prevail."

NOW FOR A BIRD BATTLE

Local Sportsmen All Ready for the Opening of the Season.

Tomorrow Morning Will Witness a Lively Scene on the Marshes.

The face of President Bob Boyer of the Mallard Shooting Club shone with unusual excitement this morning. He looked a little weary, it is true, but the first man that said "duck" to him chased away all evidence of a night's rest spoiled hunting phantom teal across the Suisun marshes.

A. A. Moore was up bright and early finishing up a little law business so that he could desert his office for a day or two; Emil Nusbaumer did much the same. So did W. W. Foote, Victor H. Metcalf, Thomas Bradley and Colonel Garrity.

Senator Denison will not be found by would-be employes of the Alameda electric road for the balance of the week, for along with Dr. W. H. Blood, James Landregan, Will Prather and others he will levant for the district near Mare Island tonight.

Edson F. Adams, P. E. Bowles will also go out of town so as to be in the marsh land when tomorrow's sun rises.

R. S. Leckie, with William Heitmann, Louis Gieschen, Will Slattery and George Adams are already in the San Joaquin valley, and there are others who will be missing from their usual haunts for a day or two, while there are others still who would go if they could. Among the latter is Supreme Justice Fred W. Henshaw, who was booked for somewhere near Napa, but who, at the last moment, was engaged by Chief Justice Beatty for Los Angeles, where the Supreme Court will open soon.

And all this cleaning of guns and patching up of hunting suits, and "press of business," and numerous other means of evading duty are due to the fact that th law of California says that after sunrise of October 15th all the duck, teal, mallard, quail, partridge, rail and robin and whatever can be called game, can be legitimately slaughtered by all who care to blaze away at them.

Tomorrow morning the marshes around Suisun Bay will sound, resound and reverberate with a discharge of artillery, and the air will be filled with bullets, feathers and bad words. The latter will be the direct result of the hostile spirit existing between the Teal and Cordelia and the Mallard clubs regarding the right to shoot over certain preserves. Although it is not supposed that any blood will be shed, that is, human blood, still Mr. Boyer said this morning that the Mallards would be "well fortified," whatever that means.

HE'S A GOLD-BUG.

Attorney De Golia Is Off to Look After His Mine.

George de Golia leaves tonight for Montana. He goes to Bald Mountain mine, near Norriss, to look after the setting up of a complete crushing plant and will be absent two weeks.

"The mine is owned exclusively by Oaklanders," said Mr. de Golia, "and it is a bonanza, sure. It is located 11,000 feet above sea level and has turned out some of the richest ore I ever saw. I am not talking for the purpose of selling stock, for there is none to be had, but I am talking turkey. We had an offer to bond the mine for two millions, but we did not entertain the proposition. I shall be gone two weeks and shall witness the putting up of an expensive plant. That mine at Bald Mountain is the only thing that could take me away from going duck hunting, but gold goes, old boy."

SUCCESS WITH SALMON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The fall work of the fish commission will soon begin.

The commission has been unusually successful with the salmon catch on the Pacific coast this year.

In the early run over 7,750,000 eggs were collected at Beard Station, Cal., more than double the entire number taken last year.

The fall run will begin next week.

Experiments are being made looking to the introduction of the steelhead trout of the Pacific coast, a very game and edible fish, into Lakes Champlain, Huron and Superior.

JUNIOR SALVATIONISTS.

A Minority Branch of the Army Is in Operation.

Next Tuesday evening there will be a novel demonstration at the old People's Theater now occupied by the Salvation Army. The junior soldiers, little tots ranging in age from 6 to 14, will conduct the meeting and open their new hall. A large portion of the large hall has been partitioned off and will hereafter be used for the little soldiers' meetings. Many of the young warriors wear the full dress uniforms of the day and when on parade look like a pocket edition of what is seen on the streets every night. Several little officers will receive their commissions and the occasion will be taken advantage of to give the junior work a big boom.

ACME ACORNS AHEAD.

McDougall Cleverly Captures the Great Road Race.

Exciting Sport and Lots of Bloomer Wearers on the Scene.

The California Associate Cycling Club's annual road race yesterday was one of the events of the year. The honors were won by the Acme Club of this city, one of whose members, A. S. McDougall, of Pleasanton, captured the first prize. The time prize was won by J. E. Winy, of the San Jose Road Club, who went the ten miles in 26:59 2-5. The coast record is 25:15.

The Acme Club captured five of the fifteen prizes offered. The race was a remarkable one and will go down in cycling history as one of the famous events of the season of 1895. There were more than 90 entries, and the men were sent away from the High street starting line with clock work precision. The course was over the San Leandro-Haywards run, and the road throughout the race was the scene of great excitement and enthusiasm. The start was made promptly at 10:56, when the first handicap rider was sent away. From that time until 11 o'clock the men were given the signal until the scratch wheelmen were the last to depart. There was an enormous crowd about the finish opposite Haywards Villa, and McDougall, the winner, received a great ovation as he sped down the long lane on the other side of which was a dense mass of enthusiastic wheelmen.

The bloomer girl was everywhere. She wore all sorts of fantastic garb. Two or three minor accidents occurred among the wheelmen. The killing of Henry Harvey was not an incident of the race itself.

The fifteen winners of the prizes, with the position, name, club, handicap and net time of each at the finish are as follows:

1—McDougall, Acme, 2:50, 26:59 1-5.
2—Charles Birdsall, C. C. C., 3:15, 27:25 1-5.
3—R. A. Coulter, C. C. C., 3:36, 27:42.
4—H. C. Kastens, C. A. C., 2:50, 27:03.
5—Otto Reech, C. C. C., 3:15, 27:29.
6—G. H. Crafts, Acme, 1:50, 26:05 4-5.
7—R. P. Aylward, Acme, 2:05, 26:25.
8—R. H. Hammond, S. J. R. C., 2:30, 27:00.
9—P. M. Lefevre, Acme, 1:50, 26:21.
10—F. L. Day, B. C. W., 1:40, 26:16.
11—Thomas Boyd, C. C. C., 3:25, 28:02.
12—E. D. Mendel, Acme, 3:00, 27:46 2-5.
13—William Reid, C. C. C., 3:00, 27:55.
14—G. Kroetz, O. C. W., 2:15, 27:11½.
15—B. J. Sears, Acme, 3.00, 27:57.

RUN DOWN AND KILLED.

Wheelman H.W. Harvey's Life Ends in a Shocking Manner.

He Fell and a Haywards Electric Car Ground Him to a Jelly.

The race of the California Associated Cycling Club yesterday was attended by an unfortunate accident which deprived Henry W. Harvey, a well-known cyclist, of his life.

The catastrophe took place about three-quarters of a mile east of San Leandro. At that point, it seems, a number of riders started to cross the track of the Oakland, San Leandro & Haywards Electric Company. Several of them did so in safety, but as soon as Harvey's wheel struck the track the young man was thrown off his wheel on to the road between both rails. At that time car No. 21 of the road was moving towards Haywards, and the motor man, S. F. Endicott, was sounding the gong as a warning to the bicyclists who thronged the road. The conductor of the car was L. F. Hilt.

Suddenly the form of young Harvey on the track caught the attention of the motor man, who immediately reversed the current and applied the brakes. The momentum of the car, however, was too great to be overcome, and before Harvey could regain his feet he was run down and crushed in a horrible manner, death resulting almost immediately.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. M. King, in front of whose home it took place. She occupied a position on the porch of her residence and was watching the wheelmen as they sped along in the direction of Haywards. She saw Harvey attempt to cross the track in front of the approaching car. She also saw his wheel slip as it struck the track and pitch him down just as the car ran down upon him.

The body was placed beneath the shade of adjacent trees and then James W. Harvey, the brother of the deceased, who was one of the officers of the club race yesterday, was notified of the affair. The coroner was notified and the remains were borne to the morgue in this city.

The deceased was 24 years of age. He was in the employ of his brother, James W. Harvey, who is foreman of the Pope Manufacturing Company. The deceased had, for several years, been engaged as a trainer of wheelmen. He had handled the Columbia racing team and enjoyed the patronage of many pupils. He was a member of the California Cycling Club and resided at the Columbia hotel, No. 18 First street, San Francisco. The funeral will take place tomorrow. The inquest will be held tonight at the morgue.

A Good Man Gone.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 12.—James J. Cook, ex-chief of the United States secret service department, but of late in charge of a local detective agency, died yesterday of heart disease, aged 76 years. Cook made a wonderful record hunting down offenders against the United States laws and took an active part in suppressing the famous whiskey insurrection.

READY TO VETO IT.

The Mayor Determined About the New Tax Levy Ordinance.

He Says the City Would Be Left for Three Months in Darkness.

"It only means a few dollars more for printing," said Mayor Davie, in speaking of the tax ordinance passed Thursday night, "for when it comes back to me I shall put my veto on it."

As an earnest of what he intends to do the Mayor has sent a communication telling them plainly that he will veto any ordinance that does not comply in every respect with the apportionments as provided for by the Heitmann ordinance.

"Do you know that this business of changing five cents from the street light fund to the school fund is all a scheme?" continued the Mayor.

"Of course there is nothing so mean as walking home on a dark night without street lamps, and that is just what the majority of the Council want. They will lay it onto the $1 limit. They will hold it up before the people, telling them how they tried to have a sufficient levy to keep the city up and run it properly, but that that fellow Davie, with his niggardly ideas and a $1 tax rate, would not sign the ordinance and forced them to comply with his wishes, and how, if they had had their way no one would step into mud puddles on their way home on winter nights.

"City Attorney Pelrsol has looked into the contracts entered into by the city with the gas company for street lighting and finds it obligatory on the city to use as many lights as they used last year. "If the rate is cut down five cents," he said, "the company will continue to light the lamps now used until the street light fund is exhausted. The Mayor is mistaken if he thinks there will be a suit. The company will never go to law, for while they would undoubtedly get a judgment there would be nothing to execute on and they could never satisfy it. What they would do would be to shut off all the lights when there is no more money. Using the same number of lamps that were used last year at the price contracted for this year would amount to $63,000, or 14 cents on each dollar tax collected. Taking off five cents would leave the city for three months in total darkness."

THE STREET SERVICE.

"This business of the street superintendent kicking is all bosh," said the Mayor as he looked over the estimate. "He talks now of having spent in the vicinity of $7,000 on street sweeping. Why last year the total cost of cleaning every street in the city was only $6,319.75, and our new superintendent has used $7,000, so he claims, and there are several miles yet to clean. He practically admits that he made a mistake starting so early. He should have waited until after the first rain, when the streets would have been softer and hardly any picking would have been necessary. Heretofore the department has done with one foreman. Now they have to have four. I have allowed for street purposes about $10,000. If they can't do the work with this amount they ought to throw up their job."

"The Mayor does not know what he is talking about," said Street Superintendent Miller. "He has taken figures and says the work ought to be done for this. If he would do any scientific calculating he would find out what it costs to run this department. The streets were never half cleaned before. No wonder they did it for the amount the Mayor says they did. Roughly estimated we have spent $7,578.50 this year on street cleaning. What he is going to do with the amount over his $6,000 is more than I know, but let him go on; he will find a sudden turn in his lane."

ELKS INCORPORATE.

They Will Care for a Burial Plot and Build a Hall.

The Elks' Rest Association has filed articles of incorporation. The association will care for the burial plot in Mountain View cemetery known as "Elks' Rest." The plot with its massive monument will be dedicated on Thanksgiving Day.

The association proposes eventually to build a hall. The capital stock is $50,000. The incorporators are O. Bemis, H. N. Sloper, C. H. Butler, C. L. Ingler and Ed. H. Benjamin.

BIDDING FOR OUR MEN.

The Olympic Club Trying to Tempt the Reliance Footballers.

The managers of the Olympic Football Club have been recently negotiating for some time to secure Capt. McMillan, Harry Walton and others of the Reliance eleven. These negotiations were brought to light last night at a meeting of the board of directors of the Reliance Club. President Fitzgerald, hearing that McMillan had been tempted to leave the Oakland club and play with the Olympics, came down from Sacramento to straighten affairs out. It seems that McMillan was offered a handsome salaried position to turn traitor.

At the meeting Messrs. Ames and Morrow were present, besides Robert Fitzgerald. McMillan was sent for. The directors stated to him that though he might be financially benefited by the change he would lose the good will of Oaklanders and thus suffer in the long run.

McMillan agreed with them and said that he would refuse all offers in the future as he had done in the past. This will be a hard blow to the Olympics, who published last night that they had secured the Oakland player.

Hot Water

In a rubber bag with a thick wool protector will keep warm for several hours. Good for no end of things—neuralgic pains, colic, toothache—most any pain is helped by heat. A hot water bag, partly filled, without the woolen bag, will keep a poultice warm—you know how desirable that is. We have a lot of bags from 2 quarts up to 4 quarts, not the best, though fair, that we will sell for 50 cents each. We have better ones. Other rubber things too.

HOPE NOT ALL GONE,

The Fighters Still Think They Can Pull Off the Contest.

GOVERNOR CLARKE'S ACTION.

He Is not Personally Opposed to Permitting the Encounter.

PRESSURE BROUGHT TO BEAR.

New Laredo Wants the Event to Be Held in the Bull Ring.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 12.—Governor Clarke's letters to Judge Duffie, Sheriff Houpt and Dan Stuart, together with the telegrams to Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons, given the public by the Associated Press exclusively last night, are the subject of much discussion here today.

The sentiment here and at Hot Springs is overwhelmingly in favor of the contest.

It is well known that personally Governor Clarke is not violently opposed to the proposed contest.

He is quoted as having said recently that seven-tenths of the people of Arkansas want it, that two-tenths were indifferent, and all the clamor against it came from the other tenth of the population.

When Judge Duffie brought the matter to the governor's attention, officially however, he was obliged to act and at once began a close investigation of his authority.

He discovered that the act of 1891, making prize fighting a felony, never passed.

The two houses could not agree and the bill was sent to the conference committee.

When the report was presented to the House it was adopted simply by viva voce vote, the ayes and nays not having been called.

As the law of 1893 sought to amend this act, it would seem there is no law on the subject of prize fighting in this State.

The law relating to riots, unlawful assemblages, etc., passed in 1893, could perhaps be brought into requisition to cover the case should the governor deem it necessary to go to extreme measures

By this law the governor is authorized to call out the militia without waiting for a request for assistance from the local authorities, and is empowered to expel with force all disturbers of the peace.

In this connection it is an interesting fact that since the legislature refused to appropriate money for the maintenance of the State militia nearly every company of citizen soldiers in the State has disbanded.

The more enthusiastic advocates of the prize fight have not lost confidence in the Hot Springs committee and believe the match will be brought off.

Governor Clarke's pronunciamento against the fight seems to have had little effect on matters at Hot Springs.

The indications are that the fight will be brought off October 31st.

It is estimated 40,000 people will come to the State to attend the fight, including many men of wealth.

LAREDO WANTS IT.

AUSTIN Tex., Oct. 12.—A well known sporting man in this city says there is but one place on the American continent where the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight can be pulled off, and that is New Laredo, Mexico.

He adds that some three weeks ago the Florida Athletic Club signed papers to have the fight in the bull ring at New Laredo and up to this hour have not asked for a release from the contract.

P. Z. Nauman has been cited to appear next Monday in the Superior court and show cause why he has not obeyed an order to contribute $40 a month to the support of his family and $100 to his wife for counsel fees in her action against him for support and maintenance which was recently commenced.

PLUMBERS FALL OUT.

John Bohan Gives Some Corbett Punches to W. H. Penny.

"A bill of $7," said W. H. Penny, a Berkeley plumber, to John Bohan, an Oaklander in the same business, with a store at Ninth and Washington streets.

Penney explained. Bohan objected. Penney insisted. Bohan resisted. Biff, and Penney's nose got between Bohan's right fist and daylight Boom, and his eye stopped the Oaklander's left.

"I fell then," said the Berkeleyan as he explained to Prosecuting Attorney Moore how it happened, " and he rolled me out of the shop."

Penney wore a nose that was large and red and a pair of discolored eyes, which he referred to to corroborate his tale, and Mr. Moore issued a complaint against Bohan on a charge of battery.

A MAMMOTH SCHEME.

The Mayor Said to Be in Favors of Two Million Dollars City Bonds.

Private Secretary to the Mayor and City Expert Kaufman hints that the Mayor has an ultimate object in view in fixing the rate at $1. It is to show the people how cheaply the city can be run and then, after he has clearly demonstarted that a dollar rate is amply sufficient, to spring on them gently the proposition to bond the city for $2,000,000 to build a city hall, improve parks and make new ones and to otherwise improve the city throughout.

The Mayor, when asked about it, said, "Too far to look ahead, altogether to far. Let us try the dollar rate first and see how it works."

HIT THE WRONG MAN.

Four Fellows Attack Al. Lean Greatly to Their Sorrow.

Professor Al Lean of the Acme Athletic Club, had an experience last night which maintained the reputation he has achieved, not alone as an athlete, but as one skilled to defend himself against people with malevolent and misguided purposes.

Last night, while passing along San Pablo avenue, in company with his wife and a lady friend of hers, he was insulted and assaulted by a quartet of young men who stood near the Juanita hotel. He held his ground, however, pitched one of the assailants into the street, stove in the rib of a second, laid a third one out with a blow on the face, and then the fourth beat a retreat to a place of safety. The names of two of the assailants are said to be F. Cavozia and "Young" Ainsworth.

RUMOR OF A MURDER.

An Authenticated Sensation Reaches the Police Station.

Chief Lloyd said today that he had received an intimation that a murder had been committed some place on San Pablo avenue, either last night or early this morning. He did not, however, attach much importance to the story.

Detectives were sent out to run down the story, but without success. The Tribune made inquiries at all available news centers between this city and San Pablo, and beyond to Martinez, without, however, being able to discover any clew to a muderous affray, much less to a case of murder.

It is believed that the rumor of the murder grew out of the assault made on Al Lean on San Pablo avenue last night.

Taylor Is Lucky.

PIERRE, S. D., Oct. 12.—The Supreme court today handed down a decision in the case of W. W. Taylor, the defaulting State Treasurer. The sentence is cut down to two years, and is to begin August 14th.

SHE IS A FOOLISH FLIRT.

So Judge Ellsworth Decides in the Case of Mrs. Mamie Steele.

She Secures Her Divorce but Gets a Good Scathing From the Court.

Judge Ellsworth gave Mrs. Mamie Steele a divorce this morning from her husband, John G. Steele, but Mrs. Steele passed a few unpleasant moments while the judge was giving his decision in the case.

Mrs. Steele may fairly be called a flirt according to Judge Ellsworth's view of the situation as expressed in his decision. He said he had no doubt that she was a very indiscreet woman. She had a jealous husband, but her actions were such that he was jealous not without some reason.

Judge Ellsworth remarked that the testimony had been as conflicting as it usually was in divorce cases, and it was a hard matter to determine the truth. After noting that Mrs Steele's conduct was sufficient to give grounds for jealousy, he continued. "The evidence here has been sufficient to establish that the plaintiff has been a very indiscreet woman. She certainly was indiscreet when she visited the living apartments of Hoffman the Sixteenth street cobbler. She stayed there a long while, and while I believe that no actions of a criminal nature have been proven, yet the affair was decidedly calculated with her other conduct to annoy, harass and render her husband jealous.

"He was not justified in treating his wife as she and her mother testify. The testimony seems corroborated that he did use some violence on each of them and there are circumstances to show that he threatened the plaintiff with a razor.

"I think the plaintiff may fairly be called a foolish flirt. The testimony of Winkler, who said he saw her wave her handkerchief at Twelfth and Center streets to a Twelfth street car conductor I believe is true. She did this behind her husband's back. The testimony is sufficient, I believe, to warrant a decree for the plaintiff on the ground of cruelty."

The boy in the case was awarded to the mother temporarily, and Judge Ellsworth admonished her not to poison the child's mind against its father. He will be permitted to see it on Sundays from 2 to 4 P. M. He will pay $10 a month toward its support. Judge Ellsworth warned Mrs. Steele that he would not tolerate any trifling with the order of the court.

Before the case was concluded this morning A. G. Briggs, formerly superintendent of the East Oakland Electric Railway Company, denied that he had ever eaten dinner at Barnum's with Mrs. Steele or that he had more than a passing business acquaintance with her, fostered to some extent by occasional calls at the store two years ago while superintendent of the road.

OF INTEREST TO SUFFERERS

Case of Mr. Henry Schrag, Proprietor Club Stables, Fourteenth and Webster Streets.

OAKLAND, Sept. 14th, 1895.

Six years ago I was taken suddenly ill with a lame back and consulted Dr. Mayer, Dr. Simond, Dr. Williams, Dr. Leo Newmark and Dr. J. W. Robertson, all of San Francisco, but their treatment did not benefit me any.

I then went to the Byron Hot Springs, remained there six weeks and still no relief.

After thus having doctored for six long years I tried, as a last resort, an electric chain invented by Dr. J. M. Wulff, and now, after having used the same since August 8th, I feel that I finally found a remedy that has so far done me that much good that I can walk straight again and attend to my business, which I have not been able to do for the last two years, and I have not the slightest doubt that by conscientiously following the doctor's instructions I will ultimately get entirely cured. The relief I have had so far is far beyond what I ever expected.

I know and feel that the doctor has done wonders for me.

Very truly,
HENRY SCHRAG.

Upon the wish of Mr. Henry Schrag we, the undersigned, testify that the above statement is in every respect the true facts.

The Fighters Still Think They Can Pull Off the Contest.

GOVERNOR CLARKE'S ACTION.

He Is not Personally Opposed to Permitting the Encounter.

PRESSURE BROUGHT TO BEAR.

New Laredo Wants the Event to Be Held in the Bull Ring.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 12.—Governor Clarke's letters to Judge Duffie, Sheriff Houpt and Dan Stuart, together with the telegrams to Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons, given the public by the Associated Press exclusively last night, are the subject of much discussion here today.

The sentiment here and at Hot Springs is overwhelmingly in favor of the contest.

It is well known that personally Governor Clarke is not violently opposed to the proposed contest.

He is quoted as having said recently that seven-tenths of the people of Arkansas want it, that two-tenths were indifferent, and all the clamor against it came from the other tenth of the population.

When Judge Duffie brought the matter to the governor's attention, officially however, he was obliged to act and at once began a close investigation of his authority.

He discovered that the act of 1891, making prize fighting a felony, never passed.

The two houses could not agree and the bill was sent to the conference committee.

When the report was presented to the House it was adopted simply by viva voce vote, the ayes and nays not having been called.

As the law of 1893 sought to amend this act, it would seem there is no law on the subject of prize fighting in this State.

The law relating to riots, unlawful assemblages, etc., passed in 1893, could perhaps be brought into requisition to cover the case should the governor deem it necessary to go to extreme measures.

By this law the governor is authorized to call out the militia without waiting for a request for assistance from the local authorities, and is empowered to expel with force all disturbers of the peace.

In this connection it is an interesting fact that since the legislature refused to appropriate money for the maintenance of the State militia nearly every company of citizen soldiers in the State has disbanded.

The more enthusiastic advocates of the prize fight have not lost confidence in the Hot Springs committee and believe the match will be brought off.

Governor Clarke's pronunciamento against the fight seems to have had little effect on matters at Hot Springs.

The indications are that the fight will be brought off October 31st.

It is estimated 40,000 people will come to the State to attend the fight, including many men of wealth.

LAREDO WANTS IT.

AUSTIN Tex., Oct. 12.—A well known sporting man in this city says there is but one place on the American continent where the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight can be pulled off, and that is New Laredo, Mexico.

He adds that some three weeks ago the Florida Athletic Club signed papers to have the fight in the bull ring at New Laredo and up to this hour have not asked for a release from the contract.

PLUMBERS FALL OUT.

John Bohan Gives Some Corbett Punches to W. H. Penny.

"A bill of $7," said W. H. Penny, a Berkeley plumber, to John Bohan, an Oaklander in the same business, with a store at Ninth and Washington streets.

Penney explained. Bohan objected. Penney insisted. Bohan resisted. Biff, and Penney's nose got between Bohan's right fist and daylight. Boom, and his eye stopped the Oaklander's left.

"I fell then," said the Berkeleyan as he explained to Prosecuting Attorney Moore how it happened, "and he rolled me out of the shop."

Penney wore a nose that was large and red and a pair of discolored eyes, which he referred to to corroborate his tale, and Mr. Moore issued a complaint against Bohan on a charge of battery.

The Mayor Said to Be in Favors of Two Million Dollars City Bonds.

Private Secretary to the Mayor and City Expert Kaufman hints that the Mayor has an ultimate object in view in fixing the rate at $1. She Secures Her Divorce but Gets a Good Scathing From the Court.

Judge Ellsworth gave Mrs. Mamie Steele a divorce this morning from her husband, John G. Steele, but Mrs. Steele passed a few unpleasant moments while the judge was giving his decision in the case.

Mrs. Steele may fairly be called a flirt according to Judge Ellsworth's view of the situation as expressed in his decision. He said he had no doubt that she was a very indiscreet woman. She had a jealous husband, but her actions were such that he was jealous not without some reason.

Judge Ellsworth remarked that the testimony had been as conflicting as it usually was in divorce cases, and it was a hard matter to determine the truth. After noting that Mrs. Steele's conduct was sufficient to give grounds for jealousy, he continued. "The evidence here has been sufficient to establish that the plaintiff has been a very indiscreet woman. She certainly was indiscreet when she visited the living apartments of Hoffman the Sixteenth street cobbler. She stayed there a long while, and while I believe that no actions of a criminal nature have been proven, yet the affair was decidedly calculated with her other conduct to annoy, harass and render her husband jealous.

"He was not justified in treating his wife as she and her mother testify. The testimony seems corroborated that he did use some violence on each of them and there are circumstances to show that he threatened the plaintiff with a razor.

"I think the plaintiff may fairly be called a foolish flirt. The testimony of Winkler, who said he saw her wave her handkerchief at Twelfth and Center streets to a Twelfth street car conductor I believe is true. She did this behind her husband's back. The testimony is sufficient, I believe, to warrant a decree for the plaintiff on the ground of cruelty."

The boy in the case was awarded to the mother temporarily, and Judge Ellsworth admonished her not to poison the child's mind against its father. He will be permitted to see it on Sundays from 2 to 4 P. M. He will pay $10 a month toward its support. Judge Ellsworth warned Mrs. Steele that he would not tolerate any trifling with the order of the court.

Before the case was concluded this morning A. G. Briggs, formerly superintendent of the East Oakland Electric Railway Company, denied that he had ever eaten dinner at Barnum's with Mrs. Steele or that he had more than a passing business acquaintance with her, fostered to some extent by occasional calls at the store two years ago while superintendent of the road.

MUNYON'S

GREAT TEST BEGINS.

2187 Persons Suffering From Rheumatism Call for a Free Sample of Munyon's Guaranteed Cure.

The Results From Each Case Will be Published by the Tribune as the Investigation Goes On.

Distribution Continued Tuesday Morning, Beginning at 9 o'clock, at the Enquirer Office.

Today from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M. the Enquirer office was crowded with citizens of Oakland and surrounding towns who wished to obtain a free sample of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure.

The throng was composed of people from all the walks of life. The banker, minister, mechanic and miner, one just as anxious as the other to obtain relief from the dread disease. During the day could be seen on the streets, in the stores cars and offices, men and women carefully counting out their dose of the wonderful little pellets, fearful that they should miss one hour in the forty-eight in which time Munyon's Remedy is guaranteed to cure.

Professor Munyon's representative was seen this morning and, in answer to a reporter's inquiries, said: "We have no doubt whatever as to the result of the test, having passed through the most searching investigations in Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Washington, Pittsburg, Cleveland, St. Louis, Rochester, Buffalo, Toledo, Chicago, St. Paul, and Minneapolis, Denver, Kansas City and Salt Lake, made by the leading papers in those cities, and in no case have we failed to cure less than 91 out of every 100 who used the remedies as directed. "Oh, yes," he remarked, "this company puts up a cure 'for every disease just as offensious as this one, and by the time this investigation is finished we expect to have at least 20,000 people in Oakland converted to this school of medicine."

Munyon's Remedies are radically different from those used by the regular school of homeopathy. There is no experimenting, no guess work, no danger, no loss of time. If you have a disease Munyon has a cure.

His remedies are sold by all druggists, mostly at 25 cents, and may save your life. Try them.

OF INTEREST TO SUFFERERS

Case of Mr. Henry Schrag, Proprietor Club Stables, Fourteenth and Webster Streets.

OAKLAND, Sept. 14th, 1895.

Six years ago I was taken suddenly ill with a lame back and consulted Dr. Mayer, Dr. Simond, Dr. Williams, Dr. Leo Newmark and Dr. J. W. Robertson, all of San Francisco, but their treatment did not benefit me any.

I then went to the Byron Hot Springs, remained there six weeks and still no relief.

After thus having doctored for six long years I tried, as a last resort, an electric chain invented by Dr. J. M. Wulff, and now, after having used the same since August 8th, I feel that I finally found a remedy that has so far done me that much good that I can walk straight again and attend to my business, which I have not been able to do for the last two years, and I have not the slightest doubt that by conscientiously following the doctor's instructions I will ultimately get entirely cured. The relief I have had so far is far beyond what I ever expected.

I know and feel that the doctor has done wonders for me.

Very truly,
HENRY SCHRAG.

Upon the wish of Mr. Henry Schrag we, the undersigned, testify that the above statement is in every respect the true facts.

DIXEY'S CLEVER SHOW.

An Enjoyable Entertainment Assured Tonight at the Macdonough.

The Oakland Will Give a Choice Production of "The White Slave."

Henry E. Dixey, in his inimitable impersonations of eminent lights of the theatrical world and his selected specialties from some of his famous plays will be the attraction this evening at the Macdonough theater. The entertainment throughout is replete with novelties and will prove a rare and interesting performance. Dixey will present two of his sketches, the barber shop scene and the country girl from "Adonis," while the finale of the "Seven Ages" will be another feature of the programme. Dixey on his tour has with him a very excellent company, which will add to the attractions of the bill. There will be a big house, for the programme is first-class and prices have been fixed at popular rates.

TRILBY.

"Trilby," the reigning theatrical sensation, will be seen at the Macdonough Theater, Oakland, next Monday and Tuesday nights, with Tuesday matinee, being presented by A. M. Palmer's stock company and a magnificent outfit of scenery and costumes. The production and company will be in every respect the same as now at the Baldwin Theater, San Francisco, which achieved such phenomenal success in the way of artistic triumphs and immense patronage. Everybody has heard of "Trilby," and everybody hereabouts at all interested in the drama or literature will want to see the play when produced under favorable conditions as those of Manager A. M. Palmer's company.

THE WHITE SLAVE.

Last night's house at the Oakland was a packed one. There was "standing room only" when the curtain arose on the first act of "The Fire Patrol," which will be succeeded this evening by "The White Slave," Bartley Campbell's magnificent masterpiece. This will be the first production of the great drama for a number of years. The play is founded upon incidents that occurred during the dark slavery days and portrays the cruelty of that form of life, especially to those whose blood was even slightly intermingled with that of the black man. The drama is a strong picture. The scenic effects will be in harmony with the other attractions ample to form a satisfactory whole. The Acme quartette will render musical numbers. May Nannary is cast for "Lisa." The strong company is well distributed and will form a good support.

A MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Next Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium will be held the first rehearsal of the Oakland chorus for the great festival concerts next month in aid of the Children's Hospital of San Francisco. Invitation is extended to singers to attend these rehearsals, since it is desired that the contingent from this city be representative. The production of notable choral works by a chorus of twelve hundred, supported by an orchestra of sixty professional musicians, will mark an epoch in the musical history of this coast.

PURE MILK.

The New York Condensed Company Is a Splendid Concern.

The employes of the New York Milk Company, to the number of 450, recently held their annual outing at the company's works at Walden, New York. To make this possible, the 50,000 patrons of the company in New York City were obliged to take a two-days' supply of milk on Wednesday.

The outing included an inspection of the company's plant at Walden, which consists of five buildings, where the milk is received, bottled for the city trade or condensed. The plant contains marvels of machinery, but the absolute cleanliness of the place is the most noticeable characteristic. Both the grounds and the factories are scrupulously clean. The company manufactures its own cans, one machine turning out 75,000 in ten hours. The monstrous vacuum pans and the bottling machines are objects of great interest to visitors, and the whole process of preparing the milk for consumption is highly interesting. The reading room was yesterday converted into a dining room, where some 400 of the party sat down to dinner.

GREAT FIGHTERS.

Tom King, Tom Hyor and Tom Sayers, John C. Heenan, John Morrissey and John L. Sullivan.

The three Toms fought under British colors, while the three Johns fought under the Stars and Stripes. The history of pugilism does not record greater fighters than the above named.

Scores of other fighters, some of them good ones, have sprung up since the days of Heenan and Sayers, but most of them, with the exception of Sullivan, were glove hitters.

Corbett, no doubt, could make a good record with his bare fists but he never has had a chance. Peter Jackson and Corbett should be pitted against each other in regular fisticuffs but they never will.

It is doubtful whether Corbett and Fitzsimmons ever come together but when it comes to knocking out high prices in fine dress suits made to order, Z. C. Angevine is conceded the champion of the world. His record for fine dress suits made from the best cloth known to the trade is only twenty-two dollars. For seventeen dollars and a half he will make you a splendid cutaway or sack suit and his twelve dollar and a half suits are already the talk of the town. These twelve dollar and half suits are made to order and cannot be duplicated for less than eighteen or twenty dollars at any other house. Angevine, Gradman & Company are located at nine hundred and sixty Broadway and if you will call and examine their goods you can't help but buy them, for their good qualities and low price has resulted in eighty-seven suits being made to order within the past twelve days.

Family Skeletons.

They are always ready to pop out of the closet. In today's Town Talk a whole procession of these gaunt witnesses file past the reader and they are graphically described by the Saunterer. Variety is the spice of Town Talk's life. Between its covers this week is a most entertaining pot-pourri of events in the social, musical, political, dramatic and other worlds. All the latest society news is reviewed, the editorials are solidly comprehensive, the departments are up to date, and, in short, you can get more good, lively reading for the money than in any other weekly on the news stands. The Holbrook-Knight wedding is described and announcements of other weddings made, including that of Oakland's two popular young people, Miss Priest and Mr. Fine. The Saunterer this week finds considerable to censure, but also something to praise. He claims to be at least reliable and impartial in his comments upon people about town. He does not expect to please wrong-doers when he holds the mirror up to them. There is a war-love poem in today's issue, also verse by local poets, a fin-de-siecle sketch by Ella M. Sexton, "The Lady and the Latch Key," and a host of other things that will interest the reader. The Santa Barbara letter, a Portland letter, letters from divers places, in fact, are in evidence in Town Talk of today—the brightest journal on sale in California.

Above all others, SPERRY'S FAMILY FLOUR.

DIXEY'S CLEVER SHOW.

An Enjoyable Entertainment Assured Tonight at the Macdonough.

The Oakland Will Give a Choice Production of "The White Slave."

Henry E. Dixey, in his inimitable impersonations of eminent lights of the theatrical world and his selected specialties from some of his famous plays will be the attraction this evening at the Macdonough theater. The entertainment throughout is replete with novelties and will prove a rare and interesting performance. Dixey will present two of his sketches, the barber shop scene and the country girl from "Adonis," while the finale of the "Seven Ages" will be another feature of the programme. Dixey on his tour has with him a very excellent company, which will add to the attractions of the bill. There will be a big house, for the programme is first-class and prices have been fixed at popular rates.

TRILBY.

"Trilby," the reigning theatrical sensation, will be seen at the Macdonough Theater, Oakland, next Monday and Tuesday nights, with Tuesday matinee, being presented by A. M. Palmer's stock company and a magnificent outfit of scenery and costumes. The production and company will be in every respect the same as now at the Baldwin Theater, San Francisco, which achieved such phenomenal success in the way of artistic triumphs and immense patronage. Everybody has heard of "Trilby," and everybody hereabouts at all interested in the drama or literature will want to see the play when produced under favorable conditions as those of Manager A. M. Palmer's company.

THE WHITE SLAVE.

Last night's house at the Oakland was a packed one. There was "standing room only" when the curtain arose on the first act of "The Fire Patrol," which will be succeeded this evening by "The White Slave," Bartley Campbell's magnificent masterpiece. This will be the first production of the great drama for a number of years. The play is founded upon incidents that occurred during the dark slavery days and portrays the cruelty of that form of life, especially to those whose blood was even slightly intermingled with that of the black man. The drama is a strong picture. The scenic effects will be in harmony with the other attractions ample to form a satisfactory whole. The Acme quartette will render musical numbers. May Nannary is cast for "Lisa." The strong company is well distributed and will form a good support.

A MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Next Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium will be held the first rehearsal of the Oakland chorus for the great festival concerts next month in aid of the Children's Hospital of San Francisco. Invitation is extended to singers to attend these rehearsals, since it is desired that the contingent from this city be representative. The production of notable choral works by a chorus of twelve hundred, supported by an orchestra of sixty professional musicians, will mark an epoch in the musical history of this coast.

PURE MILK.

The New York Condensed Company Is a Splendid Concern.

The employes of the New York Milk Company, to the number of 450, recently held their annual outing at the company's works at Walden, New York. To make this possible, the 50,000 patrons of the company in New York City were obliged to take a two-days' supply of milk on Wednesday.

The outing included an inspection of the company's plant at Walden, which consists of five buildings, where the milk is received, bottled for the city trade or condensed. The plant contains marvels of machinery, but the absolute cleanliness of the place is the most noticeable characteristic. Both the grounds and the factories are scrupulously clean. The company manufactures its own cans, one machine turning out 75,000 in ten hours. The monstrous vacuum pans and the bottling machines are objects of great interest to visitors, and the whole process of preparing the milk for consumption is highly interesting. The reading room was yesterday converted into a dining room, where some 400 of the party sat down to dinner.

GREAT FIGHTERS.

Tom King, Tom Hyer and Tom Sayers, John C. Heenan, John Morrissey and John L. Sullivan.

The three Toms fought under British colors, while the three Johns fought under the Stars and Stripes. The history of pugilism does not record greater fighters than the above named.

Scores of other fighters, some of them good ones, have sprung up since the days of Heenan and Sayers, but most of them, with the exception of Sullivan, were glove hitters.

Corbett, no doubt, could make a good record with his bare fists but he never has had a chance. Peter Jackson and Corbett should be pitted against each other in regular fisticuffs but they never will.

It is doubtful whether Corbett and Fitzsimmons ever come together but when it comes to knocking out high prices in fine dress suits made to order, Z. C. Angevine is conceded the champion of the world. His record for fine dress suits made from the best cloth known to the trade is only twenty-two dollars. For seventeen dollars and a half he will make you a splendid cutaway or sack suit and his twelve dollar and a half suits are already the talk of the town. These twelve dollar and half suits are made to order and cannot be duplicated for less than eighteen or twenty dollars at any other house. Angevine, Gradman & Company are located at nine hundred and sixty Broadway and if you will call and examine their goods you can't help but buy them, for their good qualities and low price has resulted in eighty-seven suits being made to order within the past twelve days.

Family Skeletons.

They are always ready to pop out of the closet. In today's Town Talk a whole procession of these gaunt witnesses file past the reader and they are graphically described by the Saunterer. Variety is the spice of Town Talk's life. Between its covers this week is a most entertaining pot-pourri of events in the social, musical, political, dramatic and other worlds. All the latest society news is reviewed, the editorials are solidly comprehensive, the departments are up to date, and, in short, you can get more good, lively reading for the money than in any other weekly on the news stands. The Holbrook-Knight wedding is described and announcements of other weddings made, including that of Oakland's two popular young people, Miss Priest and Mr. Fine. The Saunterer this week finds considerable to censure, but also something to praise. He claims to be at least reliable and impartial in his comments upon people about town. He does not expect to please wrong-doers when he holds the mirror up to them. There is a warlove poem in today's issue, also verse by local poets, a fin-de-siecle sketch by Ella M. Sexton; "The Lady and the Latch Key," and a host of other things that will interest the reader. The Santa Barbara letter, a Portland letter, letters from divers places, in fact, are in evidence in Town Talk of today—the brightest journal on sale in California.

Above all others, SPERRY'S FAMILY FLOUR.

MONDAY.....OCTOBER 14, 1895

Of course the Turks lay all the blame of the recent massacres on the Armenians. If they would only submit peaceably to be killed all would be well. The vexation of the Turks is that just now there are complications growing out of the Armenian disturbances that are assuming international importance. That is what displeases the Sultan and the more so that there are powerful fleets anchored near enough to enforce any demand the allied powers might make.

This little incident is good enough to be redeemed from the waste basket. Tid Bits is responsible for it: "For some time past Queen Marguerite has been very much concerned at the extraordinary rapidity with which the hair of King Humbert has been whitening. What could she do? Womanlike, she saw only one remedy—hair dye—and she suggested the idea to the King. But his majesty objected to being rejuvenated by any such process. One of her relatives, a young prince, suggested strategy. He knew, he said of a splendid colorless dye which she could place on the dressing table of the King, and he would use it without thinking as an ordinary hair wash. But his majesty got wind of the affair and laid a counterplot. The Queen had a little white dog with long hair. He inveigled it into his dressing room, applied the famous hair dye and turned the dog into her majesty's apartments in a coat of splendid jet black."

Three great religious convocations have been held during the last ten days in this country. There was the great Eucharistic convocation at Washington where the notable men of the Catholic church deliberated on many weighty matters. There was the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church at Minneapolis, where nearly all the bishops of that church assembled and many other notable divines, as well as laymen. That convention created the diocese of Southern California, a matter of special interest to churchmen in this State. Then there was the triennial convention of the Congregational churches at Syracuse, where a large number of notable men of that denomination dealt with many important interests. Aside from purely religious questions, it is to be noted that all these great assemblies brought under review some of the great educational interests of the country. The influence exerted by these distinguished bodies was beyond ordinary measurement. It was great enough to be of national importance.

Secretary Herbert on Free Silver.

There is new cause for worry in the free silver ring of the Democratic party on account of the recent speech of Secretary Herbert, made in Alabama and presumably at other points in the Southern States on the free silver issue. The Southern States at one time seemed to take kindly to the Populist side of the question. But they are swinging into line with the Cleveland administration.

That part of Secretary Herbert's speech which was pressed home with the most effect was the following: "I know of no more effective way of crippling the South and its industries than for our people to clamor for the payment of debts already contracted, and hereafter to be contracted, in depreciated silver dollars. Fortunately for this country the effects of the panic of 1893 are rapidly passing away; money has begun to flow again in its accustomed channels; wheat has risen in price; cotton has risen in price; iron has risen in price; industries are reopening everywhere; wages are increasing; and all this comes from the fact that the capitalists of this country, who are shrewd, farseeing, and who watch with keen eye the doings of every political convention, have come to the conclusion that the free silver sentiment in the United States is not strong enough and not powerful enough to force this country to a silver basis."

The Secretary pointed out that there was no free silver sentiment in New England, none in New York or in the Middle States, and very little in Ohio. It was well to recognize the controlling sentiment of the country. All this was by way of warning that if the administration was not supported in the stand it had taken the Republicans would again come into power, because they would represent the dominating sentiment of the country.

An Old Question Revived.

The offer of a company in Detroit to build two gunboats for the United States has revived an old question about the treaty between the United States and Great Britain made in 1817. The Detroit firm made the lowest bid for a government contract, but could not obtain it because under the treaty prohibiting the maintenance of armed vessels on the lakes, armed ships could not be built there.

The treaty stipulations are as follows:

"The naval force to be maintained upon the American lakes by his Majesty and the government of the United States shall thenceforth be confined to the following vessels on each side, that is:

"On Lake Ontario, to one vessel, not exceeding 100 tons burden and armed with one 18-pound cannon.

"On the upper lakes, to two vessels, not exceeding like burden each, and armed with like force.

"All other armed vessels on these lakes shall be forthwith dismantled, and no other vessel of war shall then be built or armed. If either party should hereafter be desirous of annulling this stipulation, and should give notice to that effect to the other party, it shall cease to be binding after the expiration of six months from the date of such notice."

The intent of the treaty was to prevent a fleet of war vessels of either nation from patrolling these inland waters. In 1864 the first steps were taken by the Federal government to abrogate the treaty by giving the required six months notice. Great Britain had given great offense to this country by allowing Confederate cruisers to prey upon American commerce. But in March, 1865, notice of the abrogation of the treaty was withdrawn before the full term of six months had expired. The treaty being now in force, the shipbuilders on the lakes cannot build war vessels for the government. The Detroit firm offered to ship the material to the Pacific coast and there construct the war vessel.

The lake ship builders are constructing metal ships with a capacity for 6000 tons of freight, and are building some very large passenger ships. Many of these could be converted into war ships for lake service at very short notice. The country has outgrown the treaty of 1817, which is now effective in smothering the enterprise of American shipbuilders.

Ex-President, With a Difference.

When President Cleveland retired from office he entered upon the practice of law, and with so much success that he put some very good fees into his capacious pockets. It was not against the dignity of the high office he had held that he should practice law. A majority of Presidents have been lawyers.

The first to take up the practice of law after retiring from office was ex-President John Q. Adams, who conducted the defense in the famous Armistead case. He had no need to follow the profession for a livelihood. Martin Van Buren probably did some office business after his retirement from office. But he was a comparatively rich man for those days, and had little need of professional emoluments.

It is reported that ex-President Harrison earns from his profession as a lawyer a much larger income than he received while in office. He is a good lawyer, and not rich according to the present standard of wealth. It goes well with his reputation that he should earn large fees. There is a class of important cases where all the influence which a man can have, even as an ex-President, is needed to gain a successful verdict. The precedents are now fairly established that no man who has once held the highest office in the gift of the country need go into such absolute retirement that the country shall never more hear from him.

In the Stanford Case.

There was not much doubt that the decision of this case by the Court of Appeals would sustain Judge Ross' decision in the District Court. But the result is of none the less moment on that account. It involved a property interest of more than fifteen million dollars and contingently the existence of a great institution of learning.

The case would never have been appealed had it not been for the zeal of the attorney employed by the government. The case was brought by the latter in part to meet a certain amount of popular clamor. It is evident that the Attorney General had little confidence that any case could be made out by which fifteen millions or more could be turned over to the government. There is now the recorded opinion of Judges Ross, Gilbert, Morrow and Hawley in favor of the Stanford estate. It is not likely that the case will go to the Supreme Court. In fact, there is nothing to take to that tribunal. It may be assumed that the case is closed beyond all ordinary contingencies.

Three Cities as One.

Alameda is now claiming a population of 15,000, which may be a little above the mark. It is certain, however, that the city across the estuary is making a more rapid growth than any other in the county. It is now entitled to rank as a city of the fourth class, with all the honors and emoluments that belong to a city of that degree. Alameda has room enough for a large city. There would be no crowding if a hundred thousand people were to choose Alameda for their homes.

Berkeley also is only a little way behind Alameda in population, and seems to be at present on the line of rapid growth. There is more building going on in Berkeley in proportion to the population than in any other city on this side of the Bay. It is not clear yet as to which of these cities—one on the north and the other on the south of Oakland—will yet be the largest. The great University with its throng of students draws a great many families to Berkeley. A great many more are drawn there by the beauty of the situation. These two cities are every year coming closer to Oakland. No act of consolidation would ever bring them geographically any nearer. In these three cities within speaking distance of each other there is now a total population of about 87,000, taking the estimates as they have recently been made.

This aggregate population is just about as large as that of Los Angeles. In the matter of educational facilities the advantage is greatly on the side of these cities. Much is written and said now about the growth and prosperity of Los Angeles. Conceding all that is claimed, these three cities of Alameda county have been growing into each other until they begin to touch, with the commercial advantages of a water front such as can never be counted in favor of Los Angeles. There is no city of the second class on this coast that has such a harbor as is in front of Oakland. These are permanent advantages. They are to count for vastly more in the future than they have in the past.

Occasionally the Chicago Tribune gets hold of railroad news ahead of other papers. But it sometimes goes wide of the mark, as it did in its report that the Central Pacific would not connect with the Union Pacific after a certain date. That statement was wholly misleading. Now the Chicago Tribune reports that the Union Pacific is about to come under the control of the Vanderbilt system in connection with the Northwestern, which is under that control.

The next item is to be taken with many grains of allowance. It is that the Vanderbilts are seeking to control the Central Pacific Railroad, thus making a through competing road to the Pacific; and that negotiations are now going on with Huntington for that purpose. When the latter sells out a road for the purpose of making it a formidable competitor with his other roads we shall all know it.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

The Egyptians believed that the soul lived only as long as the body endured, hence their reason for embalming the body to make it last as long as possible. It is estimated that altogether there are 400,000,000 mummies in Egypt.

The Queen of the Netherlands entered upon her sixteenth year a few days ago, and in honor of the occasion, but to the great regret of her subjects, introduced a momentous change — she began to wear her hair in the fashion of young women! Queen Victoria describes the Queen as "the most charming girl in the world."

The late Mr. Houghton was wont to tell a characteristic story of Noah Webster. Houghton was a boy in a printer's shop when an odd-looking old gentleman came in one day to make him promise that he would always set up the word "center," not "centre." The dictionary man is said to have traversed New England on this errand to printers.

An interesting addition to the stories of things people see when they haven't their guns is offered by Messrs. McNamer and Everett, two hunters of Wishkah, Wash. They went out recently without their guns, and met, first, a large covey of grouse so close that they killed one with a stick; then they stumbled across a bear, shortly afterward sighted a band of elk grazing not twenty yards away, and as they turned homeward in disgust and chagrin, three timber wolves trotted into and along the path ahead of them.

Five tracts of land aggregating 120,000 acres, in Southern California, have just been bought by a syndicate for colonization purposes. The lands consist mostly of big ranches.

Mr. Watts, the artist, shakes his head when he talks of Mr. Gladstone as a sitter, and says: "He was about the worst sitter I ever had. Not that he could not keep still, but no sooner did he come in than he began to talk, and after a couple of hours, when he had to leave, I found that I had not done any work at all."

Cars in which aluminum will be used for all metal work, save the wheels and axles, are to be put on the State railroads of France. The saving of weight for an ordinary train will be thirty tons.

King Leopold was never so popular in Paris as at present. During his recent visit to the French capital the populace showed unmistakable evidence of their respect and esteem, and whenever they caught sight of him on the boulevards, in theaters and railway stations they saluted him with cries of "Long live the King of the Belgians." Leopold is not a handsome man. One morning, while he was returning to his hotel from a walk, he asked two loiterers at the doors what they were waiting for. "To see the King," was the reply. "That is not a very interesting spectacle," said the monarch as he entered the hotel.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt will have a Duke for a son-in-law, and will be an honored guest at Blenheim, but she can never be presented at court, which gives the entree to English society, for no divorcee enters there.

The proprietor of a factory on the South Side has a son who has had about everything which was going; a college education with a degree, all the fun to be had on a liberal allowance and a European tour. When he got back he told his father he wanted to settle down and get "& Son" on the signboard. The next morning the proprietor brought him to the foreman, saying: "Got anything for this, young man to do?" "Sorting scrap iron—$1 a day." "All right, put him at that. I want to give him a chance for the sake of his mother. If he's any good he'll work up." In two years the young man had worked up to be manager and junior partner and the proprietor began to have his turn at a good time.—Chicago Tribune.

Brides who wish to be real English, you know, must forbid the throwing of rice when they depart on the honeymoon trip. There is to be no more rice throwing at English weddings in high society. The substitute will be paper confetti. There have been several accidents during the last season caused by grains of rice striking the eyes of the bride or groom. Hence the prejudice against the practice. The confetti is about half the size of a letter water and stamped in gold, silver and all colors.

A voice to order will soon be one of the possibilities. It is reported that Profesor Stuart of the University of Sydney has invented an artificial larynx and that it has been tried with success upon a man who had lost his voice. The mechanism can be regulated so as to make the voice soprano, tenor, contralto or bass at will. It is sincerely to be hoped that the managers of certain companies on the road will lay in a liberal supply of these articles for "artists" who have no voice but endeavor to sing for the public.

Holland disfranchises a citizen if he is absent from the country ten years, and during that time does not formally notify the proper authority that he wishes to be continued to be regarded as a citizen. Great Britain does not so easily give up her claim to the loyalty of her subjects. A man may count upon her protection on the ground that his grandfather was by birth and allegiance an Englishman, even though he and his father were both born and have always lived on foreign soil, but without being naturalized.

AN ABLE OFFICIAL.

Sheriff White Did Excellent Work in the Dog Fighting Raid.

Sheriff White is to be congratulated on the outcome of his raid on the dog-fighters at Bottomley's barn. Of the many captured on that occasion two have been convicted—Kennedy and Bottomley—and there is little doubt that similar results will be in order as regards the rest who do not forfeit bail.

The sheriff in this particular case shows he is keenly alive to the duties of his office. He is determined that neither lawlessness nor disorder shall prevail within the limits of his authority, and that he knows how to go about his work is shown in the great success that attended the conducting of the recent raid. Mr. White is making a splendid record in his office and those who at first opposed his administration have through appreciation of his ability and level-headedness become his friends.

A First-Class Service.

One of the finest accommodations which people on this side of the bay experience is the communication which they enjoy with the rest of the world by means of the transportation companies, the leading one of which is the People's Express and Transfer Co., the office of which is at 412-418 Ninth street, between Broadway and Franklin street. This company gives not only perfect services between this city, Berkeley, Alameda and San Francisco, but saves people, who go traveling the necessity of personally attending to the checking of their baggage. It checks the baggage at one's house and delivers it there after arrival without extra expense.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CHALLENGE

To the Contra Costa Water Company, Oakland:

Some time ago I had occasion to make a microscopical analysis of the water furnished to the city of Oakland by your company, coming from Lakes Temescal and Chabot.

At your instance I am informed this analysis has been questioned and my reputation placed in a doubtful position.

In order that I may prove to your satisfaction and to that of the general public of the city of Oakland, the absolute correctness of my conclusions that the water supplied by your compauy IS UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION, I now make the following proposition:

I will meet any expert appointed by you and proceed to Lakes Temescal and Chabot, where we will procure samples of water from each lake, under the usual precautions taken relative to any analysis under dispute. Having obtained the samples, we will proceed to some proper place in the city of Oakland, fitted up as a laboratory, to be selected by your expert and myself—your expert to provide the necessary material for his investigation, and I will do likewise; both investigations to be conducted simulataneously and in the presence of each other. And daily upon leaving the operating room we will seal it up with the dual seals of the experts and place a watchman in charge, that there may be no opportunity for fraud or chicanery by anybody.

The expense of these investigations to be mutual, each side to pay their own expert, and any extra expenses to be divided. I will undertake to establish without cavil the absolute correctness of my previous analysis of the waters from Lakes Temescal and Chabot, whereby it was proven without the reason of any doubt to unbiased people that SAID WATERS FROM LAKES TEMESCAL AND CHABOT ARE ABSOLUTELY UNWHOLESOME, UNHEALTHY AND UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION.

In event of your refusing to accept or consider this challenge I shall make a proposition to the authorities of Oakland to name a committee, that I may establish to it the correctness of my previous conclusions regarding the unfitness for human consumption of the water which comes from either Lake Temescal or Chabot.

Respectfully,

THOMAS BOWHILL,

Of course the Turks lay all the blame of the recent massacres on the Armenians. If they would only submit peaceably to be killed all would be well. The vexation of the Turks is that just now there are complications growing out of the Armenian disturbances that are assuming international importance. That is what displeases the Sultan and the more so that there are powerful fleets anchored near enough to enforce any demand the allied powers might make.

This little incident is good enough to be redeemed from the waste basket. Tid Bits is responsible for it: "For some time past Queen Marguerite has been very much concerned at the extraordinary rapidity with which the hair of King Humbert has been whitening. What could she do? Womanlike, she saw only one remedy—hair dye—and she suggested the idea to the King. But his majesty objected to being rejuvenated by any such process. One of her relatives, a young prince, suggested strategy. He knew, he said of a splendid colorless dye which she could place on the dressing table of the King, and he would use it without thinking as an ordinary hair wash. But his majesty got wind of the affair and laid a counterplot. The Queen had a little white dog with long hair. He inveigled it into his dressing room, applied the famous hair dye and turned the dog into her majesty's apartments in a coat of splendid jet black."

Three great religious convocations have been held during the last ten days in this country. There was the great Eucharistic convocation at Washington where the notable men of the Catholic church deliberated on many weighty matters. There was the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church at Minneapolis, where nearly all the bishops of that church assembled and many other notable divines, as well as laymen. That convention created the diocese of Southern California, a matter of special interest to churchmen in this State. Then there was the triennial convention of the Congregational churches at Syracuse, where a large number of notable men of that denomination dealt with many important interests. Aside from purely religious questions, it is to be noted that all these great assemblies brought under review some of the great educational interests of the country. The influence exerted by these distinguished bodies was beyond ordinary measurement. It was great enough to be of national importance.

Secretary Herbert on Free Silver.

There is new cause for worry in the free silver ring of the Democratic party on account of the recent speech of Secretary Herbert, made in Alabama and presumably at other points in the Southern States on the free silver issue. The Southern States at one time seemed to take kindly to the Populist side of the question. But they are swinging into line with the Cleveland administration.

That part of Secretary Herbert's speech which was pressed home with the most effect was the following: "I know of no more effective way of crippling the South and its industries than for our people to clamor for the payment of debts already contracted, and hereafter to be contracted, in depreciated silver dollars. Fortunately for this country the effects of the panic of 1893 are rapidly passing away; money has begun to flow again in its accustomed channels; wheat has risen in price; cotton has risen in price; iron has risen in price; industries are reopening everywhere; wages are increasing; and all this comes from the fact that the capitalists of this country, who are shrewd, farseeing, and who watch with keen eye the doings of every political convention, have come to the conclusion that the free silver sentiment in the United States is not strong enough and not powerful enough to force this country to a silver basis."

The Secretary pointed out that there was no free silver sentiment in New England, none in New York or in the Middle States, and very little in Ohio. It was well to recognize the controlling sentiment of the country. All this was by way of warning that if the administration was not supported in the stand it had taken the Republicans would again come into power, because they would represent the dominating sentiment of the country.

An Old Question Revived.

The offer of a company in Detroit to build two gunboats for the United States has revived an old question about the treaty between the United States and Great Britain made in 1817. The Detroit firm made the lowest bid for a government contract, but could not obtain it because under the treaty prohibiting the maintenance of armed vessels on the lakes, armed ships could not be built there.

The treaty stipulations are as follows:

"The naval force to be maintained upon the American lakes by his Majesty and the government of the United States shall thenceforth be confined to the following vessels on each side, that is:

"On Lake Ontario, to one vessel, not exceeding 100 tons burden and armed with one 18-pound cannon.

"On the upper lakes, to two vessels, not exceeding like burden each, and armed with like force.

"All other armed vessels on these lakes shall be forthwith dismantled, and no other vessel of war shall then be built or armed. If either party should hereafter be desirous of annulling this stipulation, and should give notice to that effect to the other party, it shall cease to be binding after the expiration of six months from the date of such notice."

The intent of the treaty was to prevent a fleet of war vessels of either nation from patrolling these inland waters. In 1864 the first steps were taken by the Federal government to abrogate the treaty by giving the required six months notice. Great Britain had given great offense to this country by allowing Confederate cruisers to prey upon American commerce. But in March, 1865, notice of the abrogation of the treaty was withdrawn before the full term of six months had expired. The treaty being now in force, the shipbuilders on the lakes cannot build war vessels for the government. The Detroit firm offered to ship the material to the Pacific coast and there construct the war vessel.

The lake ship builders are constructing metal ships with a capacity for 6000 tons of freight, and are building some very large passenger ships. Many of these could be converted into war ships for lake service at very short notice. The country has outgrown the treaty of 1817, which is now effective in smothering the enterprise of American shipbuilders.

Ex-President, With a Difference.

When President Cleveland retired from office he entered upon the practice of law, and with so much success that he put some very good fees into his capacious pockets. It was not against the dignity of the high office he had held that he should practice law. A majority of Presidents have been lawyers.

The first to take up the practice of law after retiring from office was ex-President John Q. Adams, who conducted the defense in the famous Amistead case. He had no need to follow the profession for a livelihood. Martin Van Buren probably did some office business after his retirement from office. But he was a comparatively rich man for those days, and had little need of professional emoluments.

It is reported that ex-President Harrison earns from his profession as a lawyer a much larger income than he received while in office. He is a good lawyer, and not rich according to the present standard of wealth. It goes well with his reputation that he should earn large fees. There is a class of important cases where all the influence which a man can have, even as an ex-President, is needed to gain a successful verdict. The precedents are now fairly established that no man who has once held the highest office in the gift of the country need go into such absolute retirement that the country shall never more hear from him.

In the Stanford Case.

There was not much doubt that the decision of this case by the Court of Appeals would sustain Judge Ross' decision in the District Court. But the result is of none the less moment on that account. It involved a property interest of more than fifteen million dollars and contingently the existence of a great institution of learning.

The case would never have been appealed had it not been for the zeal of the attorney employed by the government. The case was brought by the latter in part to meet a certain amount of popular clamor. It is evident that the Attorney General had little confidence that any case could be made out by which fifteen millions or more could be turned over to the government. There is now the recorded opinion of Judges Ross, Gilbert, Morrow and Hawley in favor of the Stanford estate. It is not likely that the case will go to the Supreme Court. In fact, there is nothing to take to that tribunal. It may be assumed that the case is closed beyond all ordinary contingencies.

Three Cities as One.

Alameda is now claiming a population of 15,000, which may be a little above the mark. It is certain, however, that the city across the estuary is making a more rapid growth than any other in the county. It is now entitled to rank as a city of the fourth class, with all the honors and emoluments that belong to a city of that degree. Alameda has room enough for a large city. There would be no crowding if a hundred thousand people were to choose Alameda for their homes.

Berkeley also is only a little way behind Alameda in population, and seems to be at present on the line of rapid growth. There is more building going on in Berkeley in proportion to the population than in any other city on this side of the Bay. It is not clear yet as to which of these cities—one on the north and the other on the south of Oakland—will yet be the largest. The great University with its throng of students draws a great many families to Berkeley. A great many more are drawn there by the beauty of the situation. These two cities are every year coming closer to Oakland. No act of consolidation would ever bring them geographically any nearer. In these three cities within speaking distance of each other there is now a total population of about 87,000, taking the estimates as they have recently been made.

This aggregate population is just about as large as that of Los Angeles. In the matter of educational facilities the advantage is greatly on the side of these cities. Much is written and said now about the growth and prosperity of Los Angeles. Conceding all that is claimed, these three cities of Alameda county have been growing into each other until they begin to touch, with the commercial advantages of a water front such as can never be counted in favor of Los Angeles. There is no city of the second class on this coast that has such a harbor as is in front of Oakland. These are permanent advantages. They are to count for vastly more in the future than they have in the past.

Occasionally the Chicago Tribune gets hold of railroad news ahead of other papers. But it sometimes goes wide of the mark, as it did in its report that the Central Pacific would not connect with the Union Pacific after a certain date. That statement was wholly misleading. Now the Chicago Tribune reports that the Union Pacific is about to come under the control of the Vanderbilt system in connection with the Northwestern, which is under that control.

The next item is to be taken with many grains of allowance. It is that the Vanderbilts are seeking to control the Central Pacific Railroad, thus making a through competing road to the Pacific; and that negotiations are now going on with Huntington for that purpose. When the latter sells out a road for the purpose of making it a formidable competitor with his other roads we shall all know it.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

The Egyptians believed that the soul lived only as long as the body endured, hence their reason for embalming the body to make it last as long as possible. It is estimated that altogether there are 400,000,000 mummies in Egypt.

The Queen of the Netherlands entered upon her sixteenth year a few days ago, and in honor of the occasion, but to the great regret of her subjects, introduced a momentous change — she began to wear her hair in the fashion of young women. Queen Victoria describes the Queen as "the most charming girl in the world."

The late Mr. Houghton was wont to tell a characteristic story of Noah Webster. Houghton was a boy in a printer's shop when an odd-looking old gentleman came in one day to make him promise that he would always set up the word "center," not "centre." The dictionary man is said to have traversed New England on this errand to printers.

An interesting addition to the stories of things people see when they haven't their guns is offered by Messrs. McNamer and Everett, two hunters of Wishkah, Wash. They went out recently without their guns, and met, first, a large covey of grouse so close that they killed one with a stick, then they stumbled across a bear, shortly afterward sighted a band of elk grazing not twenty yards away, and as they turned homeward in disgust and chagrin, three timber wolves trotted into and along the path ahead of them.

Five tracts of land aggregating 120,000 acres, in Southern California, have just been bought by a syndicate for colonization purposes. The lands consist mostly of big ranches.

Mr. Watts, the artist, shakes his head when he talks of Mr. Gladstone as a sitter, and says: "He was about the worst sitter I ever had. Not that he could not keep still, but no sooner did he come in than he began to talk, and after a couple of hours, when he had to leave, I found that I had not done any work at all."

Cars in which aluminum will be used for all metal work, save the wheels and axles, are to be put on the State railroads of France. The saving of weight for an ordinary train will be thirty tons.

King Leopold was never so popular in Paris as at present. During his recent visit to the French capital the populace showed unmistakable evidence of their respect and esteem, and whenever they caught sight of him on the boulevards, in theaters and railway stations they saluted him with cries of "Long live the King of the Belgians." Leopold is not a handsome man. One morning, while he was returning to his hotel from a walk, he asked two loiterers at the doors what they were waiting for. "To see the King," was the reply. "That is not a very interesting spectacle," said the monarch as he entered the hotel.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt will have a Duke for a son-in-law, and will be an honored guest at Blenheim, but she can never be presented at court, which gives the entree to English society, for no divorcee enters there.

The proprietor of a factory on the South Side has a son who has had about everything which was going; a college education with a degree, all the fun to be had on a liberal allowance and a European tour. When he got back he told his father he wanted to settle down and get "& Son" on the signboard. The next morning the proprietor brought him to the foreman, saying: "Got anything for this young man to do?" "Sorting scrap iron—$1 a day." "All right, put him at that. I want to give him a chance for the sake of his mother. If he's any good he'll work up." In two years the young man had worked up to be manager and junior partner and the proprietor began to have his turn at a good time.—Chicago Tribune.

Brides who wish to be real English, you know, must forbid the throwing of rice when they depart on the honeymoon trip. There is to be no more rice throwing at English weddings in high society. The substitute will be paper confetti. There have been several accidents during the last season caused by grains of rice striking the eyes of the bride or groom. Hence the prejudice against the practice. The confetti is about half the size of a letter wafer and stamped in gold, silver and all colors.

A voice to order will soon be one of the possibilities. It is reported that Professor Stuart of the University of Sydney has invented an artificial larynx and that it has been tried with success upon a man who had lost his voice. The mechanism can be regulated so as to make the voice soprano, tenor, contralto or bass at will. It is sincerely to be hoped that the managers of certain companies on the road will lay in a liberal supply of these articles for "artists" who have no voice but endeavor to sing for the public.

Holland disfranchises a citizen if he is absent from the country ten years, and during that time does not formally notify the proper authority that he wishes to be continued to be regarded as a citizen. Great Britain does not so easily give up her claim to the loyalty of her subjects. A man may count upon her protection on the ground that his grandfather was by birth and allegiance an Englishman, even though he and his father were both born and have always lived on foreign soil, but without being naturalized.

AN ABLE OFFICIAL.

Sheriff White Did Excellent Work in the Dog Fighting Raid.

Sheriff White is to be congratulated on the outcome of his raid on the dog-fighters at Bottomley's barn. Of the many captured on that occasion two have been convicted—Kennedy and Bottomley—and there is little doubt that similar results will be in order as regards the rest who do not forfeit bail.

The sheriff in this particular case shows he is keenly alive to the duties of his office. He is determined that neither lawlessness nor disorder shall prevail within the limits of his authority, and that he knows how to go about his work is shown in the great success that attended the conducting of the recent raid. Mr. White is making a splendid record in his office and those who at first opposed his administration have through appreciation of his ability and level-headedness become his friends.

A CHALLENGE

To the Contra Costa Water Company, Oakland:

Some time ago I had occasion to make a microscopical analysis of the water furnished to the city of Oakland by your company, coming from Lakes Temescal and Chabot.

At your instance I am informed this analysis has been questioned and my reputation placed in a doubtful position.

In order that I may prove to your satisfaction and to that of the general public of the city of Oakland, the absolute correctness of my conclusions that the water supplied by your company IS UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION, I now make the following proposition:

I will meet any expert appointed by you and proceed to Lakes Temescal and Chabot, where we will procure samples of water from each lake, under the usual precautions taken relative to any analysis under dispute. Having obtained the samples, we will proceed to some proper place in the city of Oakland, fitted up as a laboratory, to be selected by your expert and myself—your expert to provide the necessary material for his investigation, and I will do likewise; both investigations to be conducted simulataneously and in the presence of each other. And daily upon leaving the operating room we will seal it up with the dual seals of the experts and place a watchman in charge, that there may be no opportunity for fraud or chicanery by anybody.

The expense of these investigations to be mutual, each side to pay their own expert, and any extra expenses to be divided. I will undertake to establish without cavil the absolute correctness of my previous analysis of the waters from Lakes Temescal and Chabot, whereby it was proven without the reason of any doubt to unbiased people that SAID WATERS FROM LAKES TEMESCAL AND CHABOT ARE ABSOLUTELY UNWHOLESOME, UNHEALTHY AND UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION.

In event of your refusing to accept or consider this challenge I shall make a proposition to the authorities of Oakland o name a committee, that I may establish to it the correctness of my previous conclusions regarding the unfitness for human consumption of the water which comes from either Lake Temescal or Chabot.

Respectfully,

THOMAS BOWHILL,

RADER'S RETIREMENT.

He Preaches a Last Sermon at the Congregational Church.

HIS SERVICES ENDED HERE.

During His Stay in Oakland He Has Shown Marked Ability.

A GLANCE AT HIS CAREER.

He Will at Once Commence His Mission in San Francisco.

Rev. Dr. Rader preached his farewell sermon at the First Congregational church yesterday. Sunday next he will occupy the pulpit at his new mission, the Third Congregational church of San Francisco, and thus will pass away from Oakland one of the brightest and most popular young pastors the city has ever harbored.

His discourse yesterday had as its text Acts 2:1: "And when the day of Pentacost was fully come they were all with one accord in one place." In part he said:

"Pentacost occurred at the close of one dispensation and at the dawn of the new. On one side was the life of Christ. On the other the history of the church. It forms a climax to the earthly life of our Lord and marks the birth of those mighty forces which have been organized into the Christian church. In this incident, which we have chosen for our text, we have,

"First, an expression of unity. In this company of apostles and believers there was perfect harmony. There was no decisive thought or purpose. There was no race question, though all races were represented. There was no sex question, for there were both women and men. There was no State issue, though all governments were there. These good people were neither Methodist, Baptist, Episcopalian or Presbyterian. It is quite probable they were all Congregationalists. This is an example of what a church ought to be: a unity, having one Lord, one faith, one baptism.

"Second, Pentacost meant inspiration. Inspiration which means breathed into, has never been defined because it is impossible to give a definition of life. Revelation precedes inspiration. The latter is a doctrine of the former. Pentacost thus gives a clue to the origin of all great visions and of all the great poetry of the world. It explains Milton and Isaiah and other receptive spirits in inspired and profane history. When we know how the mighty sun enshrines itself in a drop of dew or enfolds its beauty in the petals of a flower, we learn how God inbreathes into the human soul as He did upon the day of Pentacost.

"Third, Pentacost explains the gift of tongues. The world has not only seen its tongues of fire but also its brush and chisel and pencil of flame, as in the genius of a Rubens, an Angelo or a Raphael. It has had its pen of fire, as wielded by a Browning or a Whittier. And all this is religion: that is, it is the gift of the Spirit of God finding expression in great art and thought. Here we see the origin of that great eloquence, which has always been identified with the Christian church. We can understand that marvellous speech of a Guthrie or a Chalmers by understanding Pentacost. We can only measure the power of the eloquence of the great preachers by our knowledge of the meaning of the Pentacostal blessing. This was the birth of the pulpit, the throne of eloquence. And as men have written because they were moved by the Holy Ghost, so the great preachers have spoken to the same reason. May the man who in the future stands upon this pulpit have many gifts and graces, but among them all may he have that which is greater than all, a tongue of fire.

"Fourth, power. Pentacost means power. Power is life. Life is the unity of power. It draws oaks from acorns, pulls golden wheat fields out of innocent seeds, raises mighty forests from delicate twigs, lifts giant trees against the laws of gravity. Life is power everywhere. And by power Jesus meant efficiency and ability to do things. Hence He said, 'Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you.' All this may appear to be ethereal and impracticable. But our Lord makes it intensely practical when he lays upon them the heavy charge and declares, 'Ye shall be witnesses in Jerusalem and in the uttermost parts of the earth.' To be a witness is to testify. And this is to live the life of a Christian. It means the testimony behind the counter, in temptation in business, at home, everywhere. To testify not because you possess a truth but because you are possessed by a truth. The charge is to stand for the gospel. This is a great obligation. The Christian stands backed by 2000 years of sacrifice and culture. He stands for the cross of Christ and that mighty life which made that cross possible. Under His feet is the dust of martyrs. He is reinforced by all the forces which have been communicated to earth and which were so fully revealed on the Day of Pentacost. To testify to the Gospel is to apply Christianity. Power influences the world more by what you are than by what you do. A pile of cannon balls is often more effective than when they blaze from the guns. Peace is kept in our country not by keeping our guns black by war but bright with the polish of peace. See Barbara Frietchie leaning out of a window before Stonewall Jackson's army. She raised her flag and said, 'Shoot if you must this old gray head, but spare your country's flag.' She halted the 'dust-brown ranks' by the power of testimony. During the great strike on the Southern Pacific I saw firemen taken out of their cabs one after another by the mob, who seemed to have complete control of the situation. In the midst of the excitement, an overland train, the first for some days, pulled up at the Sixteenth street station. The mob as usual surrounded the firemen of the engine but suddenly fell back. There was not a hand raised or a shot fired, for in the cab stood a United States regular soldier with a rifle in his hand and with the determination, backed by the United States government, to maintain law and order. It was the power of testimony. That is the kind of religion we need in California, the Christianity that dare witness for the gospel.

"Fifth, Pentacost is the pledge of the perpetual presence of Christ. In the Antwerp cathedral is a portrait of our Lord. Visitors tell me that the eyes of the Christ follow them to all parts of the room. It is an illustration of what was manifested on the day of Pentacost. Upon that day, by the gift of the spirit, the pledge was given to the world that Christ was to continue with the church always. Beautiful is the thought that we never get beyond the penetrating gaze of the Master. If we fall in the battle covered with blood, fall with our armor on, His eyes are upon us. They follow us through the years of old age. There is no night so dark but that they pierce it. No sorrow so great but they gaze through it. We are never alone. We have lonely hours but the eternal presence is always with us. You thought you were alone when your companion left you, there was not a friend apparently in all the world, but you were mistaken. "Lo I am with you alway." The Hebrew children in the furnace of fire were not alone, for there was a fourth form "like unto the Son of Man." Elijah was not alone when he most thought he was, for the black raven was wheeling over his head and God was with him. God is everywhere. May this church have the unity, the inspiration, the sacred eloquence and the spiritual power of Pentacost. And may you all be conscious in all your experiences of the everlasting presence of the eternal God."

Mr. Rader severs his connection with the First Congregational church with the reverence and good will of all its members. He deserves all that he has received from his people, because, while he has been among them he has labored sedulously both day and night and performed his duty in a conscientious manner which has characterized him in all his work.

Mr. Rader accepts the pastoral charge of the Third Congregational church in San Francisco, to which he has received the unanimous call of the members.

He will assume his new charge Wednesday next.

FAREWELL REMARKS.

In a certain sense, Rev. Mr. Rader took farewell from the First Congregational church last week when he was tendered a reception by members of the congregation. On that occasion he delivered an interesting address from which a few excerpts are herewith given:

"My relation," said he, "has been such to you that you have no particular claim on me, neither have I had any claim on you. My position has not been that of a pastor but of a pastor's auxiliary. Therefore, it would be presumptuous for me to leave you with any formal advice or elaborate suggestion. Dr. McLean has done this. While my relation to this church has been delightful in the extreme, you will pardon me if I say that I am glad to assume charge of a church of my own. One of the temptations of my ministry here has been to get out of my pace to jump over the fence. But whenever I felt like making the jump, I saw good Dr. McLean, and others, standing on the other side.

"I have steadily endeavored to fill the position in which I have been placed during these three years.

"This church has a great past. But look forward, no, backward. You are only 35 years old. Your best years are ahead. Garfield said that there is a point in the north where the lap of a pigeon's wing will send a rain drop to the Gulf of St. Lawrence or the Gulf of Mexico. That is where the church is tonight. Be loyal to the church always, remembering that in a Congregational church the responsibility is equally shared; that no man or number of men controls the church, but that the people are responsible."

In November Mr. Rader will go south in the interest of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Upon his retirement from the First church the pulpit will be temporarily filled by Dr. Freeman of Seattle.

DR. RADER'S RECORD.

Rev. Mr. Rader is a native of Maine. He early evinced an aptitude for the ministry. When but 16 years old he preached through Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. Before this work he had studied some at Pennington Seminary, New Jersey, and at the academy in Carlyle, Pennsylvania.

He soon appreciated the need of more education and went to Andover Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., about twenty miles from Boston. He took a four years' course and graduated with high honor. He at once resumed his pastoral duties and was regularly installed in 1891 at Biddeford, Me., by the president of Dartmouth College.

A year later his wife was taken seriously ill. He remembered the outlook which William Hengstler Jr., a classmate of his at Pennington, and now an attorney in San Francisco, had given California, and immediately came West.

His reputation in the East had been rising rapidly and he was looked upon as one of the most promising and eloquent young men of the New England States, but he was forced to leave and arrived in Oakland three years ago. Rev. Drs. J. K. McLean perceived the exceptional ability of the young preacher and immediately engaged him as associate pastor, which position he has held for the last three years.

Since he came to the Golden State Mr. Rader has received several flattering offers from various places on the coast, and recently refused the pastorate of the First Congregational church in Honolulu. But his affections are with Oakland and San Francisco and here he intends to remain.

RADER'S RETIREMENT.

He Preaches a Last Sermon at the Congregational Church.

HIS SERVICES ENDED HERE.

During His Stay in Oakland He Has Shown Marked Ability.

A GLANCE AT HIS CAREER.

He Will at Once Commence His Mission in San Francisco.

Rev. Dr. Rader preached his farewell sermon at the First Congregational church yesterday. Sunday next he will occupy the pulpit at his new mission, the Third Congregational church of San Francisco, and thus will pass away from Oakland one of the brightest and most popular young pastors the city has ever harbored.

His discourse yesterday had as its text Acts 2:1: "And when the day of Pentacost was fully come they were all with one accord in one place." In part he said:

"Pentacost occurred at the close of one dispensation and at the dawn of the new. On one side was the life of Christ. On the other the history of the church. It forms a climax to the earthly life of our Lord and marks the birth of those mighty forces which have been organized into the Christian church. In this incident, which we have chosen for our text, we have:

"First, an expression of unity. In this company of apostles and believers there was perfect harmony. There was no devisive thought or purpose. There was no race question, though all races were represented. There was no sex question, for there were both women and men. There was no State issue, though all governments were there. These good people were neither Methodist, Baptist, Episcopalian or Presbyterian. It is quite probable they were all Congregationalists. This is an example of what a church ought to be: a unity, having one Lord, one faith, one baptism.

"Second, Pentacost meant inspiration. Inspiration which means breathed into, has never been defined because it is impossible to give a definition of life. Revelation precedes inspiration. The latter is a doctrine of the former. Pentacost thus gives a clue to the origin of all great visions and of all the great poetry of the world. It explains Milton and Isaiah and other receptive spirits in Inspired and profane history. When we know how the mighty sun enshrines itself in a drop of dew or enfolds its beauty in the petals of a flower, we learn how God inbreathes into the human soul as He did upon the day of Pentacost.

"Third, Pentacost explains the gift of tongues. The world has not only seen its tongues of fire but also its brush and chisel and pencil of flame, as in the genius of a Rubens, an Angelo or a Raphael. It has had its pen of fire, as wielded by a Browning or a Whittier. And all this is religion: that is, it is the gift of the Spirit of God finding expression in great art and thought. Here we see the origin of that great eloquence, which has always been identified with the Christian church. We can understand that marvellous speech of a Guthrie or a Chalmers by understanding Pentacost. We can only measure the power of the eloquence of the great preachers by our knowledge of the meaning of the Pentacostal blessing. This was the birth of the pulpit, the throne of eloquence. And as men have written because they were moved by the Holy Ghost, so the great preachers have spoken for the same reason. May the man who in the future stands upon this pulpit have many gifts and graces, but among them all may he have that which is greater than all, a tongue of fire.

"Fourth, power. Pentacost means power. Power is life. Life is the unity of power. It draws oaks from acorns; pills golden wheat fields out of innocent seeds; raises mighty forests from delicate twigs; lifts giant trees against the laws af gravity. Life is power everywhere. And by power Jesus meant efficiency and ability to do things. Hence He said, "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." All this may appear to be ethereal and impracticable. But our Lord makes it intensely practical when he lays upon them the heavy charge and declares, "Ye shall be witnesses in Jerusalem and in the uttermost parts of the earth." To be a witness is to testify. And this is to live the life of a Christian. It means the testimony behind the counter, in temptation, in business, at home, everywhere. To testify not because you possess a truth but because you are possessed by a truth. The charge is to stand for the gospel. This is a great obligation. The Christian stands backed by 2000 years of sacrifice and culture. He stands for the cross of Christ and that mighty life which made that cross possible. Under His feet is the dust of martyrs. He is reinforced by all the forces which have been communicated to earth and which were so fully revealed on the Day of Pentacost. To testify to the Gospel is to apply Christianity. Power influences the world more by what you are than by what you do. A pile of cannon balls is often more effective than when they blaze from the guns. Peace is kept in our country not by keeping our guns black by war but bright with the polish of peace. See Barbara Frietchie leaning out of a window before Stonewall Jackson's army. She raised her flag and said, "Shoot if you must this old gray head, but spare your country's flag." She halted the "dust-brown ranks," by the power of testimony. During the great strike on the Southern Pacific I saw firemen taken out of their cabs one after another by the mob, who seemed to have complete control of the situation. In the midst of the excitement, an overland train, the first for some days, pulled up at the Sixteenth street station. The mob as usual surrounded the firemen of the engine but suddenly fell back. There was not a hand raised or a shot fired, for in the cab stood a United States regular soldier with a rifle in his hand and with the determination, backed by the United States government, to maintain law and order. It was the power of testimony. That is the kind of religion we need in California, the Christianity that dare witness for the gospel.

"Fifth, Pentacost is the pledge of the perpetual presence of Christ. In the Antwerp cathedral is a portrait of our Lord. Visitors tell me that the eyes of the Christ follow them to all parts of the room. It is an illustration of what was manifested on the day of Pentacost. Upon that day, by the gift of the spirit, the pledge was given to the world that Christ was to continue with the church always. Beautiful is the thought that we never get beyond the penetrating gaze of the Master. If we fall in the battle covered with blood, fall with our armor on, His eyes are upon us. They follow us through the years of old age. There is no night so dark but that they pierce it. No sorrow so great but they gaze through it. We are never alone. We have lonely hours but the eternal presence is always with us. You thought you were alone when your companion left you, there was not a friend apparently in all the world; but you were mistaken. "Lo I am with you alway." The Hebrew children in the furnace of fire were not alone, for there was a fourth form "like unto the Son of Man." Elijah was not alone when he most thought he was, for the black raven was wheeling over his head and God was with him. God is everywhere. May this church have the unity, the inspiration, the sacred eloquence and the spiritual power of Pentacost. And may you all be conscious in all your experiences of the everlasting presence of the eternal God."

Mr. Rader severs his connection with the First Congregational church with the reverence and good will of all its members. He deserves all that he has received from his people, because, while he has been among them he has labored sedulously both day and night and performed his duty in a concientjous manner which has characterized him in all his work.

Mr. Rader accepts the pastoral charge of the Third Congregational church in San Francisco, to which he has received the unanimous call of the members.

He will assume his new charge Wednesday next.

FAREWELL REMARKS.

In a certain sense, Rev. Mr. Rader took farewell from the First Congregational church last week when he was tendered a reception by members of the congregation. On that occasion he delivered an interesting address from which a few excerpts are herewith given:

"My relation," said he, "has been such to you that you have no particular claim on me, neither have I had any claim on you. My position has not been that of a pastor, but of a pastor's auxiliary. Therefore, it would be presumptuous for me to leave you with any formal advice or elaborate suggestion. Dr. McLean has done this. One of the temptations of my ministry here has been to get out of my place, to jump over the fence. But whenever I felt like making the jump, I saw good Dr. McLean, and others, standing on the other side.

"I have steadily endeavored to fill the position in which I have been placed during these three years.

"This church has a great past. But look forward, not backward. You are only 35 years old. Your best years are ahead. Garfield said that there is a point in the north where the lap of a pigeon's wing will send a rain drop to the Gulf of St. Lawrence or the Gulf of Mexico. That is where the church is tonight. In November Mr. Rader will go south in the interest of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Upon his retirement from the First church the pulpit will be temporarily filled by Dr. Freeman of Seattle.

DR. RADER'S RECORD.

Rev. Mr. Rader is a native of Maine. He early evinced an aptitude for the ministry. When but 16 years old he preached through Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. Before this work he had studied some at Pennington Seminary, New Jersey, and at the academy in Carlyle, Pennsylvania.

He soon appreciated the need of more education and went to Andover Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., about twenty miles from Boston. He took a four years' course and graduated with high honors. He at once resumed his pastoral duties and was regularly installed in 1891 at Biddeford, Me., by the president of Dartmouth College.

A year later his wife was taken seriously ill. He remembered the eulogy, which William Henderson Jr., a classmate of his at Pennington, and now an attorney in San Francisco, had given California, and immediately came West.

His reputation in the East had been rising rapidly and he was looked upon as one of the most promising and eloquent young men of the New England States, but he was forced to leave and arrived in Oakland three years ago. Rev. Dr. J. K. McLean perceived the exceptional ability of the young preacher and immediately engaged him as associate pastor, which position he has held for the last three years.

Since he came to the Golden State, Mr. Rader has received several flattering offers from various places on the coast, and recently refused the pastorate of the First Congregational church in Honolulu. But his affections are with Oakland and San Francisco and here he intends to remain.

Stop and call at Smith's, where remunerative employment can be obtained. Those having pleasant homes and wishing a servant or companion will do well to call at this excellent establishment and communicate their desires and have them filled.

Smith's Employment Agency Will Fill the Bill.

Smith's Employment Agency at the corner of Seventeenth and Telegraph avenue is an admirable institution. Through it parties seeking employment and those wishing help, are brought together and mutually advantaged. In these hard times it is a serious matter to be out of employment, and every means to obtain work should be resorted to. Walking the streets will avail nothing. Stop and call at Smith's, where remunerative employment can be obtained. Those having pleasant homes and wishing a servant or companion will do well to call at this excellent establishment and communicate their desires and have them filled.

Oceano, the new railroad town, is a solid, gilt-edged investment. Depot, freight sheds, warehouses, postoffice, telegraph station, pavilion, all finished. Daily improvements going on. NO IMMEDIATE DANGER.

Councilman Bassett Makes a Personal Inspection of the Dam.

He Also Sizes Up the Situation as Regards the Eighth Street Bridge.

There is much diversity of opinion in the matter of the safety of the culvert in the Twelfth street dam, and if unsafe what amount of money is necessary to place it in a safe condition. The superintendent of streets estimated that to repair the dam some $7,000 would be required, and the majority of the Council provided that sum in the tax levy estimate. The minority in the Council and the Mayor did not think so much money need be used in repairing the culvert. Councilman Bassett, who has given this matter much consideration, says:

"Last Saturday afternoon I went down to the Twelfth street dam and gave it a pretty thorough examination. The planking under the sidewalk adjoining the floodgates, together with some of the timbers underneath, was somewhat decayed. This has been placed in a sound condition at a cost of about $50.

"Accompanied by one of the carpenters I took a small float and worked my way from the lower or south side of the dam through one of the waterways under the street about three-fourths of the distance from the south side of the flood gates on the north side. To do this we were compelled to lie flat upon the float and pull ourselves along by the timbers overhead. We tested the planking and cross beams the entire distance and found no evidence of decay or signs of giving way. The carpenter informed me that he had made an equally thorough examination of the other waterways and found them all equally sound.

"So much for personal examination, yet the majority of the Council proposes to pull out this work and replace it with a concrete confluence that will sink out of sight within a year after completion. As a matter of fact, the Twelfth street culvert is as sound and safe now as it was two years ago, and it will be as sound and safe two years hence as it is now. The proposal to spend $7,000 on this Twelfth street dam is simply a proposal to use the people's money for the payment of political debts and the manufacture of political capital.

"So of the Eighth street bridge. The non-partisan majority of the Council proposes to appropriate $13,000 for the rebuilding of the bridge. We have pretty sound evidence that this is another job. A few evenings since ex-City Engineer Gray and Mr. Vandercook of the street railroad that crosses the bridge were before the Finance Committee. Mr. Gray stated that he had carefully examined the bridge and gave it as his opinion that $3,500 would replace the decayed stringers and rotten piles and entirely replank the bridge.

"Mr. Vandercook said to the committee that he had had the bridge examined in the interest of his railroad and found it safe, particularly so beneath his track. Yet the superintendent of streets, at the instance of the city engineer, has warned the public that this bridge is unsafe and dangerous, and the non-partisan Council wants to spend $13,000 in patchwork.

"Both the Twelfth street dam and the Eighth street bridge should be replaced with steel bridges raised to the level of the street grade. A small expenditure on these cheap and temporary structures will keep them in service until, with the practice of proper economy, the city is able to build solid and permanent steel bridges.

"Besides her school houses, and they cost one-third more than they would have cost if built for a private individual, Oakland has no permanent improvements. Good streets constructed at the expense of property holders have been greatly damaged by street railroad building. The city hall is an old shell, the engine houses are temporary affairs, the streets are poor work at extravagant cost. The money of the taxpayers has been expended in piecemeal jobbery. It is time the habit of shoveling money into cheap jobs was discontinued and the building of something solid and permanent commenced."

"SADDEST OF THE YEAR."

But Fall Days Need Not Be Sad If People Will Not Make Them So.

The fall days are rapidly passing, and before long winter will be upon us. Now is the time to consider whether we are prepared to withstand the dangers to which we must be exposed during the coming season. Even perfectly healthy people must feel the change from summer heat to the coolness of fall and early winter. There is malaria in the atmosphere and few people can escape its enervating effects. Under these circumstances something is needed to quicken the pulse, drive out the germs of disease, restore the jaded faculties and promote the general health. For this purpose nothing has ever equalled Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which is endorsed and recommended by the best physicians in the land. Thousands of men and women who owe their health and strength to this splendid preparation have testified to its remarkable effects. Among the number is Mrs. Mary West, 830 Elmond avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., who says: "I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for a long time. It has done me much good, giving me increased appetite which I lost through severe sickness."

Such outspoken testimony as this speaks for itself. It proves that Duffy's Pure Malt answers in every way the description of a perfectly reliable, health-giving stimulant. This is why it is so universally popular and has made friends wherever it has been introduced. For this reason insist on getting Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey when you ask for it and do not let your grocer or druggist persuade you to take an inferior imitation, which is claimed to be "very much like it," or "something just as good." There is nothing that can take its place.

EXAMINATION FREE.

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER.

Councilman Bassett Makes a Personal Inspection of the Dam.

He Also Sizes Up the Situation as Regards the Eighth Street Bridge.

There is much diversity of opinion in the matter of the safety of the culvert in the Twelfth street dam, and if unsafe what amount of money is necessary to place it in a safe condition. The superintendent of streets estimated that to repair the dam some $7,000 would be required, and the majority of the Council provided that sum in the tax levy estimate. The minority in the Council and the Mayor did not think so much money need be used in repairing the culvert. Councilman Bassett, who has given this matter much consideration, says:

"Last Saturday afternoon I went down to the Twelfth street dam and gave it a pretty thorough examination. The planking under the sidewalk adjoining the floodgates, together with some of the timbers underneath, was somewhat decayed. This has been placed in a sound condition at a cost of about $70.

"Accompanied by one of the carpenters I took a small float and worked my way from the lower or south side of the dam through one of the waterways under the street about three-fourths of the distance from the south side of the flood gates on the north side. To do this we were compelled to lie flat upon the float and pull ourselves along by the timbers overhead. We tested the planking and cross beams the entire distance and found no evidence of decay or signs of giving way. The carpenter informed me that he had made an equally thorough examination of the other waterways and found them all equally sound.

"So much for personal examination, yet the majority of the Council proposes to pull out this work and replace it with a concrete contrivance that will sink out of sight within a year after completion. As a matter of fact, the Twelfth street culvert is as sound and safe now as it was two years ago, and it will be as sound and safe two years hence as it is now. The proposal to spend $7,000 on this Twelfth street dam is simply a proposal to use the people's money for the payment of political debts and the manufacture of political capital.

"So of the Eighth street bridge. The non-partisan majority of the Council proposes to appropriate $13,000 for the rebuilding of the bridge. We have pretty sound evidence that this is another job. A few evenings since ex-City Engineer Gray and Mr. Vandercook of the street railroad that crosses the bridge were before the Finance Commitee. Mr. Gray stated that he had carefully examined the bridge and gave it as his opinion that $2,500 would replace the decayed stringers and rotten piles and entirely replank the bridge.

"Mr. Vandercook said to the committee that he had had the bridge examined in the interest of his railroad and found it safe, particularly so beneath his track. Yet the superintendent of streets, at the instance of the city engineer, has warned the public that this bridge is unsafe and dangerous, and the non-partisan Council wants to spend $13,000 in patchwork.

"Both the Twelfth street dam and the Eighth street bridges should be replaced with steel bridges raised to the level of the street grade. A small expenditure on these cheap and temporary structures will keep them in service until, with the practice of proper economy, the city is able to build solid and permanent steel bridges.

"Besides her school houses, and they cost one-third more than they would have cost if built for a private individual, Oakland has no permanent improvements. Good streets constructed at the expense of property holders have been greatly damaged by street railroad building. The city hall is an old shell, the engine houses are temporary affairs, the streets are poor work at extravagant cost. The money of the taxpayers has been expended in piecemeal jobbery. It is time the habit of shoveling money into cheap jobs was discontinued and the building of something solid and permanent commenced."

"SADDEST OF THE YEAR."

But Fall Days Need Not Be Sad If People Will Not Make Them So.

The fall days are rapidly passing, and before long winter will be upon us. Now is the time to consider whether we are prepared to withstand the dangers to which we must be exposed during the coming season. Even perfectly healthy people must feel the change from summer heat to the coolness of fall and early winter. There is malaria in the atmosphere and few people can escape its enervating effects. Under these circumstances something is needed to quicken the pulse, drive out the germs of disease, restore the jaded faculties and promote the general health. For this purpose nothing has ever equalled Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which is endorsed and recommended by the best physicians in the land. Thousands of men and women who owe their health and strength to this splendid preparation have testified to its remarkable effects. Among the number is Mrs. Mary West, 839 Elmond avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., who says: "I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for a long time. It has done me much good, giving me increased appetite which I lost through severe sickness."

Such outspoken testimony as this speaks for itself. It proves that Duffy's Pure Malt answers in every way the description of a perfectly reliable, health-giving stimulant. This is why it is so universally popular and has made friends wherever it has been introduced. For this reason insist on getting Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey when you ask for it and do not let your grocer or druggist persuade you to take an inferior imitation, which is claimed to be "very much like it," or "something just as good." There is nothing that can take its place.

BY GRAVE OR FIRE?

Rev. Dr. Law Preaches on the Arguments Regarding Cremation.

HIS PERSONAL OBSERVATIONS.

He Predicts That Electricity Will 'Ere Long Be a Factor.

WHERE SENTIMENT COMES IN.

He Explodes the Theory That Graveyards Breed Disease.

"Cremation" was the subject chosen by the Rev. Dr. Marshall Law for his sermon yesterday and the following interesting discourse was the result:

"What disposition shall be made of the human body after the soul has taken its flight has come again to be one of the live questions of the day. To the dead it matters little or nothing. Every proper concern about the matter has to do with the friends, and the living. The subject is not a very pleasant one under any circumstances, but its consideration is an inevitable one for each of us at some time, so let us take it up now for a few minutes, instead of thrusting it to one side until we are compelled to consider it in grief and tears.

"Civilized man has three ways of disposing of his dead, namely, by earth burial, sea burial and cremation, or burning. The two first methods have been in continuous use from time immemorial. The last, cremation, has prevailed in certain countries, among certain peoples, and at certain times since the life of man began upon the earth. The two former, earth and sea burial, are settled modes of disposing of the dead, while incineration has come and gone in an ephemeral sort of way, indicating that something about it did violence to instinct or reason. Just now again the claims of cremation are knocking at the doors of civilized races, claiming recognition by reason of the courage given it by ever advancing science. As reasonable human beings let us consider its claims as impartially as possible.

"We shall not pretend to give a history of cremation for it would serve no good purpose, while its ancient crudity would only incline to prejudice us against it. We have no records of body burning extending back of 1876. During that year it seems to have been revived in this country and Europe almost simultaneously. Many of us recall the famous Lemoyne crematory, built at Washington, Pa., some twenty years ago, and we remember how Dr. Lemoyne was regarded as a human monster to build a place for burning dead human bodies. Within a couple of years two bodies were burned in the Lemoyne crematory and two were incinerated in Italy. From these insignificant beginnings the practice has rapidly extended up to the present. During the last nineteen years about 10,000 bodies were cremated in this country and Europe. Of these 3670 were burned in the United States, 2102 in Italy, 1467 in Germany, 652 in France, 458 in England, 292 in Sweden, 172 in Switzerland and 4 in Denmark. In addition to the figures given for France there were 14,329 dissected bodies and embryos burned ther, but these are not fairly figures of cremation from the standpoint of our present consideration. There are twenty-seven crematories and cremation societies in the United States, of which three are in California, one at Los Angeles and two in San Francisco. In the number of incinerations the United States is in the lead by something over 1200 bodies.

"The indications are that cremation has now come to stay, for it rests all its claims on science, and, say what we will about it and feel as we may, science has a way of commanding respectful audience. So let us be good natured and listen to what she has to say.

"For the purpose of better fitting myself to talk to you upon this gruesome subject I took occasion last Wednesday to see the entire process of cremating a body at the Odd Fellows crematory, located at their cemetery in San Francisco, this being the newest and probably the most complete institution of the kind in the world. And I wish here to record my appreciation of the kindness of a member of this congregation who is a director of that cemetery, the Hon. Charles A. Sumner, known to you in a literary way, who gave me a letter of introduction to Capt. Fletcher, the superintendent of the cemetery, through whose courtesy I was permitted to witness the process of incineration from the time the body was brought into the building until it was drawn from the furnace in the form of ash. The hearse drove up at 3.30 and it was dark when I left the building and wandered among the beautifully-kept graves to the Geary street entrance. I mention this in order that you may know that I had and improved every opportunity for the minutest observation, and in consequence know much better than the average observer whereof I speak.

"The Odd Fellows' crematorium is a handsome structure of brick and granite costing some $30,000, and was completed about two months ago, since which time forty-four bodies have been burned, one-third of whom were women and two of the number children about 2 years of age. The fee charged for incineration is $50. In the East it is $35. Either figures indicates that there is no particular advantage of this method over earth burial in the matter of expense, for all the usual cost of a funeral obtains in either case, including the casket which is usually burned separately. The cremation fee simply offsets the cost of cemetery lot and head stone.

"Considered from a sanitary standpoint there is less to be said to the advantage of cremation than one would at first suppose. It has been claimed that cemeteries adjoining large cities with their thousands of decaying bodies are a menace to the living by reason of the escaping gases of decomposition, and the drainage which may get into the adjoining wells of drinking water. Those who push this claim so persistently know very little about chemistry or they would discover that the purifying action of the soil, by reason of the free oxygen contained in all water or damp earth oxidizes and burns up these obnoxious elements of decay as fast as they form. Were it not so there would not be a pill of water fit for drinking on earth today. Were it not true we could not produce the wholesome grains, fruits and vegetables grown upon lands heavily fertilized with all sorts of obnoxious and decaying substances, including decayed fish.

"The earth is a great laboratory where the most wonderful chemical processes take place in silence and continuousness, as a half hour's thought apart from this subject of burial will convince any one. We will grant that it is possible for an improperly buried body to endanger the lives of the living, but the general charge I most emphatically challenge. Those who advance this as an argument in favor of cremation should remember that cremation is not always done properly. It would be very easy with improper firing to drive dense volumes of smoke from a body dead from contagious disease, like smallpox, all over the city to the very great danger of the living. When a body is burned in a furnace constructed with a view to smokeless combustion (which is perfect combustion) no such danger obtains. In the case of either burial or cremation, honesty compels us to take our arguments from the normal condition of things, not from the exceptional instance. When a body is cremated the average mind thinks of it as annihilated. But let it be understood as an axiom from which there is no escape, that matter can not be annihilated. Its form or outward appearance may be changed, but nothing in this world can be destroyed so that it does not exist. Every atom which composes your body existed in some other before it became your body, and it will continue to exist after your body has passed away from mortal sight. At burial or cremation the atoms which compose your body will change their form so that they cease to be a human body, but atom for atom, pound for pound, they continue to exist in some form. No combustion known to man can be made so perfect as to defeat this great law of nature. The decay of the grave is this change taking place slowly. The incineration in the furnace is the same process hastened by the art of man.

"The question then is, What becomes of the body weighing 150 pounds which was put in the furnace? Five pounds of the phosphate of lime remain, which the friends look upon as all that remains on earth of the dear departed dead friend. But the fact is, that this five pounds of calcined bone is only the most obdurate part of the body. It could not be burned for it resists the action of any heat but the electrical When cremation processes are complete they will apply the irresistable blast of the electric current to this stubborn bone ash, and then every particle of the body will be resolved back into its primary form, and incinerary urns and columbariums will be old fashioned and out of date. Standing here today, I predict that further step, and shall be glad to hail electrical cremation.

"But what becomes of the 145 pounds which have disappeared in the furnace? They do not remain in the furnace, for in that case the furnace would soon be filled up. They are not destroyed, for matter is indestructable. What then has become of the great bulk of the body, the 145 pounds which have disappeared? It has formed a chemical combination with oxygen; in short, it has been oxidized, or burned, as we say, which is converting it into a tremendous volume of carbonic acid gas and watery vapor, which rises up through the smoke stack, and last Wednesday as the wind set cityward from the sea 145 pounds of that body, if it weighed that much, blew off over San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda. Mingling with and being absorbed by the damp of the fogs it settled in our door yards, possibly some of it rested in a fine dew upon the roses in the home from which that body was carried six hours before, and one of those roses might have graced the tea table that evening where sat a sorrowing family around a board where will be one vacant chair forevermore. It matter not that little or no smoke was seen coming from the crematory chimney. 145 pounds of that body, tangible to the chemist, passed out of that chimney in the shape of carbonic acid gas, and this gas is so real that the amount rising from a pan of burning charcoal in a sleeping room will kill the sleeper. It can not be seen, but it is there in sufficient potency to kill the strongest man. These gases are the food of plants. They are readily absorbed in water also. With these two facts in view, it becomes apparent that one might not only be able to look at a flower containing atoms of his own father's body, but it would be possible for those atoms to get into food and drink, and this, too, whether the body was buried or cremated, although cremation would furnish greater chances of this than earth burial. In either case, whether the body was burned slowly in the ground by decomposition or radily in the furnace by cremation, all particles of that body are harmless to the living under all ordinary circumstances, so we may tally them even from this standpoint. That odors are given off during the process of burning a body is amply attested by witnesses sitting at this time in this congregation, who not long since lived a few blocks from the Los Angeles crematory.

"In this connection I woul say a word about the claim that there is not room enough for burying the world's dead without infringing the rights and safety of the living. The peoples of the past far outnumered those living today, and yet mother earth has taken them all kindly into her bosom without converting unnumbered millions of square miles of this earth into cemeteries. The real difficulty about insufficient cemetery room has its root in the method of conducting funerals. We have become fixed in the idea that to show proper respect for our dead we must engage a procession of black, slow moving carriages drawn by horses to carry us and our dead to the cemetery. As a natural consequence cemeteries must be close to cities, or the time and expense become too great to be endured. No one pretends to say that there is not room enough in the country to bury 9/3 the dead of the earth for the next 30,000 years. Such being the case the cemetery problem solves itself in this electrical age, if people would but open their eyes and see. Let a cemetery be established twenty-five miles from Oakland and connected without city electric lines of cars. Let us then be bold pioneers and abandon the forbidding funeral coach drawn by horses, build a suitable funeral car for such purposes, take the precious remains right into the car with us, and bear them on the wings of God's lightning away from the noise and turmoil of the city, to a resting place where no steam whistles ever annoy, and where the clattering of milk wagons do not disturb the sleep of living or dead. This funeral car should be fitted with shutters to protect those within from rude curiosity along the way, and be decorated with the symbols of Christianity, such as the cross, the resurrection and the ascension. Even with no rural cemetery such cars could now be hired more cheaply, and on the common gauge of road extending everywhere could be taken almost to the doors in every part of the city; so that this plan is feasible for funerals at this moment in this city and San Francisco, if the electric companies would provide the cars and make suitable arrangements for right-of-way to various parts of the city. Such cars should travel rapidly. Nothing strikes the really thoughtful person as being so absurd as the snail's pace to a cemetery five miles away, and the 'jolly trot' and speeding of horses homeward.

"From the standpoint of Christianity there is no choice between burial and cremation. The doctrine of the "resurrection of the body" held by this church and daily recited in her creeds is not violated by incineration. Whether your body is buried and slowly disorganized and scattered or cremated and buried in invisible form in every dooryard of these united cities and carried in ships lying in the harbors and on ocean currents to every part of the globe within three months, matters not.

The God who gathered that body in the first place from every quarter of the earth through food stuffs can in his own good time get it together again for the resurrection if its identical atoms are essential. First let us be sure that our lives are such that we shall be glad to be gotten together again for attendance upon the proceeding of the judgment day. I fancy there will be some who will wish they were scattered farther and wider than cremation will do when once it fairly dawns upon them that they are to stand before God to be suitably rewarded or punished for the deeds done in the flesh. My own particular views upon this subject are that the identical atoms of oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen and carbon which compose out bodies will be in no wise essential to our identity in the resurrection, any more than they are now in this life. In seventy years all the particles composing man's body are completely changed ten times. And yet we continue to identify this man as Mr. John Smith and that one as Mr. William Brown, and before the statutes each remains through life answerable for any crime committed anywhere along the path of life, although the atoms of his body may have completely changed several times. Identical atoms are not essential for identification here and why should they be in a superior state of existence. So far as the resurrection of the body is concerned cremation is all right. There is no choice between it and burial by earth or water. God reigns. He has managed the universe thus far intelligently and without occasion for worry on our part and he assuredly will continue so to do.

"As regards the burial service of this church, which is fixed by ritual, that service cannot now be used for other modes of interment than burial on land or on the sea, as you will readily discover by reading the rupties in italics on the middle of page 299 of the prayer book, together with the words of committal following, "earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." On page 302 there is provision for modification in case of a burial at sea. These two are the church's idea of Christian burial, or have been up to this time. Jesus was so buried. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were so buried in the case of the field of Macpheiah. And yet the Christian martyrs burned at the stake certainly did not forfeit their hopes of the resurrection. Christianity can assimilate cremation, but our burial service in this church cannot and it cannot be legally used by a minister of this church acting in accordance with his ordination vows, as he will find by consulting the chancellor of his diocese. But a minister of this church can use another service as easily as any other minister can. There is no rupric or canon to restrain him in this, indeed he is commanded under certain circumstances not to use the prayer book service. The bishop is powerless to change this service to suit cremation as some of my ministerial brethren suppose, for he is bound by the same vows we are. The Episcopal burial service was set forth by the whole church acting in council assembled, and the whole church in council assembled must change it or unmake it, if it is changed or unmade. The bishop, however, can, if he chooses, set forth a service of his own for use at funerals where cremation is to follow. If called upon to attend a funeral to be followed by cremation I should go and use a service of my own not unlike that used by the ministers of other churches, but not this burial service of the prayer book until the proper authorities have changed it and permit me to do so. It is my belief that it will be changed in a few years and made suitable for cremation funerals.

"A certain medico-legal phase of this subject needs the immediate attention of our law makers. Provision should be made for an autopsy of all bodies to be cremated, in order that possible evidence of poisoning or violence may not be hopelessly destroyed. The murderer Parsons recently electrocuted in New York when confronted with the evidence of his crime in the shape of a certificate of chemical analysis, is reported to have cursed himself that he did not have the body cremated so it could not have been disinterred and examined as it was.

"Say what we will, the greatest objection to cremation in this our own generation is sentiment. While we recoil from the slow action of decay in the grave and the hard clods as they strike the coffin case beat like sledge hammers against our hearts, there is yet something worse to the average mortal in the idea of committing those we have loved—aye, do love as never in life—and who have loved us with many a fond caress—into the fiece flames of a man-made fire! In combatting this sentiment of repugnance the advocate of cremation draws gruesome pictures of the 'cold grave worm' at work and the process of putrifaction, often spelling the latter with three letters, and in doing this he is not quite fair. To offset this harsh unkindness of the cremationist his opponent may (but seldom does) retaliate with a merciless description of body burning such as we could not decently repeat here today. Think of a piece of leather on a hot stove. How it curls up and writhes like a thing of life in pitiless torture. Then recall that the human body is encased in a leather bag, the skin, and placed on a red hot gridiron in a cremation furnace. What you can imagine takes place, my unwilling eyes last Wednesday saw in part, and the dreams of the troubled sleep of that night were mingled with pictures of screaming victims writhing in the sulphurous flames of hell! This is the worst that I know of cremation, and to me more than offsets the picture of the 'cold grave worm' and the carrion tooth of slow decay. Then the ashes!

"They are not ashes at all, but broken splicules of calcined bone which oftentimes have to be crushed and broken to get them into the conventional urn, which in the columbarium is a common cupper canister. The human heart naturally recoils at any unpleasant picture of the bodies of the beloved dead, and my soul has been exceedingly tried at the glib fashion some cremationists have of parading all that is repulsive and horrible about burial. Cremation will always have its advocates and let the process stand on its merits without trying to whip us into line by wringing our hearts. I have told you that two children were cremated at the Odd Fellows' crematory which I visited. Commenting upon this I said to Captain Fletcher, 'I care not what becomes of my clay after the spirit has taken its flight, but I recoil from the thought of a child of mine being cast into that roaring furnace.' Then the man inured to open graves and other's grief, to yawning cremation furnaces agap to receive their victims, disclosed the gentle heart within him, for, glancing toward his living room where peeped a little face from the door slightly ajar he said, 'Do you know I feel just that way myself. I have never felt a tremor as I put the grown people into the furnace, but the two babies! that broke me up.' And there were swimming eyes and broken voice to attest the feeling in his statement. Burning the bodies of our precious dead seems so contrary to nature, so violent, so sudden! Nature's processes are slow, silent quiet and peaceful. That mountain in Southern California was hurled down the other day with one blast of man's dynamite. With a sound of thunder it was crushed and violently destroyed! Had it been left a few thousand years God would have taken it down so gently that had you asked the waves if ever a mountain was there the lapping tide would have answered in whispers so silently sweet, 'I can scarcely remember.' So the bodies of our friends may be returned to dust in a few hours if we can bring ourselves to endure the thought of man's terrible furnaces, but Mother Earth would have taken the same body to her close embrace and set her little silent chemical agents carefully to work to take it down ever so tenderly—that form we loved, that little face we kissed—gently, always gently, while time poured his healing balm upon our lacerated hearts, gently but surely bringing them round to health again, and so running a parallel course in gentleness, nature would at last have taken down and stored away the little material body of our loved one, that precious little temple of the Holy Ghost—and all in a way that the millions of the world's mourning ones declare satisfies the heart better. Then in the cemetery there is a sacred spot where we can go during our heart's convalescence and dream of the little form under the flowers, snugly sleeping while the soul is waiting in paradise. Yes, it satisfies the aveerage human heart better.

"'Sentiment! Yes, this is sentiment! But what would this world be without sentiment? Better far that a man should never have been born than to smother all sentiment and become a cold calculating bread and butter consumer who runs up figures day in and day out, eternally watching the main money chance! Everything in this world worth living for is grounded and deeply rooted in sentiment. The capacity for both happiness and sorrow abide in it. But I would not do without it joys merely to escape its tears, for its pains are sweeter far than the material, hysterical pleasures of the world of hard calculating fact. As a matter of sentiment no one should be so cruel as to exact a promise from friends as to the manner and method and place of disposing of his own dead body. It matters nothing to the dead, while it means much oftentimes to the living. Then leave mourning friends to take the easiest course for themselves, the one which will rend the heart the least, for to the long sleeper it all comes to the same thing in the end.

"It was dark in the crematorium. The hissing ashes lay in the decarbonized pen as I stumbled through the dark rooms out among the graves so tenderly kept. The lights were lit in the city. The west was still touched with a golden glory, but it was almost gone. Lone mountain displayed her rounded height above me, but the grand cross which crowns its summit had vanished in darkness. The winds had ceased and a sweet loneliness fell downupon me as I looked first at the towering crematory chimney up there and then at the white head stones all about me. The thought came to me, if I were compelled to decide tonight which road I would travel back to dust, would it be through the furnace or through the grave? The alternative was hard, but at last I had almost reached a decision when the thought came to me, 'I will make no decision, but leave it to my children.'"

A Great Bonanza for Those Wanting Pianos.

HIGH PRICES MUST GO DOWN.

All Can Have Pianos—The W. W. Kimball Company of Chicago Will Sell Their Celebrated Instruments to Families at Factory Prices.

It is not generally known that there is soon to be, or already is, a great revolution and new condition of things in the piano and organ business on the Pacific coast.

The long financial crisis through which we have been passing has leveled values to a lower standard than ever before in the history of this nation. Large profits on many things, especially on those classed among luxuries, have had their day.

In future small profits, strict economy, quick sales and closer connection with the consumer must characterize the business of every successful manufacturer. The Kimball Company of Chicago are the first among piano manufacturers to recognize the situation and act accordingly. Their general agent for conducting their new method of business is Mr. D. S. Johnston, an efficient and reliable man of over thirty years' experience in the piano and organ trade.

Their method of selling is to ship several full carloads of pianos and organs direct from the factory at about half the usual rates of freight, and at small expense, selling them out in a few days to retail buyers at wholesale prices, then go to the next city and do the same thing. Mr. Johnston has just supplied the cities of Washington to the great delight of several hundreds of families, and has begun doing the same thing in California. He sold three carloads in Walla Walla, four in Spokane, six in Seattle, ten in Tacoma, Wash., and has just closed a sale of three carloads in San Jose, three in Sacramento and two at Fresno, this State, and now has three carloads arriving in this city. The freight men at the depot are amazed, say they never saw the like, and wonder where all the pianos are going.

It is difficult to understand how such large numbers of pianos can be sold in such times as these. Mr. Johnston says it is entirely owing to two things; First, the wonderful superior qualities and popularity of the Kimball instruments, and the unprecedented low prices at which he sells them. Hundreds of families want pianos, but are deterred from buying on account of the high prices. He says the Kimball Company are the most enterprising and progressive piano makers in the world, and have unlimited capital with which to do anything they undertake, and while other makers are crying dull trade, hard times, no business, etc., the Kimball factories are crowded with orders beyond their capacity to fill.

The newly improved scales and better class of Kimball pianos have never been seen in this city, and those who have not seen them elsewhere have no idea of their beauty and excellence.

Mr. Johnston is in the city and has rented the store at 904 Broadway, and Wednesday morning will have on exhibition the most magnificent stock of pianos and organs ever brought to this city, or ever seen in any city.

Professional musicians, amateurs and all interested are now invited to see and test them. For further information regarding the Kimball pianos, especially this large shipment, just keep your eye on the columns of The Tribune every day; you will find some mighty interesting reading.

BY GRAVE OR FIRE?

Rev. Dr. Law Preaches on the Arguments Regarding Cremation.

HIS PERSONAL OBSERVATIONS.

He Predicts That Electricity Will 'Ere Long Be a Factor.

WHERE SENTIMENT COMES IN.

He Explodes the Theory That Graveyards Breed Disease.

"Cremation" was the subject chosen by the Rev. Dr. Marshall Law for his sermon yesterday and the following interesting discourse was the result:

"What disposition shall be made of the human body after the soul has taken its flight has come again to be one of the live questions of the day. To the dead it matters little or nothing. Every proper concern about the matter has to do with the friends and the living. The subject is not a very pleasant one under any circumstances, but its consideration is an inevitable one for each of us at some time, so let us take it up now for a few minutes, instead of thrusting it to one side until we are compelled to consider it in grief and tears.

"Civilized man has three ways of disposing of his dead, namely, by earth burial, sea burial and cremation, or burning. The two first methods have been in continuous use from time immemorial. The last, cremation, has prevailed in certain countries among certain peoples, and at certain times since the life of man began upon the earth. The two former, earth and sea burial, are settled modes of disposing of the dead, while incineration has come and gone in an ephemeral sort of way, indicating that something about it did violence to instinct or reason. Just now again the claims of cremation are knocking at the doors of civilized races, claiming recognition by reason of the courage given it by ever advancing science. As reasonable human beings let us consider its claims as impartially as possible.

"We shall not pretend to give a history of cremation for it would serve no good purpose, while its ancient crudity would only incline to prejudice us against it. We have no records of body burning extending back of 1876. During that year it seems to have been revived in this country and Europe almost simultaneously. Many of us recall the famous Lemoyne crematory, built at Washington, Pa., some twenty years ago, and we remember how Dr. Lemoyne was regarded as a human monster to build a place for burning dead human bodies. Within a couple of years two bodies were burned in the Lemoyne crematory and two were incinerated in Italy. From these insignificant beginnings the practice has rapidly extended up to the present. During the last nineteen years about 10,000 bodies were cremated in this country and Europe. Of these 3670 were burned in the United States, 2402 in Italy, 1467 in Germany, 672 in France, 458 in England, 292 in Sweden, 172 in Switzerland and 4 in Denmark. In addition to the figures given for France there were 11,320 dissected bodies and embryos burned ther, but these are not fairly figures of cremation from the standpoint of our present consideration. There are twenty-seven crematories and cremation societies in the United States, of which three are in California, one at Los Angeles and two in San Francisco. In the number of incinerations the United States is in the lead by something over 1200 bodies.

"The indications are that cremation has now come to stay, for it rests all its claims on science, and, say what we will about it and feel as we may, science has a way of commanding respectful audience. So let us be good natured and listen to what she has to say.

"For the purpose of better fitting myself to talk to you upon this gruesome subject I took occasion last Wednesday to see the entire process of cremating a body at the Odd Fellows crematory, located at their cemetery in San Francisco, this being the newest and probably the most complete institution of the kind in the world. And I wish here to record my appreciation of the kindness of a member of this congregation who is a director of that cemetery, the Hon. Charles A. Sumner, known to you in a literary way, who gave me a letter of introduction to Capt. Fletcher, the superintendent of the cemetery, through whose courtesy I was permitted to witness the process of incineration from the time the body was brought into the building until it was drawn from the furnace in the form of ash. The hearse drove up at 3:30 and it was dark when I left the building and wandered among the beautifully-kept graves to the Geary street entrance. I mention this in order that you may know that I had and improved every opportunity for the minutest observation, and in consequence know much better than the average observer whereof I speak.

"The Odd Fellows' crematorium is a handsome structure of brick and granite costing some $30,000, and was completed about two months ago, since which time forty-four bodies have been burned, one-third of whom were women and two of the number children about 2 years of age. The fee charged for incineration is $50. In the East it is $35. Either figures indicates that there is no particular advantage of this method over earth burial in the matter of expense, for all the usual cost of a funeral obtains in either case, including the casket which is usually burned separately. The cremation fee simply offsets the cost of cemetery lot and head stone.

"Considered from a sanitary standpoint there is less to be said to the advantage of cremation than one would at first suppose. It has been claimed that cemeteries adjoining large cities with their thousands of decaying bodies are a menace to the living by reason of the escaping gases of decomposition, and the drainage which may get into the adjoining wells of drinking water. Those who push this claim so persistently know very little about chemistry or they would discover that the purifying action of the soil, by reason of the free oxygen contained in all water or damp earth oxidizes and burns up these obnoxious elements of decay as fast as they form. Were it not so there would not be a gill of water fit for drinking on earth today. Were it not true we could not produce the wholesome grains, fruits and vegetables grown upon lands heavily fertilized with all sorts of obnoxious and decaying substances, including decayed fish.

"The earth is a great laboratory where the most wonderful chemical processes take place in silence and continuousness, as a half hour's thought apart from this subject of burial will convince any one. We will grant that it is possible for an improperly buried body to endanger the lives of the living, but the general charge I most emphatically challenge. Those who advance this as an argument in favor of cremation should remember that cremation is not always done properly. It would be very easy with improper firing to drive dense volumes of smoke from a body dead from contagious disease, like smallpox, all over the city to the very great danger of the living. When a body is burned in a furnace constructed with a view to smokeless combustion (which is perfect combustion) no such danger obtains. In the case of either burial or cremation, honesty compels us to take our arguments from the normal condition of things, not from the exceptional instance. When a body is cremated the average mind thinks of it as annihilated. But let it be understood as an axiom from which there is no escape, that matter can not be annihilated. Its form or outward appearance may be changed, but nothing in this world can be destroyed so that it does not exist. Every atom which composes your body existed in some other before it became your body, and it will continue to exist after your body has passed away from mortal sight. At burial or cremation the atoms which compose your body will change their form so that they cease to be a human body, but atom for atom, pound for pound, they continue to exist in some form. No combustion known to man can be made so perfect as to defeat this great law of nature. The decay of the grave is this change taking place slowly. The incineration in the furnace is the same process hastened by the art of man.

"The question, then is, What becomes of the body weighing 150 pounds which was put in the furnace? Five pounds of the phosphate of lime remain which the friends look upon as all that remains on earth of the dear departed dead friend. But the fact is that this five pounds of calcined bone is only the most obdurate part of the body. It could not be burned for it resists the action of any heat but the electrical. When cremation processes are complete they will apply the irresistable blast of the electric current to this stubborn bone ash, and then every particle of the body will be resolved back into its primary form, and incinerary urns and columbariums will be old fashioned and out of date. Standing here today, I predict that further step, and shall be glad to hail electrical cremation.

"But what becomes of the 145 pounds which have disappeared in the furnace? They do not remain in the furnace, for in that case the furnace would soon be filled up. They are not destroyed, for matter is indestructable. What then has become of the great bulk of the body, the 145 pounds which have disappeared? It has formed a chemical combination with oxygen; in short, it has been oxidized, or burned, as we say, which is converting it into a tremendous volume of carbonic acid gas and watery vapor, which rises up through the smoke stack, and last Wednesday as the wind set cityward from the sea 145 pounds of that body, if it weighed that much, blew off over San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda. Mingling with and being absorbed by the damp of the fogs it settled in our door yards, possibly some of it rested in a fine dew upon the roses in the home from which that body was carried six hours before, and one of those roses might have graced the tea table that evening where sat a sorrowing family around a board where will be one vacant chair forevermore. It matter not that little or no smoke was seen coming from the crematory chimney, 145 pounds of that body, tangible to the chemist, passed out of that chimney in the shape of carbonic acid gas, and this gas is so real that the amount rising from a pan of burning charcoal in a sleeping room will kill the sleeper. It can not be seen, but it is there in sufficient potency to kill the strongest man. These gases are the food of plants. They are readily absorbed in water also. With these two facts in view, it becomes apparent that one might not only be able to look at a flower containing atoms of his own father's body, but it would be possible for those atoms to get into food and drink, and this, too, whether the body was buried or cremated, although cremation would furnish greater chances of this than earth burial. In either case, whether the body was burned slowly in the ground by decomposition or rapidly in the furnace by cremation, all particles of that body are harmless to the living under all ordinary circumstances, so we may tally them even from this standpoint. That odors are given off during the process of burning a body is amply attested by witnesses sitting at this time in this congregation, who not long since lived a few blocks from the Los Angeles crematory.

ROOM FOR THE DEAD.

"In this connection I would say a word about the claim that there is not room enough for burying the world's dead without infringing the rights and safety of the living. The peoples of the past far outnumbered those living today, and yet mother earth has taken them all kindly into her bosom without converting unnumbered millions of square miles of this earth into cemeteries. The real difficulty about insufficient cemetery room has its root in the method of conducting funerals. We have become fixed in the idea that to show proper respect for our dead we must engage a procession of black, slow moving carriages drawn by horses to carry us and our dead to the cemetery. As a natural consequence cemeteries must be close to cities, or the time and expense become too great to be endured. No one pretends to say that there is not room enough in the country to bury all the dead of the earth for the next 40,000 years. Such being the case the cemetery problem solves itself in this electrical age, if people would but open their eyes and see. Let a cemetery be established twenty-five miles from Oakland and connected withour city electric lines of cars. Let us then be bold pioneers and abandon the forbidding funeral coach drawn by horses, build a suitable funeral car for such purposes, take the precious remains right into the car with us, and bear them on the wings of God's lightning away from the noise and turmoil of the city, to a resting place where no steam whistles ever annoy, and where the clattering of milk wagons do not disturb the sleep of living or dead. This funeral car should be fitted with shutters to protect those within from rude curiosity along the way, and be decorated with the symbols of Christianity, such as the cross, the resurrection and the ascension. Even with no rural cemetery such cars could now be hired more cheaply and on the common gauge of road extending everywhere could be taken almost to the doors in every part of the city; so that this plan is feasible for funerals at this moment in this city and San Francisco, if the electric companies would provide the cars and make suitable arrangements for right-of-way to various parts of the city. Such cars should travel rapidly. Nothing strikes the really thoughtful person as being so absurd as the snail's pace to a cemetery five miles away and the 'body trot' and speeding of horses homeward.

"From the standpoint of Christianity there is no choice between burial and cremation. The doctrine of the "resurrection of the body" held by this church and daily recited in her creeds is not violated by incineration. Whether your body is buried and slowly disorganized and scattered, or cremated and burned in invisible form in every dooryard of these united cities and carried in ships lying in the harbors and on ocean currents to every part of the globe within three months, matters not.

The God who gathered that body in the first place from every quarter of the earth through food stuffs can in his own good time get it together again for the resurrection if its identical atoms are essential. First let us be sure that our lives are such that we shall be glad to be gotten together again for attendance upon the proceeding of the judgment day. I fancy there will be some who will wish they were scattered farther and wider than cremation will do when once it fairly dawns upon them that they are to stand before God to be suitably rewarded or punished for the deeds done in the flesh. My own particular views upon this subject are that the identical atoms of oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen and carbon which compose our bodies will be in no wise essential to our identity in the resurrection, any more than they are now in this life. In seventy years all the particles composing man's body are completely changed ten times. And yet we continue to identify this man as Mr. John Smith and that one as Mr. William Brown, and before the statutes each remains through life answerable for any crime committed anywhere along the path of life, although the atoms of his body may have completely changed several times. Identical atoms are not essential for identification here and why should they be in a superior state of existence. So far as the resurrection of the body is concerned cremation is all right. There is no choice between it and burial by earth or water. God reigns. He has managed the universe thus far intelligently and without occasion for worry on our part and he assuredly will continue so to do.

"As regards the burial service of this church, which is fixed by ritual, that service cannot now be used for other modes of interment than burial on land or on the sea, as you will readily discover by reading the rubrics in italics on the middle of page 299 of the prayer book, together with the words of committal following, "earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." On page 302 there is provision for modification in case of a burial at sea. These two are the church's idea of Christian burial, or have been up to this time. Jesus was so buried. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were so buried in the cave of the field of Macphelah. And yet the Christian martyrs burned at the stake certainly did not forfeit their hopes of the resurrection. Christianity can assimilate cremation, but our burial service in this church cannot and it cannot be legally used by a minister of this church acting in accordance with his ordination vows, as he will find by consulting the chancellor of his diocese. But a minister of this church can use another service as easily as any other minister can. There is no rubric or canon to restrain him in this, indeed he is commanded under certain circumstances not to use the prayer book service. The bishop is powerless to change this service to suit cremation as some of my ministerial brethren suppose, for he is bound by the same vows we are. The Episcopal burial service was set forth by the whole church acting in council assembled, and the whole church in council assembled must change it or unmake it, if it is changed or unmade. The bishop, however, can, if he chooses, set forth a service of his own for use at funerals where cremation is to follow, if called upon to attend a funeral to be followed by cremation I should go and use a service of my own not unlike that used by the ministers of other churches, but not this burial service of the prayer book until the proper authorities have changed it and permit me to do so. It is my belief that it will be changed in a few years and made suitable for cremation funerals.

"A certain medico-legal phase of this subject needs the immediate attention of our law makers. Provision should be made for an autopsy of all bodies to be cremated, in order that possible evidence of poisoning or violence may not be hopelessly destroyed. The murderer Parsons recently electrocuted in New York when confronted with the evidence of his crime in the shape of a certificate of chemical analysis, is reported to have cursed himself that he did not have the body cremated so it could not have been disinterred and examined as it was.

"Say what we will, the greatest objection to cremation in this our own generation is sentiment. While we recoil from the slow action of decay in the grave and the hard clods as they strike the coffin case beat like sledge hammers against our hearts, there is yet something worse to the average mortal in the idea of committing those we have loved—aye, do love as never in life—and who have loved us with many a fond caress—into the fierce flames of a man-made fire! In combatting this sentiment of repugnance the advocate of cremation draws gruesome pictures of the 'cold grave worm' at work and the process of putrifaction, often spelling the latter with three letters, and in doing this he is not quite fair. To offset this harsh unkindness of the cremationist his opponent may (but seldom does) retaliate with a merciless description of body burning such as we could not decently repeat here today. Think of a piece of leather on a hot stove. How it curls up and writhes like a thing of life in pitiless torture. Then recall that the human body is encased in a leather bag, the skin, and placed on a red hot gridiron in a cremation furnace. What you can imagine takes place, my unwilling eyes last Wednesday saw in part, and the dreams of the troubled sleep of that night were mingled with pictures of screaming victims writhing in the sulphurous flames of hell! This is the worst that I know of cremation, and to me more than offsets the picture of 'the cold grave worm' and the carrion tooth of slow decay. Then the ashes!

"They are not ashes at all, but broken spicules of calcined bone which oftentimes have to be crushed and broken to get them into the conventional urn, which in the columbarium is a common copper canister. The human heart naturally recoils at any unpleasant picture of the bodies of the beloved dead, and my soul has been exceedingly tried at the glib fashion some cremationists have of parading all that is repulsive and horrible about burial. Cremation will always have its advocates and let the process stand on its merits without trying to whip us into line by wringing our hearts. I have told you that two children were cremated at the Odd Fellows' crematory which I visited. Commenting upon this I said to Captain Fletcher, 'I care not what becomes of my clay after the spirit has taken its flight, but I recoil from the thought of a child of mine being cast into that roaring furnace.' Then the man inured to open graves and other's grief, to yawning cremation furnaces agap to receive their victims, disclosed the gentle heart within him, for, glancing toward his living room where peeped a little face from the door slightly ajar he said, 'Do you know I feel just that way myself. I have never felt a tremor as I put the grown people into the furnace, but the two babies! that broke me up.' And there were swimming eyes and broken voice to attest the feeling in his statement. Burning the bodies of our precious dead seems so contrary to nature, so violent, so sudden! Nature's processes are slow, silent quiet and peaceful. That mountain in Southern California was hurled down the other day with one blast of man's dynamite. With a sound of thunder it was crushed and violently destroyed! Had it been left a few thousand years God would have taken it down so gently that had you asked the waves if ever a mountain was there the lapping tide would have answered in whispers so silently sweet, 'I can scarcely remember.' So the bodies of our friends may be returned to dust in a few hours if we can bring ourselves to endure the thought of man's terrible furnaces, but Mother Earth would have taken the same body to her close embrace and set her little silent chemical agents carefully to work to take it down ever so tenderly—that form we loved, that little face we kissed—gently; always gently, while time poured his healing balm upon our lacerated hearts, gently but surely bringing them round to health again, and so running a parallel course in gentleness, nature would at last have taken down and stored away the little material body of our loved one, that precious little temple of the Holy Ghost—and all in a way that the millions of the world's mourning ones declare satisfies the heart better. Then in the cemetery there is a sacred spot where we can go during our heart's convalescence and dream of the little form under the flowers, snugly sleeping while the soul is waiting in paradise. Yes, it satisfies the avearge human heart better.

"Sentiment! Yes, this is sentiment! But what would this world be without sentiment? Better far that a man should never have been born than to smother all sentiment and become a cold calculating bread and butter consumer who runs up figures day in and day out, eternally watching the main money chance! Everything in this world worth living for is grounded and deeply rooted in sentiment. The capacity for both happiness and sorrow abide in it. But I would not do without it joys merely to escape its tears, for its pains are sweeter far than the material, hysterical pleasures of the world of hard calculating fact. As a matter of sentiment no one should be so cruel as to exact a promise from friends as to the manner and method and place of disposing of his own dead body. It matters nothing to the dead, while it means much oftentimes to the living. Then leave mourning friends to take the easiest course for themselves, the one which will rend the heart the least, for to the long sleeper it all comes to the same thing in the end.

"It was dark in the crematorium. The hissing ashes lay in the decarbonized pen as I stumbled through the dark rooms out among the graves so tenderly kept. The lights were lit in the city. The west was still touched with a golden glory, but it was almost gone. Lone mountain displayed her rounded height above me, but the grand cross which crowns its summit had vanished in darkness. The winds had ceased and a sweet loneliness fell down upon me as I looked first at the towering crematory chimney up there and then at the white head stones all about me. The thought came to me, if I were compelled to decide tonight which road I would travel back to dust, would it be through the furnace or through the grave? The alternative was hard, but at last I had almost reached a decision when the thought came to me, 'I will make no decision, but leave it to my children.'"

COMING TO OAKLAND.

A Great Bonanza for Those Wanting Pianos.

HIGH PRICES MUST GO DOWN.

All Can Have Pianos—The W. W. Kimball Company of Chicago Will Sell Their Celebrated Instruments to Families at Factory Prices.

It is not generally known that there is soon to be, or already is, a great revolution and new condition of things in the piano and organ business on the Pacific coast.

The long financial crisis through which we have been passing has leveled values to a lower standard than ever before in the history of this nation. Large profits on many things, especially on those classed among luxuries, have had their day.

In future small profits, strict economy, quick sales and closer connection with the consumer must characterize the business of every successful manufacturer. The Kimball Company of Chicago are the first among piano manufacturers to recognize the situation and act accordingly. Their general agent for conducting their new method of business is Mr. D. S. Johnston, an efficient and reliable man of over thirty years' experience in the piano and organ trade.

Their method of selling is to ship several full carloads of pianos and organs direct from the factory at about half the usual rates of freight, and at small expense, selling them out in a few days to retail buyers at wholesale prices, then go to the next city and do the same thing. Mr. Johnston has just supplied the cities of Washington to the great delight of several hundreds of families, and has begun doing the same thing in California. He sold three carloads in Walla Walla, four in Spokane, six in Seattle, ten in Tacoma, Wash., and has just closed a sale of three carloads in San Jose, three in Sacramento and two at Fresno this State, and now has three carloads arriving in this city. The freight men at the depot are amazed, say they never saw the like, and wonder where all the pianos are going.

It is difficult to understand how such large numbers of pianos can be sold in such times as these. Mr Johnston says it is entirely owing to two things: First, the wonderful superior qualities and popularity of the Kimball instruments, and the unprecedented low prices at which he sells them. Hundreds of families want pianos, but are deterred from buying on account of the high prices. He says the Kimball Company are the most enterprising and progressive piano makers in the world, and have unlimited capital with which to do anything they undertake, and while other makers are crying dull trade, hard times, no business, etc., the Kimball factories are crowded with orders beyond their capacity to fill.

The newly improved scales and better class of Kimball pianos have never been seen in this city, and those who have not seen them elsewhere have no idea of their beauty and excellence.

Mr. Johnston is in the city and has rented the store at 901 Broadway, and Wednesday morning will have on exhibition the most magnificent stock of pianos and organs ever brought to this city, or ever seen in any city.

Professional musicians, amateurs and all interested are now invited to see and test them. For further information regarding the Kimball pianos, especially this large shipment, just keep your eye on the columns of The Tribune every day; you will find some mighty interesting reading.
